RECIPROCITY'S FALL SENDS FOOD COST UP

GOES HIGHEST AT DULUTH

Wheat, Flour, Oats, Barley All Rise on Shorts Covering, and May Go Still Higher.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Foodstuffs which might have been affected by an influx of Canadian products had Laurier and his Government not been defeated in Canada yesterday rose sharply in price in all American supply centres to-day. Wheat led the advance and was followed late in the day by flour, when millers ignored their previous price lists and adjusted their quotations to figures more commensurate with the advanced cost of the grain staple.

Oats, too, felt the effect of the Canadian vote, and as a result consumers may expect soon to pay increased prices for breakfast foods. The initial meal of the day, in fact, seems destined to bear the brunt of higher living costs within the next few months, as it needed only to-day's developments in the trading pits to add force to the recent advances in coffee and sugars. The consumer's toast and biscuit, wheat cakes and porridge, it is probable, will but add to the woes of the housekeeper.

The greatest advance in wheat during the day was recorded at Duluth. There traders were paying as high as 8 cents a bushel more for the grain than they did before reciprocity was rejected. Minneapolis, the greatest milling centre of the country, showed a maximum net advance of 6 cents.

Increases of a less sensational character were recorded at Kansas City, St. Louis, Omaha, and Chicago. Immense stocks of grain in the elevators of this city acted as a check to a severe advance here, and brokers on the Board of Trade bought wheat for about 3 cents more a bushel than they had paid yesterday. The Chicago market was the lowest of the important grain centres.

It is by no means certain that to-day's advances in the price of wheat and allied foodstuffs indicate that the maximum has been reached. One of the most prominent wheat traders of Chicago advanced the opinion that Spring wheat, the grade used most extensively for fine flour, is due to increase in cost 20 cents a bushel. There is no guarantee that the extraordinary selling, which to-day held down the price in Chicago will be long continued.

A further blow to consumers, at least a certain class, may result when malsters have studied the situation in the barley markets. In some centres the price advanced as much as 8 cents. This, if maintained, will probably mean increased cost of material to brewers, and, as has been the history of previous similar conditions, the smaller sized beer glasses may again become popular with saloon keepers.

There is a grain of comfort for the householder, however, in the meat situation. While packing house products rose in price to-day, they did so only out of sympathy with grains.

Reciprocity, according to experts, had no direct effect upon meat products, and its defeat is not likely to add to the cost of lard, bacon, and ham.

Not since last May, when the shorts were badly squeezed through St. Louis defaults, has there been so much excitement on the Chicago board. Brokers who have not been seen on the floor for months rushed into the fray in their shirt-sleeves, the crowds around the pits were so dense that men fought with each other for advantageous positions, the roar that came from the excited and thoroughly frightened shorts would have put a boiler factory to shame; in short, it was the first real market that the Chicago traders have seen for some time. Millions of bushels were poured into the maelstrom to check the market and give traders an opportunity to cover and save themselves from financial annihilation. Prices were advanced about 2c in about half a minute at the opening and after several million bushels long wheat came on the market there was a second wave of buying and further advances of nearly 2c. December sold 97c to 97¼c first trades, and up to 99c the last hour. May sold at $1.05. Prices in northwest markets were 6c to 8c higher. Only ½c reaction was recorded in wheat at close, December from 99½c to 98⅝c, May from $1.05⅛ at top to $1.04⅝, leaving the advance for the day at exactly 3 cents.

Wild Opening in Duluth.

DULUTH, Minn., Sept. 22.—Frantic rushing of shorts to cover gave the wheat pit in the local Board of Trade one of the wildest scenes in its history at the opening to-day. Many traders had gone short in the last few days, in expectation of the ratification of reciprocity.

September wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.02, opened at $1.07. In a few moments it had reached $1.09½ and later sagged ⅛ cent, and in another few minutes dropped to $1.09. December wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.02½, opened at $1.06 and quickly went to $1.08⅛, from which point it dropped to $1.08.

The market continued bullish all through the session. September, which received the most attention, reached $1.10⅝, and closed at $1.10¼ bid; December closed at $1.00⅞ bid, and May at $1.13⅞ nominal.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 22.—The effect of the Canadian general elections was felt in Minneapolis to-day when the price of flour leaped 30 cents on the barrel.

Members of the big milling and grain concerns here are of the opinion that to-day's flour flurry is the beginning of what may be an unprecedented raise in flour prices. With the announcement of the increased price of flour in Minneapolis came similar announcements from Buffalo and other milling centres.

Back of the increased price in flour, of course, is the bulge of 6 cents recorded in wheat at the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce. To-day's increases in the "staff of life" advances this essential food stuf to $5.60 a barrel. This mark is the highest price in many months.

Some of the large mills to-day reported a slightly improved demand, but most of them reported no material change in the volume of orders.

Shipments, however, showed an increase over a week ago and a year ago.

Three-Cent Jump in Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 22.—Wheat jumped up 3 cents at the opening of the market here to-day, the sudden rise being directly attributed to defeat of reciprocity in Canada. There was wild trading on the Board of Trade for half an hour, after which things were quieter, but remained fairly lively until the last hour, December closing practically quiet at 98⅝ cents.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 22.—Flour prices advanced, because of the defeat of reciprocity in Canada, 20 to 25 cents a barrel on the Merchants' Exchange to-day, soon after the market opened. Millers were flooded with messages offering to buy any flour they had. Every sample of wheat on the tables was taken at an advance of 2 to 3 cents a bushel. The future market advanced in rapid bounds.

Traders said that export business would be stopped until the market could adjust itself.

December wheat closed at 98 cents, 3¼ cents higher than yesterday's close. At one time in the trading December was 3¾

SURGERY IN MIDOCEAN.

Operations for Appendicitis Performed on Two of Celtic's Passengers.

Among those who returned from abroad on the White Star liner Celtic, which got in last evening, were Drs. G. W. Roberts of this city and E. M. Rininger of Seattle. On the outward trip of the vessel the two physicians saved the lives of two passengers by performing operations for appendicitis. Neither operation was performed under the most favorable circumstances, but both patients have recovered.

The Celtic sailed from here on July 8. The next day William Johnson of Chicago, a third-class passenger, was taken ill. Dr. McMaster, the ship's surgeon, diagnosed the case as appendicitis, and decided that an operation was imperative. He called in Drs. Roberts and Rininger, and late in the day they operated on the man. The vessel was running through smooth water, and it was not necessary to slow her down.

The next day eight-year-old Alice Johnson, also a third-class passenger, but no relation of this man, was taken ill. In her case also an immediate operation was necessary, and this also was performed by the two physicians. In each case, Dr. Roberts said last night, the appendix was perforated and death was only a question of hours.

When the vessel reached Liverpool both patients were on the road to recovery, but they were taken to the Northern Hospital.

When the second operation was performed the vessel was running through high seas, and she was slowed down while the physicians worked.

VESUVIUS STORM KILLS 50.

Wind and Flood Devastate Countryside, Houses Razed, Boats Sunk.

NAPLES, Sept. 22.—A hurricane of great violence and accompanied by a deluge of rain raged throughout to-day over the Vesuvian region, causing a heavy loss of life and enormous damage to property. It is estimated to-night that fifty persons were killed. Houses were razed by the wind while others were inundated. Numerous boats in the Bay of Naples are missing and are believed to have been sunk.

It is impossible as yet to estimate the total damage done by the storm as telegraph and telephone wires are leveled and roads are blocked. Several towns are in darkness to-night owing to the electric lighting plants being compelled to shut down.

The downpour of rain caused floods, rising in some places to the second floors of the houses. Hundreds of families ran from their homes, in imminent danger of being overwhelmed or their escape cut off. Great quantities of mud and stones were swept down the side of Mount Vesuvius

Eight persons were killed at Resina, a town six miles southeast of this city, at the southwest foot of Mount Vesuvius, and five persons are dead at Torre del Greco, near Resina. The other seven known fatalities occurred in smaller villages.

FIREMEN WORKED SILENTLY.

Two thousand persons in a moving picture and vaudeville theatre, at 112 East 125th Street, were ignorant last night that a fire was raging in the adjoining building, and that the fire apparatus had been summoned.

The doors of the theatre were closed by order of Jacob Solstein, the manager, and a vaudeville actress, who had been singing, answered encores for a half hour, until the fire was out and the engines had gone.

The fire started in the clothing shop of Abraham Jackson, 114 East 125th Street, and ate through a partition into the adjoining shop, occupied by the Globe Millinery Company. The damage to the clothing shop was estimated at $2,000. The millinery shop was damaged to the extent of $500.

The theatre was already crowded when a boy saw smoke issuing from the clothing shop. People were passing in and out of the theatre. The boy informed Policeman Landeau of the East 126th Street Station, and an alarm was turned in. Acting Battalion Chief Lawlor was on the scene before the arrival of the fire engines, and suggested to the manager of the theatre that the doors be closed. He ordered the firemen to make as little noise as possible.

Reserves were called from the East 126th Street Station, and the crowd that congregated in the street in front of the theatre was kept in check. When the flames had been extinguished the doors of the theatre were opened, and the patrons, on leaving it, were astonished to see the sidewalk littered with burned and damaged stock from the two shops.

REFUSED ASTOR'S $10,000.

Pastor Offered This to Wed Him, Says Bishop Hamilton.

ANTIGO, Wis., Sept. 22.—That a Methodist minister of a little church near Newport, R. I., refused a check of $10,000 to perform the marriage ceremony of Col. Astor and Miss Madeleine Talmadge Force, was the announcement of Bishop John W. Hamilton of New York before the Methodist Conference here to-day. The information was contained in a letter which the Bishop read, but he refused to divulge the name of the clergyman.

The minister's self-denial was great, the Bishop said, because of the fact that he was burdened with debts. When the story became known, according to the Bishop, a wealthy layman of the Methodist Church offered the clergyman an equal sum to recompense him for the loss, but this gift was also refused, the clergyman saying he had only done his duty.

Bishop Hamilton also attacked the courts of the country in his speech, characterizing the divorce tribunals as "bargain counters for domestic profit," and denouncing the delay in getting cases heard, citing one instance in New York where, he said, a case had been pending for twenty-seven years.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 22.—When the Rev. Edward A. Johnson of Newport refused $1,000 to marry Col. John Jacob Astor and Miss Force at Newport, many persons wondered why he allowed the offer to pass.

To-night it became known that the Rev. Frederick L. Brooks, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Little Compton, R. I., was approached by an agent of Col. Astor offering a larger sum, which Bishop Hamilton at the Methodist Episcopal Conference at Antigo, Wis., to-day stated was $10,000 without mentioning the clergyman's name. The Zion's Herald, however, mentions the pastor's name but not the amount.

ONE AIRMAN BURNED, ONE FALLS TO DEATH

THIRTEEN DEAD THIS MONTH

Tony Castellane's Biplane Turns Turtle at Mansfield, Penn.—Wife Sees Aviator Fall.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Sept. 22.—Forced into the air by the jeers of thousands who called him a coward, Frank H. Miller, a Toledo aviator, shot into the sky at twilight this evening, and at the height of 200 feet was burned to death before the eyes of the terrified spectators on the Miami County Fair Grounds at Troy, north of here.

Miller had circled the race track and was just starting on a spiral glide into a neighboring cornfield when it was seen that something was wrong. Miller could be seen frantically attempting to get his machine under control. Then suddenly the whirring of the propellers ceased.

The craft dropped like a shot for a distance of fifty feet, when a tiny blue flame was discovered coming from the engine. An instant later a report was heard, and it was seen that the gasoline tank had exploded. A large portion of the craft was torn away by the impact and hurled hundreds of feet in all directions.

The remainder of the machine, with its driver burned to a crisp, dropped rapidly to earth. When it struck the ground Miller was under the motor. Men pulled him from under the wreckage. It was found that most of his clothing was burned from his body and his features were unrecognizable. Many bones in his body were broken by the fall. The frame work of the machine was aflame when it struck the earth, and the fire was extinguished by throwing dirt on it.

It was Miller's second flight of the day, and fifth and last of the week. Because of engine trouble he did not go into the air yesterday, but made a cautious flight shortly after noon to-day, when it was seen that he was greatly worried by the action of his craft.

Toward evening, when the racing programme had been completed, the crowds sought out the aviator and chided him for not having made a flight yesterday and demanded that he go up again. At first he stoutly refused, but finally said he would not be called a coward by any one, and prepared to ascend.

Miller's biplane was wheeled from its hangar. He made a careful inspection of the craft and with the aid of his mechanicians pulled it into an open space before the grand stand. While his helpers swung the big propellers that started the engine Miller climbed into the seat, seized the steering wheel, and strapped on his goggles.

"Let her go. I'll be glad when it's all over," he shouted back over his shoulder. The sentence was barely audible in the chug of the engine.

The aeroplane started down the level stretch of grass and rose gently from the ground, while the big throng cheered. Like a big bird it shot upward into the purple twilight and then pointed its nose toward the west. The race track was circled at a height of about 100 feet, then the aviator rose higher and prepared for his last fatal glide.

The band was playing a lively ragtime tune when the crowd in the stand rose with a shout of horror as the craft paused for an instant, quivered, and dropped to the earth a mass of flames.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Tony Castellane, known as "Daredevil" Castellane, met death this afternoon while operating a biplane at the Mansfield (Penn.) Fair, twenty-five miles south of this city. Fifteen thousand spectators saw the aviator fall to his death. His wife, who was present, became unconscious.

Previous to his ascent Castellane chatted with the onlookers, expressing himself as satisfied with weather conditions. About 1:30 P. M. the police cleared a space to give Castellane room for moving his aeroplane with safety. He seemed to get an advantageous start, mounting gradually skyward.

Just what caused the trouble is a mystery. He was about 500 feet in the air when the machine careened, turned turtle, and descended with tremendous velocity. Castellane lived fifteen minutes, but did not regain consciousness after his fall. The biplane was too much wrecked to enable even competent men to ascertain from careful examination the cause of the accident. Weather conditions were superb.

Castellane before starting had vigilantly examined every part of his machine and pronounced it in fine condition, remarking to his wife that the day's ascent would be child's play. Many spectators closed their eyes as they realized that the machine was in trouble.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 22.—Testing out an aeroplane at Kinloch Field late to-day, M. Raymond, mechanician for Amado V. Reyburn, Jr., lost control of his machine and fell 200 feet, sustaining serious injuries.

Since the beginning of this month thirteen airmen, including the two killed yesterday, have met their death in aeroplane accidents—almost equal to the record number of fourteen killed in the whole month of May last.

Four days ago, Louis Rosenbaum, an American, fell 600 feet at Dewitt, Iowa, and two days before that Lieut. R. A. Cammell of the British aviation school was killed while making a flight at Hendon, England. Previous to that, on Sept. 12, Lieut. Chotard of the French Army was killed at Villecoublay, France, and on Sept. 7, Lieut. Newman, a German military aviator, fell with a passenger in Germany and both were killed.

A double fatality occurred on Sept. 2 when two French army officers, Capt. de Camine and Lieut. de Grailly, were killed in France, the latter being burned to death in his machine.

WARD QUITS COAST FLIGHT.

Special to The New York Times.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Rodgers, the aviator, reached here at 5:45 o'clock this evening after covering 172 miles during the day on his coast-to-coast trip for Mr. Hearst's $50,000 prize. He expressed himself satisfied with his flight.

James Ward came to grief finally four miles west of Addison to-day. He started thence at 7:45 this morning, but had proceeded only a short distance when his engine stopped. He was then 1,000 feet in the air and started downward, striking a tree, wrecking his biplane beyond repair. Ward, disheartened, announced he would make no further effort to capture the prize.

Rodgers expects to leave here at 7 o'clock to-morrow morning, and will endeavor to cover 400 miles, stopping at Olean and Jamestown.

COLFAX, Cal., Sept. 22.—Aviator Robert G. Fowler, after being detained here ten days, made a splendid flight to-day to test his repaired aeroplane. Everything was found to be in good order.

Fowler announced that at 6 o'clock to-morrow morning he would resume his transcontinental journey.

SWARM OF BEES HAS FIFTH AV. TO ITSELF

AT MRS. GOELET'S HOME

Returning to the Box Again, They Are Cremated by the Watchman Before the Police Arrive.

Thomas Wilson, caretaker of Mrs. Ogden Goelet's home, 608 Fifth Avenue, was in Forty-ninth Street late yesterday afternoon talking with the watchman employed by the company that is altering the Goelet property to meet the expanding needs of the avenue. McDonald, the watchman, was lighting his red lantern when he noticed that the western sky seemed to be darkening ominously.

"Looks like rain," he observed casually.

As the two men watched the advancing cloud they saw that it was strangely near the street level, and then, as they stood transfixed, they heard a mystic humming sound. Was it some portent coming to them out of the twilight West? they asked themselves.

It was not. It was a swarm of bees. Thousands upon thousands of bees, and all advancing upon Fifth Avenue. The caretaker and the watchman stood fascinated. The queen bee took a hasty survey, and, evidently approving Mrs. Goelet's selection, settled down with her subjects in a tastefully decorated soap box that was nailed to a wooden horse standing amid the litter.

Bees innumerable followed their queen into the box, and many late comers were forced to content themselves with places on the horse itself until the structure was literally covered with them.

Finally the watchman found tongue.

"Let's make them prisoners," he said, as he pulled on his gloves.

The caretaker edged away. He was not enthusiastic. The watchman saw him making for the house and stopped him.

"Where are you going?" he demanded.

"To notify the police," the caretaker informed him from a distance and vanished.

While the caretaker, talking over the telephone, was trying to convince Police Headquarters that he was perfectly serious and that he had no idea of sending the reserves on a wild bee chase, McDonald advanced heroically upon the soap box and turned it upside down on a pile of sand. With a majority of the community thus imprisoned, those on the horse scattered into the air.

In a little while Policeman Lawler marched over from the East Fifty-first Street station, determined to use his nightstick if the bees should prove unruly. Before he started, however, there were almost as many people as there were bees at the corner of Forty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue, and the watchman and the caretaker were in tremendous demand as the only real authorities on bees and their capture. One kindly faced woman listened attentively for some time before it dawned upon her that the bees were still imprisoned under the soapbox.

"They will smother," she cried with sudden animation. "Oh, Mr. Watchman, you must give them air. You must."

The sentiment was echoed with approval by several other soft voices in the crowd, and much moved, the caretaker propped up the box, ever so little, with a bit of wood. In a little less than a minute the Jersey bees held undisputed possession of the street corner, and several excited New Yorkers were seen running toward Sixth Avenue seeking the nearest apothecary.

Pleased with the results of the brief encounter, the queen led her warriors into the soap box, where a little later they were stealthily approached by a stony-hearted worker in the Goelet house, who carried tarred paper and some kerosene and a match. When Policeman Lawler reached the scene there was nothing but a charred box and many dead bees to tell the story of what had happened.

But all the bees were not killed and those that first fled when the box was overturned disported themselves for blocks. Some sought refuge in chimneys and others wandered down side streets in quest of adventure. Several persons on their way to Temple Emanu-El, Forty-third Street and Fifth Avenue, were stung. Other bees visited the Hotel Buckingham, at Fiftieth Street, to the terror of guests.

No arrests were made.

KINDNESS MOVES A BURGLAR.

Brings Confession from Prisoner, Who Resisted Third Degree.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., Sept. 22.—County detectives tried the "third degree" on a burglar locked up here since Monday, when he was caught trying to escape from a house in the village, but failed to get a confession. Marshal Maguire obtained one to-day as a reward for the kindness with which he had treated the prisoner. The man, who was locked up under the name of Thomas Dorsey, owned up to-day that he is Thomas Egan, a professional burglar.

Egan admits, however, that he has spent more time since he took up his profession behind the bars than in front of them, having served a total of twenty-one years and ten months.

The prisoner sent for the Marshal to-day and told him he wanted to repay him for the hospitality he had received.

"You treated me right," he said, "and I want to see that you get the credit of my confession."

Egan said he was arrested in 1883 in Brooklyn for burglary and, as Charles Stevens, spent seven years and a half in Sing Sing. In October, 1897, he went in again for assault in the third degree. He had not been out four years before he was caught in Yonkers at burglary and got three years and six months. Good behavior won him a year and a half of that sentence, but he was captured again on a job in Jamaica, L. I., and sent back for nine years. He got out only last April.

Egan says he is 62 years old and a printer by trade.

NEW GIMBEL STYLES FOR MEN are interesting critical New Yorkers immensely. The masterfully tailored Suits and Overcoats, of fabrics distinctive in pattern and coloring, and in a fine choice of correct new models, at $15 to $45.

Certain special groups of silk-lined Fall Overcoats, usually $35, and Suits, usually $25, now at $16.50, present unusual advantages.

Equally authoritative is the showing of Men's Soft Hats in more than 40 styles, at $2 to $12, and Derbies at $3.50 to $10, including all the new STETSON models in each.—Adv.

OLYMPIC PASSENGERS SUFFER IN FRANCE

NO PROVISION FOR THEM

An All-Night Journey Back to Paris, and Fresh Trouble There Over Money, Berths, and Baggage.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 23.—The offices of the White Star Line and other shipping companies were besieged to-day by a crowd of the Olympic's stranded passengers, a majority of whom, having reached Paris at dawn, spent all day yesterday at their hotels, and started out only this morning to make serious efforts to obtain any passage possible for America.

A series of interviews with several of them convinced THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that the marooned passengers who suffered most were undoubtedly the Paris contingent, who were to have boarded the liner at Cherbourg. Although the courtesy and initiative of Nicholas Martin, the White Star's agent at Paris, is unanimously praised, the general feeling among the 350 Americans whose plans have been upset by the accident is one of criticism. In the words of Bertram Hughes, the painter, of Philadelphia, who has left for London to board the Majestic, where he got berths for himself and parents, Dr. and Mrs. Donnell Hughes, the passengers were not taken care of as they should have been.

In the scramble to obtain passages as soon as possible, he said, all had to take what they could, and in many instances the accommodation was much more expensive than that on the Olympic. In such cases the difference in price had to be paid, the same as under ordinary circumstances.

Moreover, on investigation to-day, THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent was told that there had been a few cases of single women who had not enough money to pay their expenses in Paris while awaiting another boat, and in these cases all that had been done for them had been to exchange their tickets for others at a cheaper price, the difference being refunded.

Of the scene at Cherbourg Bertram Hughes gave a harrowing account:

"The station was in darkness. There were no officials. For a considerable time no one knew what was going to be done. It was pouring rain. There were no conveyances, and the hotel casino, where we were finally directed, was packed with passengers who arrived on the first train, and there was no prospect of accommodation or food.

"There we stood, pressed against one another in the hall of the hotel, utterly ignorant of what was going to happen next. Finally Mr. Martin shouted that he had made arrangements for everybody to be served with dinner, and, burdened with our portmanteaus, we rushed somehow, anyhow, to the dining room, where a bit of veal, so raw as to be uneatable and so small that it was hardly enough for a mouthful, was served around.

"It was then almost 9 o'clock, and nobody had eaten anything since 10 in the morning. But, as far as I could see, the majority refused the food and went without dinner.

"My parents, being tired, made inquiry about rooms. The hotel people said coolly that $20 was the minimum they would accept for accommodation in bathrooms, no bedrooms being available.

"We then heard that two special trains were being made up to take us back to Paris, and seeing a taxicab at the door of the hotel, I helped my mother into it. The driver, however, told me without ceremony that he would not move unless I agreed to pay him $14 for a distance of about two blocks.

"Refusing to be imposed upon in that way, we journeyed to the station on foot under a steady rain, carrying our hand baggage. There darkness prevailed; the waiting rooms were unopened, and the officials conspicuous by their absence.

"We were tired out, hungry, and irritated, and it was with joy that I saw some restaurant cars sidetracked, with their officials still aboard busy in their kitchens. I asked them for something to eat. They said it was against the rules. I then requested a single sandwich for my mother, and offered any price for it. They slammed the door in my face.

"I have never experienced nor heard of such treatment before in France, and could never have imagined that the French people could be not only so rude, but positively unkind, more especially when the comfort of women was in question.

"At last I got on the train, where a Cherbourg vendor was selling chocolates. Alas! for the smallest tablet, he had to be paid a dollar. We finally reached Paris after 4 A. M., and got to our hotel, where we found the suite we occupied had been rented, and only small rooms were obtainable; but any-

AMERICAN TROUT FOR RHINE.

Streams Have Been Denuded of Most of the Fish, Owing to Drought.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 23.—In the region of the Valley of the Rhine known as "the Eifel" the trout streams have been denuded of most of their fish on account of the long period of drought.

The Rhine authorities have, therefore, decided to stock the impoverished streams with thousands of American rainbow trout and to cultivate the breed in the future on a wholesale scale.

HEARS 2-YEAR-OLD WITNESS.

Judge Goodnow Signs Warrant for Father on Hearing Child's Replies.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—The youngest witness on record in Chicago was heard yesterday when Edward Raymond, 2 years old, gave testimony that will result in the arrest of his father, Thomas Raymond, for cruelty. Aroused by alleged cruelty on the part of Raymond, neighbors induced his wife to go before Municipal Judge Goodnow and procure his arrest.

Mrs. Raymond wept and made an effort to shield her husband. Assistant State Attorney Pisha noticed a wound on the child's face, and asked him who struck him.

"Papa," was the instant reply.

"And who strikes your mamma?" he was asked.

"Papa," said the child.

E. F. Atkins Asserts Refiners Are Not to Blame for High Prices.

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—The prevailing high price of refined sugars is due entirely to the scarcity of raw material, and prices will fall as soon as the supply of raw sugar approaches the normal, which will be in a short time, is the opinion expressed to-day by Edwin F. Atkins, Vice President of the American Sugar Refining Company.

Mr. Atkins said that refiners have no control over raw material. "The scarcity of sugars in the United States is only temporary," he said, "and if the newspapers will stop publishing a sugar famine and help the refiners in checking a further advance the situation will soon be relieved."

HIS RIDE MAY SAVE A LIFE.

Schenck Carries Sister-in-Law in His Arms Fifty Miles on Horseback.

DENVER, Sept. 22.—Ray W. Schenck passed through here to-day with his sister-in-law, Mrs. George G. Schenck, whom he is taking to Cheyenne for an operation by which it is hoped to save her life. Mr. Schenck, who is Immigration Commissioner of Wyoming, made 50 miles of the trip on horseback with the woman in his arms.

Mrs. Schenck became ill on the Schenck ranch near Sun Dance, Wyo., 50 miles from a railroad. It was decided to take her to Cheyenne Hospital and the journey was begun in an automobile, which broke down soon after leaving the ranch. Schenck completed the trip to the railroad on horseback, carrying his sister-in-law the entire distance.

STEAMER SINKS, 23 IN PERIL.

The Henry Phipps Rams the Joliet and Crew Take to Boats.

PORT HURON, Mich., Sept. 22.—Twenty-three members of the crew of the steamer Joliet, of the Pittsburgh Steamship Company of Cleveland, narrowly escaped death early to-day when that vessel was rammed and sunk by the steamer Henry Phipps, of the same company, in a dense fog in St. Clair River, opposite this port. The Joliet immediately sank in forty feet of water.

As many men as possible jumped into the one boat that was lowered before the Joliet sank. Two clung to the rigging, and others sought pieces of wreckage to sustain them in the water. Those on the rigging were taken ashore in rowboats, others were picked up by yawls from the Phipps. The last rescue was made by two Indians who found a survivor clinging to wreckage two hours after the accident.

ITALY NAVY READY FOR WAR.

Army May Act Also If Porte Still Denies Italian Protectorate in Tripoli.

PARIS, Sept. 22.—Advices received here from Rome say that the entire Italian naval force is ready, in case of emergency, for a conflict with Turkey if the Ottoman Government refuses to give consent for an Italian protectorate over Tripoli.

The Italian plan, according to these advices, embraces a bombardment of Tripoli and simultaneously a military expedition of 20,000 soldiers to block the Turkish coast along the Adriatic Sea and to operate in Macedonia, Syria and Arabia, with a view to protecting the numerous Italians living in those countries. This latter move, however, will be made only as an extreme measure.

While Italy is perfecting her plans, all efforts are being made to induce Turkey to come to an amicable arrangement for insuring to Italy a preponderating influence over Tripoli. Italy is even willing to go to the extent of leaving Tripoli under the sovereignty of the Sultan. It is understood that Germany and Austria are supporting this latter plan, and that France and Italy stand ready, in case of its acceptance, to indemnify Turkey.

The Italian squadron is gathering at Taranto, and is under orders to be ready to start at a moment's notice. The commander of the squadron has instructions which are to be opened when his vessels are on the high seas.

It is believed that the seemingly belligerent attitude of Turkey is only a bluff to save her military honor, the advices from Rome say, and also at the same time to obtain a larger indemnity from Italy.

A squadron of torpedo-boat destroyers which left Messina for Brindisi to-day was compelled, after five hours in stormy weather, to return to harbor, owing to damages sustained by several of the vessels.

The Rome advices say the Italian fleet will be divided into five divisions and the Duke of the Abruzzi will command one of these, composed of 22 destroyers, 28 torpedo boats, 2 cruisers, and 6 submarines. The Rome dispatch adds that Taranto has been proclaimed in a state of siege.

The United States scout cruiser Chester is expected to arrive in Tripoli next week to protect the members of the American archaeological expedition at Cyrenno.

WON'T TELL TRUSTS HOW TO REORGANIZE

MARKET WILD OVER STEEL

President Taft on the Trusts.

From the President's Speech at Peoria, Ill., Yesterday.

"With respect to the trusts, we are in a transition period, in this sense that the Supreme Court has decided what the law is and now business has got to square itself with that law. We might as well make up our minds to that, gentlemen. We can protest as much as we will as to what the law ought to be, but the Supreme Court has said what the law is, and I have learned that, when they have to do so, they can adjust their affairs without endangering the progress to which they thought some other method absolutely indispensable."

Mr. Wickersham on the Trusts.

By Telegraph to the Editor of The New York Times.

THE MOUNT WASHINGTON, BRETTON WOODS, N. H., Sept. 22. —Replying to your inquiry, the attitude of the Department of Justice respecting the so-called trusts was fully stated by the President in his recent address on the trust decisions. I can add nothing to what he said. My own interpretation of the Supreme Court's decisions in the oil and tobacco cases, and the duty and purpose of the Department of Justice to enforce them was stated in my address at Battle Creek, Mich., on July 6th.

GEORGE W. WICKERSHAM.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Much interest was manifested here to-day over the possibility of a voluntary reorganization by the United States Steel Corporation in order to bring that concern clearly within the lines of the anti-trust law, as interpreted by the Supreme Court in the Standard Oil and Tobacco decisions. It has been evident here for some time that the Administration would seek to effect voluntary reorganization on the part of some of the larger combinations, the special investigations by the Department of Justice, under way for some time, having convinced the department and the Administration that these concerns were operating in violation of the statute. An authoritative statement of the attitude of the Department of Justice, made this afternoon, goes into the subject at some length, but does not name any concerns except those which have already announced their intention to effect voluntary reorganization or dissolution. The statement reads:

"The position of the Attorney General, as frequently stated by him, is that since the decisions of the Supreme Court in the Oil and Tobacco cases, (to quote the language employed by him in his speech at Battle Creek, Mich.) 'the area of uncertainty in the law' has been greatly reduced, and the meaning of the statute in its application to great monopolistic corporations made clear. This makes it necessary for those combinations to resolve themselves into a number of distinct, separate entities, no one of which shall be in itself a combination in restraint of trade or threaten monopoly.

Can't Act as Trusts' Counsel.

"How this shall be done is of course a separate problem in each case, a problem which in the first instance those in control of the combinations and their counsel must work out. The law department of the Government cannot undertake to act as universal counsel for the trusts.

"It is preparing to bring before the court all the combinations which appear to be in clear violation of the law. If the courts agree with the Government's views, they doubtless will follow the precedents set by the Supreme Court in the Tobacco case and by the United States Circuit Court in the Powder case, decree the combination to be illegal, and give it a reasonable time to reorganize, in conformity with the law, under penalty of injunction or receivership if it should fail to do so.

"The plan of reorganization must be such as the Government may acquiesce in, or it would be compelled to oppose its approval by the court. But the final approval is for the court to make.

"In the case of the Harvester Company, that corporation voluntarily submitted to the Government's plan of reorganization before suit was brought, and while not going so far as the officials of the Department of Justice considered it should go, the representatives of the Harvester Company evinced a willingness to conform if possible to the views of the department, and to make such changes as it should deem necessary to comply with the law.

"In some cases, such as the suits against the combination of electrical light manufacturers and the Southern Wholesale Grocers' Association, the defendants, as soon as the petitions were filed, evinced a willingness to comply with the law, submitted proposed reorganizations, and tendered a form of decree which they were willing to have the court enter against them. It is understood that negotiations respecting such a decree have been completed and at the next term of court the defendants will appear and agree to the entry of judgments granting all relief the Government could ask as the result of a litigation.

"If other combinations should take like action and submit to the Department of Justice plans of reorganization, which should in good faith bring about a competitive condition, and terminate monopolistic conditions and also all agreements unduly restraining inter-State trade and commerce, the Department of Justice would doubtless give them careful consideration, and if found to be adequate, would submit them to the courts on an appropriate petition, the decree of the court to be so framed as to make the provisions of the plan binding upon the defendants and to enjoin them from further monopolistic effort.

"But the burden of framing such plans and of demonstrating their sufficiency and adequacy must be assumed by those interested in the combinations and not by the officials of the Department of Justice."

This statement should be considered in connection with the recent speech of the President when he quoted this paragraph from his special message of Jan. 7, 1910:

It is the duty and the purpose of the Executive to direct an investigation by the Department of Justice, through the Grand Jury or otherwise, into the history, organization, and purposes of all the industrial companies with respect to which there is any reasonable ground for suspicion that they have been organized for a purpose, and are conducting business on a plan which is in violation of the anti-trust law. The work is a heavy one, but it is not beyond the power of the Department of Justice if sufficient funds are furnished to carry on the investigation and to pay the counsel engaged in the work.

Several times since that special message was sent to Congress there have been very clear indications of the intention of the Administration to persist in the course marked out by the President. But since the decisions in the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases the Administration has been seeking by quiet negotiation with different concerns involved to bring about a voluntary readjustment that would obviate the necessity of formal prosecution.

The President and Attorney General Wickersham have all along been keenly conscious of the disturbing effect on business which a number of trust prosecutions would inevitably produce. In the message referred to the President spoke of the effect upon business of a wholesale prosecution and of the desirability of avoiding it. At that time, with the Oil and Tobacco cases still pending in the Supreme Court, the possibility of obtaining voluntary action by the big concerns under investigation seems not to have occurred to the Administration, or, if it had, it did not offer alluring prospects of success. Emphasis was then laid upon the President's hope for the enactment of some kind of a general Federal incorporation law, which would afford the big combinations a means of coming within the law while continuing to do business.

The Federal incorporation plan was tried on Congress and was promptly pigeonholed. It has slumbered undisturbed ever since the introduction of the Administration bills. Occasionally the President has declared his purpose to attempt to revive it at the coming session of Congress, but on all sides it is admitted that there is no real chance for the success of such a measure.

Under such circumstances, and with the Oil and Tobacco decisions pointing the way, the possibility of obtaining voluntary action by the big combinations has seemed much more hopeful. As pointed out in the statement from the Department of Justice, it has already been successful in several cases, and gives promise of further success. With such an important concern as the Harvester Trust publicly declaring its intention to reorganize, and with the Steel Corporation officials in consultation with the Attorney General along the same lines, the outlook from the point of view of the Department of Justice is most hopeful.

Seek Peace With Big Business.

There is a decided political bearing to all this. No party enjoys going into a Presidential campaign during a period of business disturbance. It is becoming more and more certain that unless some positive line of constructive policy is announced very soon by the leaders of the two parties, the present unsettled conditions will not find relief until after the Presidential election of next year.

A course of prosecutions by the Administration will tend to increase rather than to compose the existing disturbance of business conditions. But a series of voluntary readjustments by the combinations themselves would not only tend to benefit the Administration politically among the anti-trust radicals; it would also tend to the establishment of better relations between the Administration and the business interests whose support is essential to success in the Presidential campaign.

Each of the four distinct influences that will figure in the next Presidential campaign has been busy for some time endeavoring to cultivate better relations with the business interests. But while this work has been going on with the utmost caution and the least possible noise, the public utterances of the various leaders have all been in the old minatory strain. Even so radical a reorganizer as Senator La Follette, the progressive Republican candidate for the Presidential nomination next year, is not averse to making friends among the big business men. His campaign managers and friends have been endeavoring strenuously to convince "big business" that the Wisconsin statesman is not really hostile to it, and that the Wisconsin laws enacted under his leadership have proved highly beneficial to business. Efforts have been made very quietly to bring about meetings between Mr. La Follette and some of the more influential representatives of "big business," so that they might see for themselves that the insurgent Senator is not bent upon rending them.

Both the progressive and the old factions of the Democrats are engaged on the same quiet quest for support from "big business," while publicly continuing the old anti-trust chant. At the same time, in both parties, progressive and old line factions are striking to hit upon some scheme of legislative policy that can be tagged as "constructive" rather than destructive, and so make political capital. The best that has been devised so far is the plan of the Attorney General to obtain voluntary readjustment of their affairs by the combinations themselves.

Stanley's Point of View.

"The Steel Trust," Representative A. O. Stanley of Kentucky, Chairman of the Steel Investigating Committee of the House, is quoted to-day as saying, "is too powerful to yield without a struggle to any demand that it dissolve and reorganize. Besides, I do not believe the Department of Justice is at all sure yet that it can prove that this corporation exists in violation of the Sherman law. It also remains to be seen whether the House Committee will bring to light facts which will prove restraint of trade and monopoly. It is my opinion, however, that eventually the Steel Trust will consent to a voluntary dismemberment."

Mr. Stanley does not believe that the corporation is seriously considering at this time any plan to follow the example of the International Harvester Company and offer to conform to the Sherman anti-trust law, in accordance with demands of the Department of Justice, without going into court.

MARKET WILD OVER STEEL.

Rush to Sell in Morning Hours Knocks Stocks Down, but They Rally.

For a few minutes after the opening of the market yesterday morning the Stock Exchange witnessed the most exciting scenes since the panic days of 1907. Although on a number of days in the past more shares of a single stock have been disposed of on the floor than the 716,950 of Steel common reported on the tape yesterday, no one could recall a period of such wild chaos as attended the marketing of nearly 525,000 shares of Steel in the first two hours yesterday.

London brokers had been up all night awaiting news of the Steel Corporation's affairs, and with another ear open for the results of the Canadian election. Whether it was the result of the defeat of reciprocity or conviction that the Steel Corporation must dissolve, the Steel stocks continued on the London Curb the declines which had left the common down 5¼ and the preferred down 5¼ at the close of this market on Thursday. Before the opening here the cable advices from London were that Steel common had lost an additional 4 to 5 points before daybreak.

This knowledge and the enormous orders which had accumulated overnight in Wall Street brought a full attendance on the floor of the Stock Exchange long before the gong rang at 10 o'clock. The crowd surged around the Steel post and overflowed into the space usually given over to Reading, Union Pacific, and other active issues whose posts are close by.

It was impossible in such a crowd to arrive at a common price, and the first sales were at figures varying from 54 to 58½—the latter figure a decline of 4¼ points from the previous night's close here, but something better than the lowest prices reported from London.

The Stock Exchange authorities had ample warning that the trading in the Steel shares was about to assume record proportions, and a special force of reporters was sent into the crowd to get the transactions to the tape.

With simultaneous transactions on all sides in the crowd at the opening, the best estimate the reporters could make of the first sales was 45,000 shares, and this was the first "transaction" sent out over the ticker. In the first ten minutes the sales ticked out on the tape aggregated over 105,000, but it was generally conceded that the actual total must have exceeded this amount substantially because of the impossibility of the reporters around the Steel post catching all of the sales. The brokers fighting to execute orders in Steel numbered at times as many as 200 and orders that were not in the thousands of shares had little chance in the scramble. The brokers quickly adapted themselves to the conditions and dumped their orders, making up blocks of thousands of shares out of individual orders of hundreds.

There have been few times in the history of the Exchange when floor members have had to call as much lung power and muscle into play as made the pandemonium around the Steel post yesterday. Once in the crowd the jam was so great that there was little chance to use notebook and pencil. Trades had to be carried in the memory, and there was a lot of work done after the close in comparing trades and straightening out disputes.

Immediately after the opening the price of the common dropped to 53½ and the preferred to 103½. This proved to be the lowest price of the day for the common, or "little Steel," although the price of the preferred lost ¼ point more. At these prices the two issues showed declines of 5 points and 2¾ points, respectively. The suddenness of the drop and the seemingly endless volume of selling orders made the first half hour of yesterday's market a nervous time among the brokers. There was no definite news to be had of the Steel Corporation's affairs, and in the many rumors afloat there was little that was encouraging.

Outside of the Steel issues the market was no more active than on an ordinary day, and although there were substantial declines in Great Northern and Northern Pacific, representing largely disappointment over the defeat of reciprocity, the first ten minutes brought few declines in the railroad issues of more than a point. In the first selling Great Northern had lost 4¼ points and Northern Pacific 2½. General Electric was down 4 points, but on the whole the market showed none of the symptoms which accompany a panic.

Before the end of the first hour there were sharp recoveries. Union Pacific by 11 o'clock was 1 point above Thursday's close. Rallies in other important issues reached a point or more and extended to 3 points in General Electric.

The Steel issues were still at about their low point, but trading was less excited. Before noon Steel common had rallied 2½ points from the low level and the preferred nearly 2 points.

After noon there was a decided change in front. Trading in Steel common, which had aggregated nearly 525,000 shares in the first two hours, amounted to less than 25,000 between noon and 2 o'clock, and in the last hour amounted to only 68,600 shares. In the meantime prices were going up rapidly. The preferred shares of United States Steel more than made up their loss, rising to 106, as compared with Thursday's closing price of 105⅝, and the common had rallied from 53¼ to 57¼. Almost all of the other important stocks had been carried by the rally above Thursday's last prices, but in the early afternoon there was another reaction of small proportions. The market took the new decline calmly and it was of short duration.

Although yesterday's low prices in Steel common and preferred were the lowest since April, 1909, and July, 1908, respectively, the day closed with a net loss of only 2¼ points in the common stock and an actual gain of one-eighth in the preferred.

OUR BANKERS IN BERLIN

To Meet Chinese Minister on Loan—Schwab Optimist on Steel.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 22.—A committee of New York bankers headed by Henry P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Co., and including Willard D. Straight, F. K. MacKnight, Edward Grenfell, and Charles H. Sabin, arrived in Berlin to-day to meet Tung Chen, the Chinese Minister of Finance, and confer with him regarding the employment of American capital in China.

Charles M. Schwab also arrived, and while Mr. Schwab declines to state the object of his visit, the coincidence of his coming at the same time with Mr. Tung Chen leads to the belief here that he also has business with China—probably in connection with warship contracts. Mr. Schwab is said to be on his way to the Far East over the Trans-Siberian Railway.

He is highly optimistic with regard to the steel situation in the United States, and says the slump in the prices of securities is entirely unjustified by the state of trade. The Steel Corporation is rounding out the second busiest year in its history, said Mr. Schwab. If it had had on hand six years ago the orders now on its books, it could not have coped with them. Mr. Schwab added that when he left the United States only ten days ago he then saw not the slightest reason for the "bearish" tendency of which Steel securities have meantime been the victim.

STEEL SLUMP IN LONDON.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—Upon the official close of the Stock Exchange to-day the brokers crowded the street and animated dealings, principally for Wall Street account, lifted prices of American securities. United States Steel rose 2 points above the official close, Union Pacific 1⅞, Canadian Pacific 3¾, and the rest of the list improved in a lesser degree with a buoyant general tone.

During the official hours the market was most erratic. An attack on United States Steel, inaugurated in Wall Street, was continued at the opening of the Stock Exchange here, and American Steel securities were thrown out in big bunches, both for New York and Continental accounts. Steel common slumped 5 points and other stocks weakened in sympathy. Canadian Pacific fell 2¾ points, but before the close of the morning's session prices rallied and Steel recovered 3 points, but lost the new level again at the afternoon session, and closed 3¾ below the New York closing of yesterday.

NO STEEL DISSOLUTION YET.

Wickersham Says No Arrangements Have Been Made or Proposed by Trust

BRETTON WOODS, N. H., Sept. 22.—Attorney General Wickersham to-day authorized the following statement:

"No arrangements for the dissolution of the Steel Trust have been made, or so far as I am aware, proposed to the Department of Justice."

WICKERSHAM'S OWN VIEW.

What Attorney General Said About Trusts in His Battle Creek Speech.

In his speech at Battle Creek, Mich., before the Michigan Bar Association, on July 6, Attorney General Wickersham, in discussing the Sherman anti-trust law, said:

"The most cursory examination of the decree in the tobacco case—the most casual consideration of the drastic and far-reaching remedy imposed—makes it perfectly apparent that the Sherman law, perhaps for the first time, has been demonstrated to be an actual effective weapon for the accomplishment of the purpose for which it was primarily enacted—namely, the destruction of the great combinations familiarly known as trusts.

"That ordinary agreements of purchase and sale, of partnership or corporate organization, do not violate the first section of the Sherman act, even though incidentally and to a limited degree they may operate to restrain competition in interstate commerce between the parties to such agreements.

"But any contract, combination, or association the direct object and effect of which is to control prices, restrict output, divide territory, refrain from competition, or exclude or prevent others from competing in any particular field of enterprise, imposes an undue restraint on trade and commerce, and is in violation of the first sentence of the act. This principle applies to all associations of competitors of the character known as pools; to agreements with so-called wholesale or retail agents whereby the manufacture of an article, even though made according to some secret process or formula, seeks to control the price at which it may be sold by purchasers directly or indirectly from the manufacturer. It applies also to attempts to control competition between independent concerns by means of a common stockholding trust, whether individual or corporation holders.

"Size alone does not constitute monopoly. But unfair methods of trade, by destroying and excluding competitors by means of intercorporate stockholding, or by means of agreements between actual or potential competitors whereby the control of commerce among the States or with foreign countries in any particular line of industry is secured or threatened, expose those who are concerned in such efforts to the penalties prescribed in the second section of the act, because they are engaged in monopolizing or in attempting to monopolize such commerce.

"It is also now settled that no form of corporate organization merger or consolidation, no species of transfer of title, whether by sale, conveyance, or mortgage, and no lapse of time from the date of the original contract, conspiracy, or combination can bar a Federal court of equity from terminating an unlawful restraint or suppressing the disintegration of a monopolistic combination."

TRUSTS, TAFT SAYS, MUST OBEY THE LAW

NOT A PARTY EXTREMIST

President Hears Predictions That He Will Surely Be Renominated and Re-elected.

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 22.—President Taft had a heart-to-heart talk here to-day with the leaders of the different Republican factions in Illinois, defined his status as to progressiveness, pleaded guilty to being a poor politician, acknowledged again that his ambition had lain in the direction of the office of Chief Justice, rather than the Presidency, admitted that he undoubtedly had made many mistakes, but asserted that as President he had tried to do what he thought was right. What the future held for him he did not know; he would go ahead doing the best he could.

Mr. Taft declared he was not allied with the extremists of his party, either conservatives or progressives, but had tried to take a middle ground between the two.

"But we middle-of-the-road people believe we are the real progressives," said the President, "because you do not make progress in great strides; you make it step by step."

The President was in a serious mood. He declared that while it might not be so for a time, the people in the end would distinguish between "fact and fustian" and would recognize the difference between substance in progress and platform declarations written for campaign purposes only.

The speech made by the President was the most significant and interesting of his trip thus far. He still was downcast by the defeat of the reciprocity agreement in Canada, but his only reference to that subject was made earlier in the day when he addressed the workingmen in a local manufacturing establishment where farming implements are made.

"I was sorry to hear that in Canada they do not care to have closer commercial relations with us," he said. "If reciprocity had been adopted we could have gotten our agricultural implements into Canada at a substantial decrease. But I guess we can get along."

The President's political speech followed a luncheon given in his honor by the Republican State Central Committee attended by the party leaders from all over the State, including Senator Shelby M. Cullom and Lieut. Gov. Oglesby. Gov. Deneen was unable to be present because of his broken leg. The so-called Deneen, Yates, and Independent factions were represented at the gathering at the Country Club, including one member of the Lorimer faction.

The leaders present vied with each other in pledging their support to the President and predicted that he would be renominated and re-elected. Charles H. Williamson of Quincy, a prominent member of the State Central Committee, said he had taken a poll on a train a few days ago en route from Keokuk to Quincy and that of 62 voters interviewed 58 had declared for Taft, three for Col. Roosevelt, and one for Senator La Follette. He added that he believed his poll accurately represented the views of Illinois Republicans.

Senator Cullom gave a more or less intimate talk of his association with and love for President Taft. He said that with the Chicago convention not six weeks away in 1908 Mr. Taft had told him that if Chief Justice Fuller could be induced to resign, he would prefer that honor to all others.

Lieut. Gov. Oglesby, State Senators Daly and Berry, Congressman Prince, Col. Fred H. Smith, Chairman of the local Republican Central Committee, and Representative Mesee of the Illinois Legislature were included among the speakers who preceded the President.

"If I had not been advised otherwise," said the President, with a smile, "I should think that this was a political meeting."

Mr. Taft then pleaded guilty to the indictment often laid against him that he knew nothing of politics and was a very poor politician. "But the truth is," he continued, "that my politics were limited to a very early stage of my career. Three or four years after I came to the bar I was pretty active, so that I knew something of ward politics. Since that time my fate has been such as to carry me out of politics, on to the bench, or seven thousand miles away from any American politics. But, as my dear friend Senator Cullom says, my ambition lay in an entirely different direction and was not gratified.

"I am not giving you to understand that I ran away from the nomination for the Presidency, but the fact is that it was not in the line which I had marked out, but, being nominated and getting into the fight, I did the best I could, and, being elected, I took up the discharge of the Presidency with certain tendencies, perhaps I ought to call them, that I had gathered from judicial experience.

"Of course, I made a great many mistakes. I shall continue during this term to make them. That is hardly to be avoided. But there are certain things, certain rules, that it is rather easy to follow. One is, that when you have made a promise it is your obligation to keep it.

"Now, something about the vetoes. I considered with reference to those bills that I was as much under an obligation to veto every one of them as if I had said when I was on the platform running for the Presidency that I would veto just those bills, for the reason that the whole Republican Party had taken the position that it was necessary to maintain the industries of this country by protection sufficient to give them a living method of competing with foreign manufactures, and the whole party had also said, if you could trust the resolutions of the conventions, even in Iowa and Kansas and Wisconsin, that they approved finding out the facts by a Tariff Board before we passed legislation that might strike down our industries.

"I would have vetoed those bills under any conditions, even if it would have cost me my life. I say that with all the earnestness possible, because what I did was the result of a conviction as deep seated as any principle I ever had.

"So far as the veto of the Arizona bill is concerned I just vetoed that because I could not do anything else. I wrote my heart into that veto.

"My friends, I have tried to follow what I thought to be right in the Administration of my office. There has been a division in the party, and I have been charged with not being progressive, and therefore to be condemned. What one does, this man thinks is progressive, another man thinks is retrograde. There are, however, two great schools—one which believes that the present is not perfect perhaps, but that changes from it would be dangerous. They are the strictly conservative, and perhaps are known as the reactionary. Then there is another class at the other end which is extreme in its view that the whole present condition is wrong, and there must be radical changes if we live at all.

"Now, I think—perhaps I am wrong about it—but I think I am going along in the middle of the road between those two; at least, that is what I am trying to do, and I believe the legislation of this Administration has been along that line.

"We have brought the railroads under a condition of regulation that has satisfied them that the country is bound to have their business discharged according to law and under such supervision as to insure that it will be according to law, and I have heard no complaint that the present regulations do not secure that result.

"With respect to the trusts, we are in a transition period, in this sense that the Supreme Court has decided what the law is, and now business has got to square itself with that law. We might as well make up our minds to that, gentlemen. We can protest as much as we will as to what the law ought to be, but the Supreme Court has said what the law is, and I have learned that when they have to do so they can adjust their affairs without endangering the progress to which they thought some other method absolutely indispensable.

"With respect to much of what has been discussed as to being progressive, the Federal Government has nothing to do. That is a matter of State Governments to settle, and State Governments are making different experiments, and I presume the conservative States will wait to see how these experiments work out. Occasionally, however, there crops out something extreme in the form of a judicial recall in a Constitution tendered to the Federal Government for approval. Under thoee conditions, when a proposition is made that seems to me to destroy all possibility of good government in the maintenance of an untrammeled judiciary, it is the function of the Executive when his judgment is invoked under the examination to say that he disapproves that feature, and that so far as he is concerned he will allow no State to come into the Union with any such radical heresy expressed in its Constitution, and with the sanction of the Federal Government upon it.

"My friends, I did not expect to make a political speech this afternoon. I want to thank the gentlemen present for their cordial expressions. What the future is I know not. I only know this—that I am going ahead to do the best I can, and I am going through this country on this trip and try to explain some of the issues which have arisen and make them clear to those people whom I can reach with my voice or through the kindly press if they report what I say—because I believe that the time has come for sober second thought.

"I have confidence that the American people can always be trusted, not only to exercise their second sober thought, but also a discriminating sense as to what is fact and what is fustian, after a time. It won't happen at once, and sometimes we have to wait for it until after we die, and that is not quite so satisfactory; but in any event, we middle-of-the-road people who are not extremists are, we believe, the real progressives, because you do not make progress by great strides—you make progress step by step.

"We can depend upon the people to recognize substance in progress rather than that which is represented by proposed legislation and platform declarations that are for the purpose, not of being put into force and into law to accomplish real reform, but for campaign uses only."

At a banquet of the Knights of Columbus to-night, President Taft took up the Philippine question. He said he might be accused of reviving a dead issue, but the issue could hardly be regarded as dead so long as the Democratic Party continued to write in its platform a declaration for the relinquishment of the islands, and so long as resolutions continue to be introduced in Congress looking to the relinquishment of the islands.

OLYMPIC PASSENGERS SUFFER IN FRANCE

thing was good enough for the time being.

"More trouble awaited us at the Saint Lazare Station to-day, when we claimed our baggage, the French officials refusing to deliver it without the receipt, which, of course, nobody could produce.

"Meanwhile we all had to buy under apparel and other necessities to go on with."

Among others whose tempers were upset was Charles Steele, who, when he got back to the Ritz early this morning, on being told that he could not have his usual suite, remarked that if the hotel did not want him he could easily go elsewhere, and he eventually succeeded in getting the management to arrange with the new occupants of his suite to give it up to him. Only a few were lucky enough to find berths at the Savoie.

Almost everybody was accommodated late to-night on various boats sailing between now and the middle of October. On the Amerika sail Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and children; Mrs. and Miss Elkins, and Col. S. T. Everit. The Majestic carries Mr. and Mrs. Dixon Ellis, Mrs. John W. Hollenbach and the Misses Hollenbach, Miss Grace Bradhurst, W. C. Brown and party, and Mr. and Mrs. James H. Cravens.

On the New York sail Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Penfield, who have two suites, and who will find great economy in the change of boat, as their accommodation on the Olympic cost $2,400, of which they were refunded $1,300, the difference in price; Mrs. Charles Willmot, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Ide and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Woodruff.

Mrs. and Miss M. Bourne obtained berths on the St. Louis, as did Mrs. C. W. Traver, C. Olsen, Mrs. Charles Oaks, S. B. Bertron, Mrs. C. C. Cuyler, and W. F. Phillips and party.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Waddell, Mrs. W. L. Ellinger, and Philip Rollins sail on the Cedric.

The Baltic takes Mrs. Daniel Manning, Livingston Fryer and party, and Mr. and Mrs. John Roger, Mrs. A. C. Lawrence, Mrs. and Miss Marion I. Higgins.

Mrs. Gibbs and Mrs. Brokaw found accommodations on the Noordam.

RIVALS AID WHITE STAR.

Offer All Their Unlet Berths to Olympic Passengers—1,000 Sailing.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—Everything possible is being done by the Atlantic shipping companies to help the White Star Line in its predicament caused by the Olympic collision. All the ten lines sailing on Sunday will carry refugees, they having been unanimous in offering their unlet berths the moment the accident became known, and in several cases those occupied by officers.

These offers have been gladly accepted by the White Star Company, with the result that close on a thousand of the marooned Olympic passengers will get away within the next forty-eight hours, the majority in second and third cabins, and about a hundred in the saloon.

There was a great rush to get on the Mauretania, sailing Saturday, but as vacant berths were exceedingly scarce on her, being confined to about thirty in the saloon, with none in the second and third cabins, they did not go far.

Advantage was taken of the keen demand to get aboard the Mauretania by a number of persons who had booked accommodations on her some time ago and who did not object to remaining over until a later date, provided they were well paid for surrendering their cabins.

At the Ritz to-day cabins were offered to several well-known Americans, including Harry Payne Whitney, C. W. Hamill, and H. W. Marsh, at fancy prices. Mr. Marsh told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that he had been offered and declined a small suite for £800, the owner of which had paid only £100.

Similar offers were made to Mr. Whitney and Mr. Hamill, with a like result. Mr. Whitney went to Paris to-night, while Mr. and Mrs. Hamill later obtained berths at a normal rate on the Mauretania.

Mr. Marsh sails by the Amerika next Friday.

A good story is going the rounds at the Ritz concerning the luck of George J. Gould, who, with Mrs. Gould, sailed by the Kaiser Wilhelm II. on Wednesday.

Fully fifty Americans left the hotel on Wednesday morning bound for New York, all but two going by the Olympic, the latter being Mr. Gould and his wife, who had booked by the German boat. Prior to sailing Mr. Gould was twitted by friends about the loneliness of the Kaiser Wilhelm II., but smilingly went his way, while the members of the little band who went on the Olympic were sending wireless messages the same night to the Ritz asking for rooms and begging the management to obtain steamship accommodation for them at any price at the earliest possible moment.

Among the prominent Americans who returned to the Ritz were Frank Munsey, who sails on the Mauretania tomorrow, and Harry Widener, who is returning on the same vessel with Joseph Widener.

Others who have so far obtained passages include Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Brown, W. B. Pollock, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Potter, L. A. Von Praag, Mr. and Mrs. James Harrington Walker, who sail on the Kronprinz Wilhelm next Wednesday; while sailing on the Victoria Luise on Sunday are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Simpson, Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Price, Mr. and Mrs. John McKenna, and Mrs. J. J. Havemeyer.

INSERT VETO JOKER IN CHARTER BILL

Amendment, Which Seems to Give Mayor Power, Discovered When Measure Is Reported.

LEAVES QUESTION IN DOUBT

Cullen-Foley Bill Will Come Up for Passage in the Senate on Wednesday Next—Seven New Offices Created.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 22.—The Cullen-Foley New York City Charter bill, with what its framers hope will be the final amendments to that measure, was reported in the Senate to-day by the Cities Committee. In the batch of amendments opponents of the bill thought they discovered one which by indirection might give the Mayor the power of absolute veto over subway franchises—if, as he insists, that power is his under the present Charter. Lawyers who examined the amendment in question declared that at least it would tend to becloud the question involved.

As far as could be learned at the Capitol, this amendment to the proposed Charter was made early to-day after Corporation Counsel Watson, who reached Albany last night, had a talk with some of the Charter framers. At any rate it did not come in for any mention in a statement covering the eleventh-hour changes made to placate the opposition which were announced on behalf of the Cities Committee of the Senate after its meeting yesterday afternoon.

The new amendment which has aroused such criticism did not occur in the chapter of the proposed Charter dealing with franchises, but in an out-of-the-way corner of the amended bill, near the end, where a large number of miscellaneous provisions are grouped under a separate title. It is an addition to Section 1,447 of the Cullen-Foley Charter bill and reads as follows:

> Notwithstanding the repeal by this act or any other act, any power now possessed by the Mayor, Controller, or Board of Estimate and Apportionment under the Greater New York Charter, as amended, in respect of franchises or contracts heretofore and hereafter granted or authorized, pursuant to the Rapid Transit act, shall continue in the Mayor, Controller, and Board of Estimate, respectively.

Mayor Gaynor has contended all along that the new Charter contained no provision giving him any veto power over franchises that he did not already possess under the existing Charter and the Rapid Transit act. On the other hand, opponents to the proposed new Charter in its original form where it contained explicit grants of absolute veto power to the Mayor, by requiring his "separate and additional approval" to render contracts for the operation of subways valid, have maintained that under the present Charter and the Rapid Transit act he did not possess any such powers. The question has never been thrashed out in court, however, and those who take exception to the clause slipped into the Cullen-Foley Charter bill this morning declare that with a Justice friendly to the interests that might benefit if the Mayor possessed such power, contracts for the operation of future subways might be held up indefinitely unless the Mayor had his way about them.

Critics of the transit veto provisions in the original Cullen-Foley Charter bill admit that if it were not for the addition to Section 1,447 the pledge that the provisions conferring on the Mayor the unprecedented grant of power involved in the "additional and separate approval" has been kept religiously by the Charter framers. But through the latest amendment, they declare, the question of the Mayor's power in such matters has again been left in doubt.

"I would not go as far as to say that this new amendment would have the effect of giving the Mayor an absolute veto over subway franchises," said Laurence A. Tanzer, Chairman of the Citizens' Union Charter Committee, when questioned on the subject this afternoon. "But it will have the effect of creating doubt where no doubt could exist (had it been left out) with reference to the intent of the Legislature as to the powers of the Mayor—should this Cullen-Foley Charter bill pass. At the best, the insertion of this saving clause will tend to becloud the issue and it could have been put in for no other reason."

When the Cities Committee of the Senate brought in its report this forenoon, one Republican member, Senator Eugene M. Travis of Kings, raised the question of whether the report ought to be received. This was on the ground that out of the fourteen members of the Senate Cities Committee only five had been present and voting at the meeting yesterday afternoon where it was decided to report it to the Senate.

Senator Fiero of Greene, a Democrat, was in the Chair and only a handful of members were in attendance, so Senator Travis did not press his protest, realizing that he was in for an adverse ruling from the Chair and with no possible show of being sustained in an appeal from the ruling. As it was, the amended Charter was received and sent to the printer, subject to the approval of the Senate, when it meets with a fuller attendance on next Wednesday.

It is proposed to pass the Cullen-Foley Charter bill in the upper house on that day. At the best, all Senator Travis could gain by his motion was delay. But it is understoid that Gov. Dix has promised to give the Democratic majority an emergency message urging the immediate passage of the Charter the moment it comes up for third reading. Under the circumstances the provision in the legislative law requiring bills to be in printed form in members' files three days before brought up for final passage would be set at naught and the Senator's motion would become ineffective.

In the latest set of amendments to the Cullen-Foley bill at least seven new important jobs have been created. These are an extra Deputy Fire Chief for Brooklyn and six Deputy Tax Commissioners, with salaries to be fixed by the Mayor.

The Charter framers have made a good clean job of the revision of the Civil Service chapter, which in its amended form effectively restores supervision over the New York City Commission by the State Civil Service Commission. In the educational chapter they have made a change which would abolish the existing board in favor of the Gaynor board of fourteen unpaid members and a paid President on the last day of the month during which the new Charter takes effect, instead of on Dec. 31 of this year, as originally provided in the Cullen-Foley Charter bill.

CITY CLUB FINDS JOKERS.

This Charter, President Strong Says, Is a Ripper Bill, and Worst of All.

President Charles H. Strong of the City Club issued a statement yesterday to point out "jokers," which, he says, are still in the new city Charter. He thinks the rapid transit provision makes the amended Charter "a ripper bill beside which others remain pale into insignificance," and adds:

"But the budgetary provisions of the proposed Charter, on which no important concession has been made, are second only in importance. The packing of the Board of Estimate with the Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen, his mandatory membership on the Budget Committee, and the Mayor's power of appointment of three other members, provide the machinery by which the minority of the board may make the city budget. No proper machinery for budget-making is provided; the Mayor is granted the power of veto over specific items after controlling the make-up of the Budget Committee, and the board is given just five days in which to reconsider such vetoes, and limited to one vote.

"The political animus of these changes is the elimination of the President of the Board of Aldermen from participation in budget-making. It has been extremely uncomfortable to the heads of some departments to have their preliminary estimates submitted to the searching scrutiny of a former Commissioner of Account.

"Why should the Board of Estimate have taken away from it the power to appoint its own consulting engineer? And what has happened to the board's Bureau of Franchises, which is not mentioned anywhere?

"The provisions still left in this proposed Charter cripple the best instrument we have yet devised for directing the policy of our city government, and reverses the tendency of every proposed Charter except this one, of a further concentration of directoral functions in the board.

"The fact that this is now the fifth draft of a proposed city Charter this year is ample evidence of its shifting political and compromise nature. Not to leave any one in doubt on this point, however, the revisers have slipped into this last draft a new batch of 'jokers' of which I will specify some:

That Street Cleaning Department employes may be retired at the age of 55, (Section 1,043.) The Mayor refused to sign the Street Cleaning Pension bill this year until the limit was increased to 60 years.

That if any newspaper refuses to print legal notices at the rate of 16 cents a line, the Mayor may designate a newspaper notwithstanding the provisions of the statute governing publication of legal notices, which are no part of the Mayor's duties. (Section 1,128.)

That the Mayor may designate a weekly law journal for the publication of legal notices. (Section 1,128.) We have been able to discover no weekly law journal in the city, but there is a monthly known as Bench and Bar, of which the present Corporation Counsel was formerly editor and President. Is Bench and Bar to become a weekly?

That the Mayor shall designate the newspapers in which licensed auctioneers shall advertise, (Section 1,129.) At present auctioneers advertise in such papers as they deem best suited to reach possible customers.

That Condemnation Commissioners may be paid $20 a day instead of $10, (Sections 1,320, 1,362, 1,381.)

That street cleaning contracts shall not be terminable after three years, (Section 1,032.) The provision that they should be so terminable was inserted only last year, and was meant to prevent the possibility of an outgoing administration tying the hands of an incoming administration by unbreakable five-year contracts.

That inspection of city records shall be accorded only to taxpayers, and by omitting the word "county" before "records," destroying by implication the right of inspection of county records by anybody. (Section 221.)

That contributions shall be made apparently forever to the volunteer firemen's funds in Queens, Brooklyn, and Richmond, (Section 740.) By an act passed in 1907, these contributions were to cease in all boroughs in 1917. This provision is retained as to Manhattan and the Bronx, and purposely omitted with reference to the other three boroughs.

"The best that can be said for this latest draft is that the proposed Charter is not so vicious as it was before. But it neither embodies any consistent plan of City Government, nor does it incorporate changes agreed upon by all former Charter Revision Commissions, like the abolition of the office of Elective Coroner.

"From a legal point of view nothing is to be gained by its adoption. It is not a complete document for the Government of the City of New York, but must still be construed with reference to the consolidation act, to Chapter 618 of the laws of 1906, and to many other laws by implication. Nor does one yet know that the Controller's auditing power has been really restored. Lastly, it is still a formidable ripper bill in its provisions for:

Making the city budget.

Packing the membership of the Board of Estimate.

Superintendents of hospitals appointed by the Mayor for a Board of Trustees deprived of the power of appointment or removal.

As such ripper bill the City Club urges continued opposition to this proposed charter, and earnestly requests its defeat by the Legislature.

Lawrence A. Tanzer, Chairman of the Charter Committee of the Citizens' Union, also found certain drawbacks in the amended charter. He says: "One of the most important duties which the President of the Board of Aldermen was elected to perform was to act as Mayor during the absence or disability of the Mayor. This power is substantially taken away from him by Section 191 of the Cullen-Foley Charter, empowering the Mayor to appoint an Acting Mayor during his disability or absence. The original draft provided that he might make this appointment for not exceeding sixty days. The latest amendments pretend to limit this power by providing that the person designated shall act as Mayor for not exceeding forty consecutive days or more than sixty days in a calendar year. But this limitation is more illusory than real, because it limits, not the time for which the Mayor may exercise his power, but the time during which the particular person appointed by him may act as Mayor.

"Another amendment is calculated to clip the wings of the President of the Board of Aldermen if, by any chance, he becomes acting Mayor. Under the present Charter (section 23) he becomes acting Mayor immediately upon the happening of the Mayor's disability or absence, with all the powers of the Mayor, excepting that he may not exercise the power of appointment or removal until the disability or absence shall have continued thirty days, or act upon any ordinance or resolution until it shall have continued for nine days; so that thirty days after the disability or absence of the Mayor commences the President of the Board of Aldermen has all the powers of Mayor, without exception.

"This latest change not only makes the 'ripper' features of the bill worse than before, but might operate to paralyze the city government. If a Mayor who has designated a substitute should be sick for forty days and the term of the substitute (who has not the power of appointment or removal) should expire at the end of the forty days, the President of the Board of Aldermen would then become acting Mayor; but he could not exercise the power of appointment or removal until thirty days more had elapsed, so that a period of seventy days would pass, during which there would be no one who could make an appointment to fill a vacancy or remove a dishonest or incompetent officer."

WILSON STIRS LACKAWANNA.

W. H. Truesdale to Meet New Jersey Labor Commissioner on Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 22.—Prompted by a letter received from Gov. Wilson, who suggested that he had heard the complaints of the striking trackmen and believed they had a just grievance, Commissioner Lewis T. Bryant of the Department of Labor to-day arranged with William H. Truesdale, President of the Lackawanna Railroad, for a conference in New York next Monday afternoon to consider the differences existing between the company and its employes.

Prior to communicating with Mr. Truesdale, Commissioner Bryant talked over the telephone with the New York Department of Labor and was informed that the railroad company had positively refused to treat with anybody regarding the strike. The officials had replied to the New York department, it was said, that the questions involved were ones of railroad discipline, a subject which the company preferred to handle without outside interference.

SCRANTON, Penn., Sept. 22.—The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Company, determined to break the strike of its section hands, began to-day the distribution from here of forces of strikebreakers. They came largely from New York and Hoboken, and were sent to the Bloomsburg, Buffalo, and Scranton Divisions of the road.

"In the last two days a number of section men who had temporarily suspended work have resumed their duties, and while some others have for the time being stopped work, the total number on duty is considerably greater to-day than it was three days ago. The so-called strike is not interfering in the slightest degree with the punctual movement of the trains. The track is being inspected and kept in repair over every mile of the system, and there is every reason to be confident that in a few days all of the men whom the company is willing to take back will be at work."

Suit Against Rubber Company Fails.

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—Stillman Shaw and Warren B. Wheeler of the North American Rubber Company, who were arrested last Spring on complaint of using the mails illegally, were discharged by United States Commissioner Hayes to-day. The prosecution failed to substantiate a charge that in selling stock the defendants had misrepresented the condition of their company.

CONTORTIONIST FEAT OF BRAVE POLICEMAN

DEATH NEARLY HAD HIM

Rescuer Might Have Been Caught Under Wheels a Moment Later—Spectators Will Write to Waldo.

It needed a contortionist to save seven-year-old Herman Lorenson of 305 East Eighty-third Street from being ground under the wheels of a Second Avenue car at Eighty-third Street last night, and it so happened that a tall, slim, young policeman presented himself—John J. Murphy by name—from the East Eighty-eighth Street Station. Murphy has often amused his fellow-policemen by twisting his body in the station house, and now he may win an official commendation from the department, if witnesses of his feat last night do as they said they would and write to Police Commissioner Waldo.

The Lorenson boy had been sent with a few pennies for some school supplies. He was hurrying across the avenue and did not see an approaching north-bound Second Avenue car. He crossed the tracks, but the car grazed him and knocked him down in the path of a south-bound car which was coming along at a fast clip in charge of George Farrell. The motorman was not able to stop the car before the front fender had struck the boy. The outer fender jammed the boy beneath it. In theory the outer fender should automatically release a second fender, which should pick up any object struck by the first one. But the first fender failing to act according to theory, the second fender failed to act also.

This was where Murphy came in. He had seen the boy struck by the first car and knew that the second car would surely hit him. As the north-bound car flashed by, the policeman saw the little fellow being dragged along the pavement by the fender of the south-bound car.

He jumped on the running board of the car, got one foot on the bumper, crooked his leg around one of the supporting bars of the open car, gripped a stanchion with his left hand and reached down. He made a grab with his right hand almost under the vestibule of the car and caught the slack in the clothes of young Lorenson just as the latter was dragged clear of the first fender on the east side and was within an ace of being ground under the wheels of the forward truck of the car.

Murphy had not strength enough to pull the youngster up with him, but he threw him out of harm's way. The feat left him breathless, and he fell forward on his face by the side of the car an instant before the motorman brought it to a stop.

The whole affair was over in a few seconds. The car had gone probably ten feet from the time it struck the boy. When Motorman Farrell stopped the car he was unnerved, but several passengers who had witnessed the accident jumped off and went to the policeman and the lad.

As soon as Murphy could regain his breath he said:

"Never mind me. Look after the kid."

He was helped to his feet. His uniform was torn and he has several contusions and bruises, but he walked to a drug store and summoned an ambulance for the boy.

Dr. Devan came from the Reception Hospital and found that young Lorenson had received lacerations of the face and nose, and possibly internal injuries. He was taken to the hospital, but his condition is not regarded as serious.

FISH NO LONGER INSTRUCTOR

Son of Hamilton Fish Resigns Position at Harvard University.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 22.—Hamilton Fish, Jr., will not fulfill his duties as assistant instructor in government at Harvard this Fall. The Harvard Corporation has received his resignation and has accepted it.

Young Fish, who captained the 1909 eleven, and last year was a student in the Harvard Law School, is a son of Senator Hamilton Fish. The young man sailed from Cherbourg, France, this week after a Summer spent abroad.

Interparliamentary Union Postponed.

Congressman Jefferson M. Levy received yesterday a cable from Congressman Bartholdt, who is in Rome, saying that the Interparliamentary Union at Rome had been postponed until next year. Mr. Levy had intended to sail next week to participate in the conference.

LAURIER TO FACE VOTE IN NEW HOUSE

ONLY THEN TO RESIGN

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Sept. 22.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in spite of an opposition majority of forty-nine in the Parliament elected yesterday, has determined to meet the House under the constitutional law of England, which also applies to Canada. The Government after a general election has the option, if defeated at the polls, of resigning or of meeting the new House of Commons and demanding a vote on the issue of the day. On this question of reciprocity, many of those who have been elected as supporters of the Opposition, in particular the Nationalists of Quebec, are decidedly in favor of reciprocity.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has decided not to resign on the strength of mere newspaper reports, but to challenge a vote in the House of Commons. He will allow R. L. Borden to suggest the name of the Speaker, over which there will be no contest, but on the motion to adjourn, which will be moved by Mr. Borden, Sir Wilfrid Laurier will move an amendment declaring that the House is in favor of reciprocity.

Upon the vote on this action he will stand or fall. In the meantime Sir Wilfrid Laurier will remain as the head of the Government, and will call Parliament to meet in his capacity as Prime Minister.

This programme has the authority of the British Parliament, although the practice of late years in the British Parliament has been for the Prime Minister to resign before the meeting of Parliament in case he is convinced that the country has gone against him. But the rigid constitutional rule is that a Government is not defeated unless a roll of the members of the House of Commons shows that the Government of the day is in a minority. As before stated, Sir Wilfrid Laurier intends to retain his position as head of the Government unless the voice of Parliament dictates on an open vote that he has no longer the confidence of the Parliament of Canada.

This means that Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Liberal Government, of which he is the head, will remain in power with the consent of the Governor General, which is indispensable, for at least another three months.

Sir Wilfrid, accompanied by Dr. Beland, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, arrived in Ottawa from Quebec to-night. Many of the other members are expected here to-morrow.

Robert L. Borden, the victorious Conservative leader, is expected here Sunday to be ready to receive the Governor General's summons and to begin selecting the Cabinet which will take the place of the Laurier government.

Prime Minister—R. L. Borden.
Trade and Commerce—H. B. Ames or Sir M. Bowell.
Secretary of State—Hon. L. P. Pelletier or H. B. Ames.
Marine—Dr. Reid or A. S. Goodeve.
Agriculture—A. Broder or R. S. Lake.
Finance—G. M. Perley or E. B. Osler.
Railways and Canals—E. B. Osler or H. B. Ames.
Interior—C. A. Magrath or Hon. R. McBride.
Militia—Lieut. Col. Hughes or Major Sharpe.
Customs—Hon. G. E. Foster.
Inland Revenue—R. Forget or Dr. Reid.
Labor—Judge Doherty or J. Stanfield.
Solicitor General—O. S. Crocket or E. N. Rhodes.

BORDEN THANKS LIBERALS.

Put National Issue Above Party, Says Canadian Leader.

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, Sept. 22.—"The thanks of the country are due those strong Liberals who placed the great National issue above all considerations of party allegiance and whose untiring efforts contributed in marked degree to the splendid result accomplished."

This was the declaration made to-day by R. L. Borden, the Conservative leader and prospective Premier, in summing up yesterday's election. "The election of 1878," added Mr. Borden, "was accomplished by the aid of earnest men of both political parties and the victory of 1911 is even more notable, as it was achieved in the same way."

Last night Mr. Borden had said:

"In rejecting reciprocity Canada has simply affirmed her adherence to a policy of National development which she has pursued for many years. The Government, without mandate from the people, undertook to reverse that policy and upon submitting their action to the people was defeated.

"The verdict was in no wise dictated by any spirit of unfriendliness to the great neighboring republic. No such spirit exists. It is my conception that friendly relations can best be maintained if each country preserves complete and entire control over its own tariff and enters into no entangling agreements which might impair and affect that control."

Mr. Borden declined to discuss in any way the probable make-up of the Conservative Cabinet. During the early hours to-day he received a flood of congratulatory telegrams from all parts of Canada. Later he left for Grand Pre, N. S., to visit his mother. On the way to the railway station his fellow-Conservatives joined and made him the centre of an enthusiastic demonstration. Mr. Borden plans to go to Ottawa to-morrow.

Within a short time a conference of Conservative leaders will be held either in this city or Ottawa for the purpose of considering the construction of a Cabinet and to decide upon the exact lines to be followed in assuming command of the Government.

FREE PULP ZONE ENLARGED.

Canadian Action Admits All "Favored Nations," Says Norris.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—John Norris, Chairman of the Committee on Paper of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, to-day issued a statement showing that the defeat in Canada of the reciprocity agreement has expanded the free zone for pulps and paper so as to include all of the favored nations. His statement follows:

"Canada's rejection of reciprocity raises a question with respect to the favored nation treaties that is unique. Unlike the items contained in Section 1 of the Reciprocity bill, the paper and pulp clause, which was Section 2, abolished the duty on Canadian pulps and paper subject only to a condition precedent that the pulps and paper must be made from unrestricted woods.

"Section 1 could not go into effect until Canada took reciprocity action, but Section 2 became effective July 26, when the President signed the Reciprocity bill. Canada's vote of rejection will make Section 1 ineffective, but it will not impair the pulp and paper section, which cannot be nullified except by a repealing act of the American Congress, and such repeal is highly improbable.

"The importers of pulps and paper from Germany, Norway, and Sweden claim that under the favored nation treaty the products of these countries are entitled to the treatment that Canada obtains when the pulps and paper are made from unrestricted woods, and that the tariff on those articles is automatically abolished under like conditions. Treasury Department officials say no similar case has ever arisen in this country."

IMPERIALISTS TRIUMPHANT.

Those in England Hail Canada's Action as Defeat of United States.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON Sept. 22.—"The great triumph of imperialism" is the note on which the Conservative press in London is ringing the changes in its comments on the Canadian election results and the signal defeat of reciprocity. Joseph Chamberlain has issued a message congratulating Canada on "the repudiation of the reciprocity agreement" with the United States, and declaring that the "victory in favor of imperial preference is most satisfactory." Other apostles of British tariff reform, which is almost entirely dependent on the policy of preferential agreements with colonies, hail the Canadian action as likely to hasten the triumph of that policy.

"Reciprocity is dead and damned," cries The Pall Mall Gazette, which adds: "Canada's decision will ring like a clarion through the empire to rouse the energies of the imperialists on every side. The American conspiracy, for we can give it no other name, was astute and subtle. It addressed itself cunningly to everything that was sordid, selfish, and short sighted among particular interests in the Dominion."

The Daily Mail also flaunts the imperialistic flag. It says:

"From the unexpected reaction in the Dominion against reciprocity it is clear to us that Canadians have been alarmed by the utterances of statesmen and newspapers in the United States. So long as reciprocity was merely a commercial bargain they were ready to look at it, but when American publicists informed them it was a prelude to annexation, they shook their heads and clenched their teeth."

The Daily Mail quotes President Taft, Speaker Champ Clark, and The New York American to prove that annexation was the ultimate object of American ambitions, and concludes that Canada has definitely set her head against a union with the United States.

The London Times is much more restrained and does not directly say that the policy of the Washington Administration tended toward ultimate annexation of or union with Canada, but suggests something like this when it concludes:

"The Canadians proved yesterday, as they have often proved in the past, that the nation created by the British North America act will continue to be what its framers desired and labored for, and what its own historic title implies."

The Liberal papers do not agree that the verdict of this election proves as much as their Unionist contemporaries claim.

"No rational mind," says The Daily News, "will take the result as something of tragic moment in the history of the British Empire. It will mean temporarily the end of reciprocity, and, since anti-American appeals were one of the favorite electioneering tricks, for a brief space a slight straining of Canadian-American intimacy. In the long run, however, the election may well prove the salvation of the low tariff and free trade cause in Canada."

"The reciprocity agreement is, of course, killed, and with it, for some years at least, the likelihood of any movement for a renewal. It was the fruit of a spontaneous offer by the United States which is not likely to be renewed now, but it is not so certain that this election will deprive the Canadian farmer of the great American market which he saw opening before him. That is not in the power of Ontario to decide. It rests with the American electors. President Taft's object in proposing the agreement was to do something to lower prices in the United States, especially in view of the coming Presidential election. The scheme failed, and with it the prospects of Democratic victory next year increased. If the Democrats should win, they cannot but take large steps toward lowering the tariff, and in one direction the frustrated reciprocity proposals already point the way."

RECIPROCITY'S FALL SENDS FOOD COST UP

cents above yesterday's prices.

Oats closed 1¼ to 2 cents higher than yesterday.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 22.—Cash Spring wheat sold on the Omaha market to-day at 99 cents a bushel, 3 cents above yesterday's close. No. 2 hard was quoted as high as $1 a bushel, but actual sales were not reported above 97 cents. Yesterday's close was at 96 cents.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 22.—That Winnipeg will not have for its wheat the market that the reciprocity treaty, if adopted, might have opened up, was felt bitterly by the local bulls to-day. October, which closed yesterday at $1, opened to-day at 90 cents, and was later sold at 98⅞ and 98¾ cents.

As a direct result of the defeat of the reciprocity measure in Canada, there was a wild flurry yesterday in the local wheat market and a perpendicular advance of 3⅝c per bushel. December sold at $1.05, and closed at $1.04⅝.

Traders were entirely unprepared for such action, the opinion having quite generally prevailed that the measure would be adopted, in which case a much lower market was expected with the increased amount of wheat available from Canadian sources. The short interest was large, and made vigorous efforts to cover all day.

GOOD WORDS FOR DR. DOTY.

American Hospital Association Elects Dr. Henry M. Hurd President.

The American Hospital Association closed its annual session at the Murray Hill Hotel yesterday. After the addresses came the election of officers. Detroit, Mich., will be the next meeting place, and the time set is Sept. 24, 25, 26, and 27. The new officers are:

Good words for Dr. Alvah H. Doty were spoken by several hospital heads. Said Dr. A. S. Kavanagh, in the course of his address yesterday afternoon:

"Dr. Doty and his assistants are deserving of much credit for their admirable fight against cholera that a few months ago threatened the city. It should be the shame of all citizens to remember the humiliating investigation to which the doctor has been subjected. Reckless and semi-political attacks on the good name of a public servant should not be tolerated."

DR. GILL SUGGESTS SUICIDE

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 22.—Charles W. Allen, a wealthy manufacturer of Kenosha, Wis., and brother of Nathan Allen, whose name has been linked with that of Mrs. Helen Dwelle Jenkins, resulting in his indictment for smuggling the woman's jewels through the New York Custom House, met with a mysterious death this afternoon. He either fell from a window of the Palmer House, State and Monroe Streets, as the result of excitement due to an alarm of fire in the neighborhood, or threw himself from the window to an inside court with the purpose of self-destruction. Which of these theories is correct the police are now trying to determine.

Mr. Allen occupied a room on the fourth floor of the Palmer House. He was killed some time between 2 and 4 o'clock, but his body was not discovered until 5 o'clock. Near where the body was found in a court was a cane-bottomed chair that is supposed to have fallen through the window with Allen.

Dr. P. M. Gill, house physician at the Palmer House, after viewing the body and interrogating the employes gave it as his opinion that Allen committed suicide. The window in Allen's room overlooking the court was open, and there is, of course, the possibility that he might have fallen out of the window while sitting in a tilted chair. Allen arrived at the hotel on Thursday evening. He had been in the habit of visiting Chicago about once a week. He was 60 years old and appeared to be in robust health at the time he registered. After his body was found it was recalled that he had not been seen around the hotel during the day.

Joseph Hyne, a bell boy, told the police that he was summoned to Allen's room shortly after 3 o'clock and delivered a pitcher of ice water. At that time the window was partly open and Allen was sitting in a chair tilted against the sill. He said that as he left the room he heard a noise.

The window ledge is only 18 inches above the floor, and this lends color to the theory that the death was accidental.

Charles Allen is credited with having received from Mrs. Helen D. Jenkins bonds and other securities of a value of $125,000 that had been given to her by his brother, Nathan, now living at Kenosha in close retirement. Charles is credited with having obtained from his brother, Nathan, power of attorney and with having been placed in possession of the key to a safety deposit box held in common with Nathan and Mrs. Jenkins, and thus prepared went to the safe deposit vaults and took possession of the securities and other contents.

Unsuccessful attempts were made by the police to find Nathan Allen in Chicago to-night to notify him of his brother's death. At the hotel where he usually stops it was said that he was in New York.

KENOSHA, Wis., Sept. 22.—Charles W. Allen, found dead in Chicago late to-day, was well known and popular here. He was 60 years old. With Nathan Allen, he owned large manufacturing properties and was rated very high. He is survived by a widow and three children, who reside here.

REORGANIZATION PLAN FAILS.

Commissioner Maltbie Refuses to Consider Method Urged for 28th St. Line.

Julius M. Mayer appeared yesterday as counsel for Receiver Joseph B. Mayer before Public Service Commissioner Maltbie to present a plan for the reorganization of the Twenty-eighth Street Crosstown line. He said that when the bondholders took over the road they found it was practically without funds or equipment, and that they were obliged to pay an assessment to get it into condition for operation even by horse cars.

At the present time it has outstanding $1,500,000 bonds, capital stock of a nominal value of $1,500,000, and a note for $500,000. It was suggested that the Third Avenue Railway Company, which is now operating the line, should purchase from the Bondholders' Committee bonds of the nominal value of between $751,000 and $1,500,000 at 30 per cent. of their par value, and pay all the costs and outlay of the bondholders since they took over the road. Then, he said, the present compnay would be reorganized or a new company formed with a capital stock of $500,000 and an issue of $1,000,000 bonds authorized, of which $500,000 should be exchanged for the bonds of the present company.

Commissioner Maltbie refused to consider this plan, as altogether too indefinite. He was willing, he said, to keep the proceeding alive, and if the Bondholders' Committee submitted data of the value of the property, the commission might be willing to express an informal opinion as to the amount of capital it would authorize for the reorganized concern. The hearing was adjourned till Sept. 29.

KIMMEL FAILS IN TEST.

Does Not Recognize Familiar Objects in Mrs. Kimmel's Home.

Special to The New York Times.

NILES, Mich., Sept. 22.—The man who still persists in claiming himself to be George A. Kimmel, despite the fact that practically everybody in this city has decided that he is an impostor, submitted to the supreme test to-day and lost.

He visited the old Kimmel home, the place where George A. Kimmel was born, and where his childhood and young manhood was passed. He utterly failed to convince Mrs. Estelle Kimmel that he was her son, and left the premises in a huff, declaring that he was through with her.

Mrs. Kimmel had sent word that she desired him to visit her at the old home on Hickory Street, which was opened for the occasion. He at first refused to submit to the test, and it was only after it appeared that his benefactors would abandon him that he consented. Mr. Fox drove him to the Kimmel home, and he was closeted with Mrs. Estelle Kimmel for more than three hours.

The ordeal unnerved him. He stalked through the house without remarking any object that ought to be familiar to him. Finally he entered the woodshed.

"This step is new," he said; "the old one was much wider."

Mrs. Kimmel said it was the same step on which her son had trod. He entered the kitchen.

"I see you have a new range since I was here," he said. The range, Mrs. Kimmel says, is one that her son bought and gave her the last year he was at home.

Mrs. Kimmel conducted him to the parlor. She asked him to observe a crayon of domestic horses. Mrs. Kimmel, who is an artist, had drawn the picture herself, and her son had bought the frame for it and was present at the time the picture was drawn.

"Did I draw that picture?" he asked.

"Did you draw it?" the aged woman echoed.

"Yes; and I recall how you and Edna criticised it," he answered.

Mrs. Kimmel did not disillusion him. She led him to another crayon portrait of George A. Kimmel that she had copied when her son was twenty-one years old. He failed utterly to recognize it. In one corner of the room stood a little marble statuette. It was bought by George A. Kimmel, and ornamented his room at Arkansas City at the time he disappeared. It was the only article sent to his mother. She called the attention of her visitor to it. He said he had never seen it before.

STREET SINKS UNDER HER.

Woman Waiting for a Car Calls for Help—Water Main Had Burst.

Patrolman Wagner of the Alexander Avenue Station was standing at 149th Street and Third Avenue last night when a well-dressed woman, who was standing by the side of the tracks waiting for a car, called to him:

"Officer, I'm sinking!"

As she spoke there was a miniature geyser from the surface of the street which had dropped a couple of feet. Wagner went to her aid and she escaped with wet shoes and stockings.

The Department of Water Supply was communicated with, and for twenty-five minutes, until the emergency crew arrived, the water continued to play, and the surface cars were stopped. Then the water was cut off at the main, but not until the street was well flooded.

One man, who said he was Jonas Weiner of 777 Hewitt Place, was crossing the street at the time the geyser first shot up. He got wet from head to foot, and he said a ball dress belonging to his sister, which he was carrying, was ruined by the water.

There was a bad break in the water main, which was repaired only a week ago after it had burst.

16 BUILDING TRADES STRIKE

In Sympathy with the Marble Workers—General Lockout May Follow.

The first general sympathetic strike in support of the marble workers, who are on strike on sixty buildings in this city, took place yesterday afternoon at the New Vanderbilt Hotel, Fourth Avenue and Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Streets, 500 men in sixteen trades quitting work. The strike was declared by the Board of Business Agents of the Building Trades Council. Among the trades affected are the painters, steamfitters, waterproofers, plumbers, carpenters, tile layers, electricians, and ornamental kalamine and iron workers. The Ajev Company has the general contract for the building.

The Marble Industry Employers' Association had put men on a number of buildings in the places of the striking marble setters, and new marble workers were put yesterday morning in the places of strikers at the Vanderbilt Hotel. This building, which has twenty-four stories, was selected by the unions for a sympathetic strike because it was to be opened in October and was being hurried along to completion.

The strike of these trades may lead to a general lockout of the unions they represent by the associated employers, where such unions have agreements with the trade associations of employers which the strike violates. The Emergency Committee of the Building Trades Employers' Association will take action on the matter to-day.

HER JEWELS STOLEN IN LONDON HOTEL

Mrs. Myers Believes She Was Trailed from New York by a Clever Gang.

LOST $10,000 AFTER DINNER

Two Versons of How the Theft Was Effected, but Her Brother Believes That She Was Drugged.

Followed abroad, shadowed from one city to another through Europe, and robbed of jewelry worth $10,000 and $400 cash in London is the experience of Mrs. Anna E. Myers, a widow, living at the Bretton Hall, this city. Mrs. Myers got home last night on the White Star liner Celtic still much excited over the robbery. Because of her experience she cut short her stay on the other side and hastened home.

Mrs. Myers sailed for Europe on Aug. 12 on the Lapland. On the voyage she was introduced, she says, to a charming man whose name was given as Constantine von Rosenburg. He came from Cuba, where, he said, he was interested in a sugar plantation. As Mrs. Myers had recently returned from a visit to Havana, she and her traveling companion found an interesting subject in common. Rosenburg was attentive to her on the voyage.

When they landed at Antwerp, Mrs. Myers discharged the maid who had journeyed with her from New York, and traveled to Paris alone. Soon after her arrival Rosenburg appeared and their ship-board acquaintance was renewed.

After a brief stay in France Mrs. Myers went to London and there registered at the Cecil. Presently Rosenburg arrived in London. Mrs. Myers had placed her jewelry in care of the hotel people and with it $1,000, the amount of a check she had just cashed.

On the evening of Sept. 12, as she intended to go to the theatre, Mrs. Myers took from the hotel strong box several articles of jewelry which she intended to wear and $400. One article was a ring which she valued at $5,000. Another piece she valued at $2,000. There were also several small pieces.

There are two versions of what happened after that. Mrs. Myers's brother said last night she lost her jewelry in the grillroom of the hotel where she had dined with Rosenburg and a companion, and that she discovered her loss after the meal.

According to the other version Mrs. Myers was the victim of an assault in her suite. She had gone there after dinner with a woman and her male companion. She was assaulted by the man while his confederate got away with the jewel bag and the money. Both succeeded in making their escape. Her brother said he believed Mrs. Myers had been drugged. As soon as she recovered she raised an outcry and the hotel people advised that she notify the police. This was done, and it is said the police on this side have been notified to look out for the thieves.

The robbery became public when the Celtic arrived last night. Before sailing Mrs. Myers registered with the Custom House her jewelry and other articles she was taking abroad, setting their value at $30,000. Customs Inspector Paul Miller, who was assigned to examine her baggage, found that the gems she brought back did not tally with those she had taken abroad. He questioned her, and she reluctantly told of having been robbed. The matter, she said, had been reported to Scotland Yard, and she had been warned not to make it public.

Mrs. Myers believes that she was the victim of a well-laid plot, which had its beginning even before she sailed from this port. She believes that she was shadowed by a gang of three or more persons, and that her jewelry was passed along, while those immediately concerned in the actual theft made their escape.

EDISON IN BERLIN.

Inventor Upset by Killing of Child by Auto, but in Better Health.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 22.—Thomas A. Edison arrived in Berlin last night by motor from Dresden. Mr. Edison will remain here, revisiting familiar scenes and old friends, until Sept. 27, when he will sail for New York from Hamburg aboard the Amerika.

The inventor, who is occupying one of the royal suites at the Hotel Adlon, has declined a number of invitations to honor him publicly and intends to put in his time resting for the ocean trip. He is considerably upset by the motor accident in which his car killed a child near Nuremberg early this week, but declares that he feels himself otherwise much improved by his European outing.

The great German electric works have organized special trips of inspection for Mr. Edison's benefit. He is meeting here Sigmund Bergmann, his old-time associate at Menlo Park, who is now President of one of the largest and most successful German electrical companies, and manufactures practically all Edison's patents in this country.

NO QUEENSTOWN TRAINS.

Americans Marooned There, but Irish Railway Strike Is Not General.

DUBLIN, Sept. 22.—The railway men in three stations at Belfast joined the general strike to-night and the movement is extending in other directions, but the attempt of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants to bring about a national strike has failed. All the railway companies are maintaining a more or less restricted service, but traffic on the Cork, Youghal and Queenstown sections is entirely suspended.

Lord Aberdeen, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, arrived here to-night and is cooperating with the Board of Trade representative, Mr. Mitchell, in an attempt to reconcile the differences between the railways and their employes. The manager of the Great Southern Railway threatens that unless the Government affords his company efficient military protection he will close down the railway altogether.

Only about thirty of the local staff of the Great Northern Railway responded to the call, and the locomotive men of the Midland Great Western refused to quit. The trains of the Great Northern system were being operated as usual to-day. The strike on the Great Southern and Western Railway continues to be the mainstay of the general movement. Queenstown has been cut off from railway communication with the interior.

The fact that the executives of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants are Englishmen has not tended to make the strike order popular among Irishmen.

QUEENSTOWN, Sept. 22.—Two hundred passengers, some of whom came on the White Star steamer Cedric from New York last night and others on the same company's steamer Arabic from Boston to-day, are stranded here unable to reach their destinations because of the general strike on the Irish railways called by the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants last night.

The city is practically isolated from the land side. The railway officials stated that no trains would arrive at or leave Queenstown to-day, and that they did not know when they would be able to resume operations. Not even the mails can be dispatched.

LAUNCH BIG FRENCH SHIP.

Jean Bart First of Six Projected Super-Dreadnoughts.

BREST, France, Sept. 22.—The Jean Bart, the new French warship of the "super-dreadnought" class, was successfully launched to-day. The Bart and the Courbet will form the first two of the six battleships projected in 1910.

The Jean Bart has a displacement of 23,467 tons, and with engines of 28,000 horse power is expected to show a speed of 20 knots an hour. The armament consists of twelve 12-inch guns in six turrets and twenty-four 5.6-inch guns. When ready for sea the vessel will have cost $12,400,000. The Courbet will be of similar equipment and cost.

STOLYPIN'S SLAYER TO DIE.

Bogroff Is Court-Martialed and Sentenced to be Hanged.

KIEV, Russia, Sept. 22.—Dmitry Bogroff, the assassin of Premier Stolypin, was tried to-day by court-martial and sentenced to death by hanging. Bogroff shot M. Stolypin a week ago last Thursday night during a gala performance of the opera, and the Premier succumbed to the wound last Monday night.

The Emperor Nicholas, the heir apparent, and the Grand Duchesses Olga, Tatiana, Marie, and Anastasia, who occupied the imperial box, witnessed the shooting. Bogroff is about 24 years old and a graduate of Kiev University. He was a member of the secret police and also a revolutionist, and is said to have been given the task of killing the Premier by the revolutionary organization.

The funeral of Premier Stolypin was held to-day in the Pechersky Monastery and was the occasion for universal mourning. Deputations came to Kiev from all parts of the empire to attend the ceremony and laid over 200 wreaths on the catafalque. The service began at 10 o'clock this morning and with the funeral orations lasted until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

During the day numerous subscriptions were received toward the erection of a National monument to M. Stolypin. On it will be inscribed the words he uttered in the Duma:

New Zealand-Canada Mail Service.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Sept. 22.—Parliament to-day empowered the Government to establish in conjunction with Canada a mail service between Auckland, New South Wales, and Vancouver, B. C., providing for the receipt and dispatch of mails once in every four weeks.

All these books were issued by the great publishing house of A. & C. Black, of Edinburgh. They are genuine works of travel and description by authors whose title to write about the various countries is unquestioned. Whatever is of interest you will find discussed in an able and entertaining manner. The history of the country; its scenery; its people; their progress; their standing in respect to civilization, art and philosophy—all these subjects are treated in a most interesting manner, made doubly instructive by the wonderful pictures which carry the reader to the very heart of the country itself. One seems actually to see the different types of people and the conditions under which they live.

There are from 50 to 100 colored illustrations of the highest order in each volume. All are marvelous examples of fine color-printing.

Our fortunate purchase of these books was made under EXCEPTIONAL circumstances—of which YOU may now share with us the GREAT ADVANTAGE.

If possible, by all means VISIT OUR BIG BOOK STORE and INSPECT these remarkable volumes. If, however, you are too far away for that, send us 25c additional for each volume you order to cover the cost of postage.

School Out-Fitting an Easy Problem

Girls' Dresses and Suits

At Specially Low Prices

ONE OF THE HARDEST PROBLEMS to meet is the outfitting of girls and misses with Dresses that will be pretty as well as practical; that shall be made of good materials and well made; that will fit immature girlish figures, and that shall cost no more than the family purse may easily meet.

Such are the Dresses and Suits, however, that constitute the very large stock now ready in the Loeser Store. Diverse as are the different lines, there is not one but is good in making, in material, in style, in finish.

One-Price Wash Dresses

98c. Children's one piece Dresses of percale in light and dark grounds with small dots and figures. The waist has a Gibson plait in front, small breast pocket, full length sleeve, finished with cuff and high neck. Full plaited skirt; dress opens down the back; finished with buttons and buttonholes. Sizes 6 to 14 years.

$1.49. Children's school Dresses of percale, solid colors, blue and tan. Apron front which can be buttoned on the waist, showing two small pockets, also small handkerchief or change pocket in the plaited skirt. A piping of contrasting color adds a touch of beauty; turn down collar finished with tie. Sizes 6 to 10 years.

Misses' Tailored Suits, $12.98, Values to $20.

Misses' Suits that have been strictly men tailored, with unusual attention to the intimate finishings that do not show but have such effect on the service. They are made of fine cheviots and a few fancy mixtures. The Coat is 27 inches long, with semi-fitted back and single breasted, button through; velvet notched collar, long revers and lined throughout with satin. Gored skirts, apron front, panel back. Sizes 14, 16 and 18 years and for small women.

Millinery for Fair Motorists

Special Designs and Suitable Hats

EXCEPT FOR REGULAR MOTOR TRIPS there seems this season a departure from the idea of very distinctive headwear for the woman who uses an automobile. For long trips into town, especially in an open motor, certain Hoods and Caps are still favored. But the woman who uses a limousine or who makes only short trips wishes to use such millinery as will not be out of place at a luncheon, a matinee, or even at a dinner should her engagement tend that way.

A new Hood that will please many who expect to be abroad in inclement weather is quaintly contrived with a crown of soft chenille, around which is fastened a combination of Shetland Veil and Toboggan Hood. In mild weather this long veil hood is rolled up, forming a soft, full brim around the chenille crown, the whole effect being that of a jaunty toque. In storm or cold this is pulled down over the face, giving the warmth and appearance of a Shetland veil, the surplus length making a close, warm neck piece. All colors... $5.98

New Clothes of Distinction Whatever the Price You Pay

WE BELIEVE THERE ISN'T A DOUBT that the best ready to wear Clothes in the world are sold here in New York City. The Clothing Store that is to stand up near the top in this vicinity must sell Clothing that is very, very good.

So we think it speaks well for the Loeser Clothing Store that we rarely lose a customer—and then generally because he moves out of reaching distance. The man who wears Loeser Clothing is invariably SATISFIED with it in every way.

Presuming you who read this to be one of the men who have not yet actually examined Loeser Suits and Coats, we ask for the privilege of showing you some of the new stock here today.

We KNOW we can show you Clothing that will fit you correctly, and give you the consciousness of being well dressed. We KNOW that a Loeser Suit and Overcoat will give you good service, for we know all about the making of every garment we sell, and better tailor work isn't to be had.

We KNOW we can save you money—judging by the prices that Clothing of similar excellence will cost you outside this Store.

Suits and Overcoats, $12.50 to $35. An extremely broad and correct showing of new styles and new patterns in fabrics. TODAY is the day we suggest as the best time for you to look them over.

Better Clothes For Boys

Counter After Counter Filled With Specially Made (Extra Value) Suits and Coats

WHY SHOULD WE take so much more than the ordinary pains to have our Clothes for boys exactly right? Why should we sell Clothes at low enough prices so that some makers from other cities think they can buy here at retail and sell in their own stores at a profit?

Simply because when the boys who come here now have grown up and married and have a family to be looked after we want them to know that THE LOESER STORE is the place where their families will best be served.

The Loeser Two Trouser Suits at $5

haven't a value equal in the whole country—of this we are well assured. Six dollars, even seven dollars will not ordinarily buy Suits as good, even when the Suits have but one pair of trousers. Loeser Suits have TWO pairs of full knickerbockers and are made in several specially designed Norfolk and double-breasted styles to fit boys of 7 to 17 years.

$5 Blue Suits for Boys.

At least a dollar better than the ordinary blue serge Suits that are sold for five dollars; they are made from a fine, true blue standard serge, in smart and snappy Norfolk and double-breasted models, and in sizes from 7 to 17 years.

Boys' Blouses for Dress or School.

New ones of the roomy and carefully sewn kind, both negligee and laundered models in fancy patterns and solid colors. All sizes. Prices, 49c. to $1.49.

DEAD QUEENS LAWYER ACCUSED OF FORGERY

WORTHLESS PAPERS TURN UP

A $30,000 Brewery Deal Under Investigation — Two First Mortgages on One House, Neither Good.

Charges against the late Constantine T. Timonier, a former member of the Queens County Bar Association, and up to the time of his death on Saturday, Sept. 2, considered one of the most promising and successful young lawyers in the county, are being investigated by County Clerk Martin Mager of Queens, Attorney William G. Johnson of 246 Jackson Avenue, Long Island City, and a dozen or more of Timonier's former clients.

Forgery and misappropriation of moneys intrusted to him by clients are among the complaints, and yesterday Attorney Johnson exhibited two forged mortgages which were issued by Timonier before his death. Not only the names of the contracting parties are said to have been forged, but the rubber stamp used by County Clerk Mager, together with the county's clerks signatures, was also forged to the documents.

The accusations came as a shock to Timonier's friends in Queens yesterday, who declare they will not believe them until they are substantiated. Timonier was 36 years old at his death. He was born in Woodside, on the outskirts of Long Island City, where he lived until a few years ago, when he bought the handsome residence at Twenty-ninth Street and Cypress Avenue, Ingleside, Flushing, where he died. For about a year before his death he was afflicted with leukaemia, a disease which destroys the red corpuscles in the blood and for which medical science knows no remedy.

It was when his clients sought the help of other attorneys in getting trace of their business that had been intrusted to Timonier that discrepancies were discovered. Shortly before Timonier's death Attorney Johnson says he became suspicious that there was something irregular in Timonier's practice. He was engaged by William E. Gadey of Woodside to look up a mortgage of $500 which he found was on a lot he purchased from Louis Villhauer. Timonier had acted as attorney for both parties, and it was understood that the property was free and clear of all incumbrances. This was shortly before Timonier's death, and when Attorney Johnson wrote him concerning the transaction he says Timonier immediately sent him his check for $500.

A few days ago Mrs. Caroline Wille and Thomas Archer, both of Woodside, attempted to collect interest on a mortgage of $3,000 given by Michael Then and his wife, Caroline Then, also of Woodside. Then is a builder, and needing $3,000 in his operations, engaged Timonier to get the loan. An investigation disclosed that both Mrs. Wille and Archer held mortgages on the same piece of property. They both say they paid $3,000 each to Timonier.

Mrs. Wille got the original mortgage, which was recorded in the County Clerk's office June 1, 1910, but the bond she received is now said to be a forgery. For his loan Archer received the original bond and the forged mortgage. The forged papers bore the imprint of a rubber stamp and the reputed signature of the County Clerk, which Mr. Mager yesterday said were forgeries. The rubber stamp used by the County Clerk in giving the time and date of the filing of papers in his office, which is followed by his signature, is four and three-quarter inches in length. The stamp used on the forged papers is only two and one-half inches in length. In covering his transactions it is said that Timonier regularly paid the interest on the different mortgages as it fell due.

Attorney Johnson came across another transaction in which Mrs. Augusta Boigwitt employed Timonier to consolidate a $1,000 and a $2,000 mortgage by getting a new loan for $3,000. In looking over the records Mr. Johnson finds that the $2,000 mortgage was paid and canceled of record, but that the $1,000 was never paid and remains as a first mortgage taking precedence of the new mortgage of $3,000, so that Mrs. Boigwitt is out $1,000 by the transaction, and the holder of the $3,000 mortgage has a second instead of a first mortgage on the property.

It was declared yesterday that there are more than a dozen cases of irregularities, and it was also said that a brewing company is looking up a transaction involving $30,000 which was handled for them by Timonier. It was reported that before his death he turned over to relatives $30,000 in cash.

Timonier left a young widow, and in his will, which he began thus: "In the name of the Holy Trinity," he left nothing to his aged parents, the will stating that he had already made provision for them. His law books and personal property were divided between his widow and sister, and while the estate has not yet been appraised, it is said to be small.

'MIRACLE WHEAT' FOR $60 A BUSHEL

Pastor Russell Has a Sale of It in His Tabernacle and Business Is Good.

BROTHER BOHNET RAISED IT

And a Marvelous Growth of It Is Expected to Fulfil Biblical Prophecies.

While Duluth, Minneapolis, and Chicago people were agitated yesterday over a sudden jump in wheat to something over a dollar a bushel as the result of the failure of the Canadians to indorse reciprocity, over in the Tabernacle in Hicks Street, Brooklyn, the staple was selling at the unprecedented high price of $60 a bushel, and neither the buyers nor the sellers were a bit excited over the price.

The wheat being sold at such a figure in Brooklyn, however, is not of the ordinary kind. It is "miracle wheat," and wonderful qualities are credited to it. Until recently this valuable grain was sold only to followers of Pastor C. T. Russell, the head of the Tabernacle, but now it can be bought by any one. Pastor Russell seems to believe that the general use of this grain will greatly benefit the entire farming population of the country in time by a vastly increased production of wheat.

Pastor Russell believes in the literal fulfillment of the prophecies of the Bible that in time the earth will yield her fullest harvest, and he thinks that his "Miracle Wheat" will tend to establish his belief. The wheat which is now being sold at the Tabernacle, 13 Hicks Street, was given by Brother J. A. Bohnet. It was said that the society itself was not selling the wheat. It was being sold by Brother Dockey for Brother Bohnet, who is to give the proceeds to the society. Brother Dockey said yesterday that neither Pastor Russell nor the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society guaranteed the "Miracle Wheat," and that neither had anything to do actually with promoting the sale of it. He called upon a man present who, he said, was the "general counsel" for the society to back up this statement.

"Brother Bohnet," said the "general counsel," "offered to donate his 'miracle wheat,' and his offer was accepted. He is merely allowed to place the wheat on sale here in the Tabernacle. Brother Dockey sells it. Neither brother has a voting share in the society. Brother Bohnet has kindly agreed to turn over all the money received for the wheat into the treasury of the society. We do not say that the wheat is worth $60 a bushel. It is simply that Brother Bohnet is willing to sell it at that price. Those who buy at the price quoted do so with the understanding that they are voluntarily giving aid to the society."

The "Miracle Wheat" is being sold also in small lots at $1 a lot. Brother Dockey said that between thirty and thirty-five bushels had been sold.

"I believe," said Pastor Russell last evening, "that the growing of this wheat goes a long way toward proving the first principle of my church that the prophecies of the Bible shall be fulfilled. The apparently remarkable growth of the wheat is not remarkable to me. I believe that any grain may be grown similiarly when properly developed by mankind. I have seen rye just as highly developed as this wheat. Not long ago I read of a man out West who developed a stalk of corn that bore twenty ears. I wrote him to obtain, if possible, some of the grains to plant, but he replied that he had thrown them all in with the rest of the corn."

FOR MEN—

FALL OVERCOATS Silk-lined
Regularly $25
SERGE SUITS, Fall Weights
Regularly $22
At $16.50

That's the nubbin of a very important early-season sale now proceeding in the Gimbel Clothing Store. Timed especially to save men good money on their Fall clothing needs. And to make a lot of new, good friends for Gimbels.

We planned for this event with some of our leading wholesale tailors months ago, to get full advantage of the quiet times in the clothing business. They sliced their profits; we have done the same with ours. The result saves you a third, or near it, on your Fall Overcoat and your Fall and Winter Suit.

The $25 Silk-lined Overcoats at $16.50
are of standard all-wool fabrics, in plain, black, and Oxford, and Cambridge gray. Some are full silk-lined to the edge, others to the facing. There are various smart types of the Chesterfield style, some of them sufficiently long to cover the cutaway coat or evening dress coat.

The $22 Blue Serge Suits at $16.50
are of excellent fast color blue serge, in Winter weight. They are splendidly made, with hand-finished and hand-made button-holes, and are full-lined with Princess serge for Fall and Winter wear. Cut in approved Autumn model.

The Gimbel Clothing Store for Men has largely expanded its quarters, has prepared a splendid showing of Suits and Overcoats, in the new fabrics and colorings, and is ready for the approval of critical men.

When you see the fine Suits and Overcoats at $25, $30, $35, $40 and $45, and note the superb tailoring, the smart lines, and the often exclusive fabrics, you will realize why the well dressed men of New York are coming more and more to make this Gimbel Clothing Store their headquarters. Fourth Floor

Men's Fall Hats
Stetson In the Lead

When a man buys a Stetson Hat, he is as sure of the quality and style as he is of getting his money on a certified check.

We are ready with the leading Stetson styles, in both Derby and Soft Hats—

20 Styles of Stetson Derbies, $3.50 to $10
22 Styles of Stetson Soft Hats, $3.50 to $12

The Derbies include broad-brimmed and low-crowned, as well as conservative styles. The Soft Hats are in shaggy and smooth finish in all the new Fall colors.

Imported Soft Hats at $2

Two special shipments, from France and Germany, of stylish Soft Hats that ought to sell for $1 more. In shaggy or smooth styles, some with stitched crowns and brims, five styles in eight colors—all at $2. Fourth Floor

This, the Latest "Twincote" For Women, Is $27.50

Yes, the illustration gives an idea of the smart style of this Coat—the border around the foot is very effective. But the picture cannot give even an idea of the beautiful soft quality of the double-faced camel's-hair fabric—it is almost as light as the proverbial feather. Either Oxford or stone gray, tan or brown on the one side, with a contrasting color or stripes on the other.

Today we shall also have some more of those remarkable $14.75 Twincotes, with the large square collar that may be fastened together to form a hood.

Twincotes—many imported — at numerous prices up to $150.

Imported Velour Coats, $42.50 to $195.

These Raincoats at $8.50 to $16.50 are of the new double-texture fabrics. There is an exceedingly good-looking style of tan gabardine, fashioned with Raglan sleeves, at $15.

Other Raincoats of rubberized Crepe de Chine, Peau de Soie and Satin, up to $37.75. Second Floor

All-Silk Umbrellas, $2
For Men and Women

Under usual conditions, Umbrellas covered with the same handsome, pure twill silk, and fitted with the same fine, natural wood and Mission handles, would sell for $3.50 at retail.

But the maker had come by a quantity of this excellent silk at a very low price, which is reflected in our very low price to you—$2 each, for either men's or women's styles. But the quantity is limited.

And according to tradition, we're right in the thick of the Equinoctial storm period. Main Floor

AT THE NEW CARLTON TERRACE

Broadway and 100th Street

Is one of the unusual sights of this big town. It is different from any of the places you know. It presents a picture that will leave an impression to remain with you between visits. The hundreds of soft lights, the beautiful terrace, the decorative figures, the plants, combine to make a veritable fairyland. Come and see it.

THE CANADIAN SURPRISE.

If the process of fooling the people about tariffs and protection were not one made altogether familiar to us by practice and repetition, we should be astounded at the extraordinary manner in which the Canadians have permitted themselves to be fooled and bamboozled against their own interests in regard to the Reciprocity Agreement. Measured by any test of its relation to the prosperity of Canada and its people, the agreement was so advantageous to them that its rejection was regarded as well-nigh incredible. We did not think they would be so foolish. But they have overthrown the Laurier Government, not so much because they dislike reciprocity, as because of their desire to reaffirm in this grotesquely extravagant and costly way their loyalty to the empire. It is evident that they actually believed the stuff dinned into their ears by the Conservatives about reciprocity as the "thin edge" of annexation, and that they believed, too, the preposterous falsehoods about our designs upon their independence, about our purpose to get hold of Canada by hook or crook, an adventure of which reciprocity was but the cunning and subtle beginning.

In many ways Canadians are much more British than the British themselves. They are exceedingly proud of the empire and of their attachment to it, and they are sensitive on the point. Their unconquerable loyalty to the mother country is a quality altogether creditable to them, that no one in the United States would deny. Nor would any sensible person this side the border be disposed to "make fun" of that loyal attachment. It is only its extravagant and silly manifestations that provoke our mirth. Certainly the vote against reciprocity is the most extravagant price the Canadians have ever paid for their reputation of being loyal Britons. It was because the annexation talk, the slanders about President TAFT and his motives, and the falsehoods as to the intentions of the United States ran in the actual course of Canadian inclinations that these campaign tactics were so astonishingly successful. The Canadian voters believed the tales because their prepossessions inclined them to the belief.

The period of sober second thought will come to most of them, but we do not see how they can retrace their false step. They have voted to cut themselves off from the privilege of freer trade with their nearest and greatest market—and all because they were afraid somebody would think there had been an abatement in their British loyalty. Of their total foreign trade 50 per cent. is with us. Taking exports and imports together, their trade with the United States is $327,000,000, against $234,000,000 with Great Britain. They imported from us in their fiscal year 1910 goods to the value of $223,000,000, against $95,000,000 from Great Britain; and they sold to us $104,000,000, against $139,000,000 to the mother country. We are ninety millions, just across their border, the greatest market the world can supply for their products. We want what they produce, and we have offered to remove altogether our customs duties on a great part of them, and to lower the duties on others. Reciprocally, their Government had assented to similar tariff reductions that would have given them freer access as purchasers to our markets. Beyond all question, it was for the benefit of the Canadian farmer that the agreement should be ratified. It was not less evident that the Canadian manufacturer would be benefited by securing free raw materials from the United States, and those benefits would have accrued in large measure, also, to the consumers of Canadian manufactures. The home market of the Canadian manufacturer was not menaced by the agreement, it was rather assured to him. It did not make so very great a difference to us whether reciprocity was approved or rejected. With Canada it made a material difference.

Yet these promised benefits the Canadians have rejected by a vote which, apparently, represents nothing so much as their fear lest the question of their loyalty to the empire would be raised by a vote sustaining LAURIER. It was a silly thing to do, it was putting away the real substance of national advantage because of a foolish and overstrained sentiment. The wiser men on both sides of the border will regret this decision, because, inevitably, it has created, particularly in Canada, a state of feeling the reverse of favorable to closer trade relations.

No one regrets the Canadian refusal more than President TAFT, we suppose. In one sense it is a serious reverse for him politically. The negotiation of the Reciprocity Agreement was the conspicuous success of his Administration. That failing, his critics will be inclined to say that not much remains. Perhaps he will now wish that he had signed the Wool bill. That, at least, would have accomplished something. But if the failure of reciprocity is a political disaster to the President, there may be some compensations. The farmers of the United States, particularly those near the border, were, many of them, bitterly hostile to reciprocity. Had it succeeded, their resentment against Mr. TAFT would have continued. Now that it has failed through the act of Canada, their displeasure will diminish and they will the more easily forget Mr. TAFT's part in making the agreement.

MR. STOVER'S WAY.

Mr. STOVER, in his capacity as Commissioner of Parks, is doing something. Competent witnesses testify that what he is doing will injure rather than help Central Park, but hitherto Mr. STOVER has permitted the injury of the Park to go on, without doing much himself. It is positively gratifying to find him in action. The mismanagement of the valuable property of this city is so common that few citizens can be stirred to open wrath about it. Our parks have been shamefully ill-treated. The plan to resoil Central Park was submitted by Mr. PARSONS, the retired Landscape Architect of the Park, some years ago. The process was thoroughly explained, and the plan had the approval of all authorities in landscape gardening, including the Bureau of Soils of the United States Agricultural Department. The work was to be carried forward through a term of years, and so arranged that only a comparatively small portion of any of the Park fields would be under repair at once. The cost of this work would have been about $1,250,000, but this would not all have been expended in one year, or two. In Boston they are renovating the historic Common at a cost which in the larger area of Central Park would amount to more than $3,000,000.

Mr. STOVER is plowing over the surface of Park lawns, using no new topsoil, and insufficient fertilizer, and talking about the work with the air of authority on landscape gardening which might be excused in a man who had been apprenticed to Adam in Eden. He says he will expend $50,000 a year for three years, and remake the Park. Kind-hearted folks may be willing to wait for three years. Others are openly saying that Mr. STOVER is unmaking the Park as rapidly as he can.

IN AND OUT OF WALL STREET.

What is happening out of Wall Street is often more important than anything which happens in it, especially when Wall Street is in such a hectic mood that it buys and sells in lots of four or five millions of dollars. The significance of such business is always subject to discount, and seldom means what it appears to. Only the callow can imagine that men having that amount of bona-fide property to sell would sell it in that way. It is more likely that sellers of that calibre would have completed their selling before the common crowd knew that there was any necessity of selling. It is imaginable that, knowing the effect of selling a large volume of stock, such a seller would sell twice as much, in the expectation of buying the surplus back at a profit on the decline. When belated and necessitous sellers appear in the market it is a benefit to all concerned to have in readiness a suitable volume of buying orders to prevent a total collapse through the absence of those not daring to buy because not knowing the explapation of the decline.

Whether or not any such theory is applicable to present conditions, it is sure that much is happening out of Wall Street of a more agreeable nature, and not needing any sophisticated explanation to make the cheering side appear. On the very day that the Steel "slump" culminated—if indeed it has culminated—the Controller of the Currency issued his annual statement of the deposits in the mutual savings banks of the entire country. Their total resources are $3,702,000,000, an increase for the year just past of $109,952,000, including an increase of investments against an increase of a round hundred millions of dollars in the liabilities to depositors. It cannot be suggested that the year of reaction among capitalists has been equally severe among the wage earners who compose the savings bank class. This week also there have been published the figures of foreign trade for August showing an export of manufactures eight millions of dollars in excess of last year. Never yet have our exports of manufactures reached a billion dollars for a year, but they are now running at the rate of a billion and a half, promising a new record for this billion-dollar country. The connection between these two "cheer up" items is obvious. The goods which thus swell our export balance have previously swollen our wage fund, and despite the cost of living the wage earners are showing that they have a surplus.

It is often said that our crops are the backbone of our prosperity, and much trouble has been borrowed because this year's crops are not record breakers in the aggregate. Nobody has suggested that they are not a fair average yield, and it is hardly appreciated how much better they will be than present expectations. The collapse in the cotton market this week gives promise of cheaper cloth. There will be scant sympathy with planters who are "ruined" by the abundance which rewards their labors, and which will bless the country despite the efforts to take back with the hands which run their "pool" the benefits rendered by the hands which plant and pick. In the food grain records it appears that in each of several recent years the actual harvest has surpassed the September indications. The expectation of such improvement of the yield over the estimate is exceptionally encouraging this year because an excessive allowance has been made of deterioration, and because of the fine weather which is matter of general knowledge. Taking the betterment to be no larger this year than last, there are two hundred million bushels of corn and wheat to be binned which have not been counted.

There is even reason to counsel better cheer to the despondent capitalists. Surely they cannot be altogether in a bad way when they have millions to spare to foreign borrowers who are willing to pay over 6 per cent. for it. That is an uncommonly long road to ruin. It is easy enough to see where the money comes from. Values have been mounting while prices have been falling. Income is the test of value, and the October returns leave no doubt of the substance behind the paper which is being sacrificed for what it will bring. The October disbursements of interest and dividends this year are probably a record for October at $180,034,370. It is sure that they are an increase of $7,415,374 over last year, and there was no cause for complaint then. There are some decreased payments in the list, but there are larger additions. The increases in the dividend payments are all the more significant because they are made over an increase of interest obligations which precede dividends.

Actualities, in short, are encouraging. It is only sentimental troubles which are unsettling. In one way political and legal unsettlements are hard to deal with, since they cannot be estimated exactly by anybody, and are estimated differently by everybody. On the other hand, they are subject to change without notice, and when they are too bad to be true they must change for the better. This would happen over night if it suddenly should occur to those who are thriving as the above facts indicate that the continuance of such prosperity is endangered by every foot of progress along the path of destructive "reforms" the country has been traveling lately.

THE TRUST REORGANIZATIONS.

The statement given out at Washington yesterday regarding the alteration of the form of the "Trust" organizations is more consistent with our institutions than the ideas of some commentators. Regulation by law is one thing, and endurable whatever the law, because the law is the same for all, and must be changed if it is not endurable. But "government regulation," as it is called by some, is another thing, and is unendurable. For the Attorney General to undertake to approve any given set of amendments of any corporate organization would be for him to assume functions incompatible with our constitutional arrangements, however agreeable to a benevolent despotism.

Fortunately the Attorney General sees this, and declines the duty some would thrust upon him. In the authoritative statement made yesterday it is said "the law department cannot undertake to act as universal counsel for the trusts." It would be undesirable if it were possible, since it would make the Government responsible for the fortunes of the trusts, and would mingle Government and enterprise in an objectionable manner. Fancy an economic reaction for which it would be charged with some ground, however unjustly, that the Government was responsible because of its advice to its clients. And fancy a plea by a bad Trust in court that its acts were approved by the Government.

The Department of Justice can go no further than to say that it sees no reason to object to any proposal of any Trust to bring its organization within the ruling of the court. As the Washington statement says, "The final approval is for the court to make." It is well that the burden should be diffused thus generally. If it were to be cumulated upon the records of any bureau there would be such an impediment as there is in the business of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. Its arrears are so serious that it is resorting to making rulings by classes instead of by cases, and then corrects its rulings by making exceptions when necessary. The reorganization of the trusts is too great a task to have it hindered by the clogging of any bureau, or to have it dealt with as a goulash is cooked.

PICTURE STEALING.

The reports of the loss from museums and churches of many valuable and historic pictures, since the "Mona Lisa" of LEONARDO disappeared from the Louvre, have made us wonder whether Europe was afflicted with a picture-stealing mania or the curators and sacristans were just awaking from a long sleep. If thirty-two out of a collection of forty-two paintings of the Sauvageot collection had really been missing from the Louvre, it would be easy to believe they had been gone many years and nobody had missed them. That would have seemed a stranger surmise before the most famous portrait in the world, and one painted on a panel which cannot be rolled up, was taken from its frame and carried out of the most famous and most frequented art museum in the world. It seems now either that a picture thief must possess unusual powers of mystification, or else that the watchfulness of museum officers over the treasures confided to their care has been greatly overrated. A certain new measure of credence must be attached to all sorts of tales, hitherto regarded as fictitious, touching the substitution of forgeries for genuine paintings in great galleries. If one permits his mind to dwell too long on such yarns, it may seem to him that the whole world of art is a monstrous fraud.

But we know now that the Louvre's lost Fragonard has not been lost at all. ANDREA ORCAGNA's altarpiece in the Florentine chapel may be undergoing repairs. It is certain that the stealing of such famous pictures could never be developed into a profitable business. SHEEDY and his companions, we believe, made money out of the stolen Gainsborough some years ago, but it is doubtful if their trick could be repeated. As for the "Mona Lisa," nobody would dare to buy it at any price. No intelligible motive for the theft of this masterwork has been discovered, nor has a ray of light been shed on the manner of the theft. There are replicas of LEONARDO's great picture, but they serve to show that the effects for which the Louvre original was renowned could be produced but once. The picture could be identified at first sight by any person with a fair knowledge of pictorial art.

It is almost time to hear something more about the scarcity of water in the Croton Watershed.

Speaking about the various degrees of deadness, President TAFT's plan of arbitration with England seems deader to-day than the Wool bill he recently vetoed. Canada did it.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Positive Evidence Strongest.

Altogether too much importance is attached by Mrs. KIMMEL and other people in Niles to the fact that the man who claims to be her son and their neighbor does not now know about certain small happenings which they remember—things the knowledge of which was once the common possession of themselves and the real GEORGE A. KIMMEL. But not a few such happenings, according to report, he does remember, and he shows a familiarity with the minuter topography of the town which he could hardly have obtained except by living in it for years.

This, now, is all positive support for his pretensions, and each item in it is of more weight than are a dozen instances of present ignorance of something which somebody thinks he ought to remember. Memory is a most strange and mysterious faculty. No two minds are retentive of the same things, or even of the same sort of things, and what makes a permanent impression on one memory may make on another one that soon fades away.

The assumption that this now rather famous "claimant" is an impostor is weakened by the failure of anybody to offer any plausible reason for the charged deception or any convincing explanation of his large knowledge of Niles history. He seemingly has practically nothing to gain from being recognized as an ex-convict, and there is no hint of a family war such as would inspire the real KIMMEL with a determination to prevent the relatives from getting the insurance on his life. The supposition of hired personation is incredible, and if this be the real KIMMEL he has come forward in a natural and honest way, for if there were a plot he could have made more money by concealing his identity than by revealing and proving it.

That the mother repudiates the self-asserted son is a fact the importance of which is a matter of opinion, depending on whether or not one believes maternal instinct to be infallible. To the cold scientist there is no such instinct, so far as the identification of offspring goes, and the mother usually knows her child better than anybody else simply because she usually has better opportunities than anybody else to observe his personal peculiarities. Mothers can be, and not infrequently have been, mistaken.

Comparison by a Bertillon expert of a photograph known to be that of KIMMEL with one of the man who claims to be KIMMEL has revealed that in all the essential and unchangeable measurements the two are identical. Everything considered, the present probabilities seem to favor the claimant. As yet all the positive evidence is apparently on his side, and only negative evidence opposes him.

Anonymity Has Its Advantages.

Among the kindliest of the letters congratulating THE TIMES on attaining its sixtieth anniversary is one that expresses in the form of prophecy the hope that some day there will be a return of that "personal journalism" which was in another era the characteristic of good newspapers. Our friend has forgotten that by no means all the newspapers of the day, the passing of which he regrets, were the exponents of a journalism as high as it was personal, and that among the editors who were so well known there were some who were well known otherwise than for their virtues or for the excellent use they made of their power. Anonymity would hardly have become the journalistic rule of this time in all countries that have real newspapers if it did not now possess definite and real advantages over the opposite plan. The natural conclusion is that anonymity results from existing conditions, just as personality resulted from the conditions of the past, and that neither was intrinsically better than the other. That the old newspapers were superior to those of to-day is a delusion, created in exactly the same way as are the widespread myths of a Golden Age somewhere back in the mists of antiquity.

Anybody who will take the trouble of examining files of papers printed when "the editor was the paper" will discover that the stories of past glories have little foundation in fact—that the papers now are on the average at least as well written as they were then, that they contain at least as many "powerful articles," and that, so far as presenting the news is concerned, impersonal journalism is as much more honest as it is efficient. News is still "colored" by some papers; it was always "colored" by them all in the good old days. Surely that change is for the better, and it is, if not the direct result of editorial anonymity, closely connected with it.

The argument that the anonymous writer is an irresponsible writer has plausibility, but not truth. The anonymous writer may be a little safer than was his predecessor from personal violence at the hands of those whose feelings he hurts or whose acts he reveals or condemns, but in every other way he is more rather than less responsible than was his predecessor, and to influence his readers he is much more forced to rely on cogency of argument and accuracy of statement. Nothing he says is admired or excused except on its own merits.

At Least It Is Unusual.

Mayor McCARTHY of San Francisco is a man with queer ideas as to the what and the why of cornerstones. His predecessor, Mayor TAYLOR, "laid with appropriate ceremonies" the cornerstone of a big and magnificent municipal hospital. This he did for the usual reasons—the funds for the building had been appropriated by his administration, the ground was broken, and the work of construction had proceeded to the point where a cornerstone is, if not needed, at least justified by immemorial custom.

On the cornerstone Mayor TAYLOR had caused his name to be inscribed, with his official title, and under it the names and titles of other public servants whose positions gave them a special interest in the hospital. Then Mayor TAYLOR went out and Mayor McCARTHY came in.

The building of the hospital went on, and it is now nearly completed. The names on the cornerstone did not please Mayor McCARTHY, and, after thinking the matter over, he determined on action—which he has just taken.

What he did was to take out the cornerstone laid by Mayor TAYLOR and to substitute for it one bearing the names of himself, of three members of his Board of Public Works, of the President of his Board of Health and of his two architects!

Ex-Mayor TAYLOR is much annoyed. He says that Mayor McCARTHY is a vandal and that to treat cornerstones in this way is to make them farcical.

SECOND AVENUE WIDENING.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Property owners on Second Avenue were surprised early in April with a notice to make alterations, in order that the avenue might be widened sixteen feet, from Houston to Twenty-third Street. The heads of several churches and philanthropic institutions affected wrote to the Borough President, pointing out the uselessness of such widening, and were informed that there had been a great increase of traffic on the avenue, &c., but that he would grant us a rehearing, pending which the order for removal of obstructions would be suspended.

President McAneny wrote to me early in July, and to two or three others, that he had concluded to proceed without a rehearing, that certain owners had already made extensive alterations and that we must do likewise. Properly worded letters to Mr. McAneny were not even acknowledged, and some of us felt it our duty as citizens, as well as our right as property holders, to ask for a hearing before the Board of Estimate, and the arguments of the seventeen petitioners were heard to-day. Mr. McAneny then claimed that the abandoning of the widening would be an injustice to the property holders who had already made the alterations, although he was forced to admit that they had no means of knowing that the matter was held in abeyance. He also blamed the petitioners for delaying an important improvement until he was shown that he alone was guilty of procrastination. As the Board of Estimate referred the matter back to Mr. McAneny for a report, the nature of which he clearly foreshadowed, I deem it proper to call public attention to this proposed widening.

Mr. McAneny states, on the authority of his consulting engineer, that the traffic on Second Avenue is "as great as on Broadway." The figures from his own office, as well as those of independent observers, show that there is an average of two vehicles to a block on each side of the avenue, when the traffic is at its heaviest, exclusive of the cars, which run about two and one-half blocks apart. Father McMahon of the Church of the Epiphany stated that during eleven hours of continuous observation on a weekday three vehicles were seen passing others going in the same direction.

Does it not seem a shameful waste of taxpayers' money to widen an avenue on which so slight a demand is made and which never can become a true thoroughfare because Chrystie Street, its lower continuation, as well as Second Avenue above Twenty-third Street, by reason of the elevated, are unusually narrow? Why does the Department of Public Works wish to add the care of 7,500 square yards of asphalt to the burden which already overtaxes its ability? The petitioners naturally wish to save expense and inconvenience to the institutions they represent; but they would not oppose the Borough President if they thought that he was acting wisely in this matter. To carry through a policy of his own, which has never been formally adopted by the city, he wishes to widen the avenues, regardless of immediate necessity.

To do this on Second Avenue he takes 7,500 square feet from a park received many years ago as a gift from the Stuyvesant family; he inconveniences a large number of churches and charitable institutions; he tries to make a busier thoroughfare of a street on which six hospitals are situated, and he makes a large expenditure without even attempting to show an adequate return to the city by relief of real traffic congestion.

Unlighted Vehicles on Dark Streets.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I note your article headed "Vehicles Without Lights," and certainly approve of what you state about more lights being required. I would call your attention to the fact that our local board, covering the Far Rockaway section of Greater New York, is very negligent in insisting upon farm wagons and vendors of all sorts traveling at nights with lights. There was one very serious accident which occurred at Far Rockaway this Summer which resulted in the death of at least one man, and if I am not mistaken, a couple more. I think that if your paper were to follow up this matter some action might be brought about which would help the automobile driver considerably in the outskirts of New York.

C. LUDWIG BAUMANN.
Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 19, 1911.

A Gibe.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES this morning informs us that the defeat of reciprocity in Canada is a victory for reaction and ignorance. Just listen to that! The United States, "Mother of Protection," to accuse Canadians of ignorance for abiding by the one principle on which all our political parties are united!

THE TIMES COMMENDED.

Readers Send Anniversary Wishes for Its Continued Success.

Congratulations on the sixtieth anniversary of THE NEW YORK TIMES continue to pour in from its readers and its contemporaries.

The Rev. Dr. Silverman thus sends his congratulations:

Accept my heartiest congratulations upon the completion of the sixth decade of THE NEW YORK TIMES's existence. Your paper is a great leader of public opinion and has won and retained the confidence of all classes. May its success continue and increase. JOSEPH SILVERMAN.

New York, Sept. 19.

Dr. H. M. Leipziger speaks of the educational influence of THE TIMES. He writes:

Congratulations on the sixtieth anniversary of THE NEW YORK TIMES. Every good cause finds in it an advocate, and as an educational influence it is potent in our community—in fact, in the nation, and THE WEEKLY LITERARY REVIEW is one of the cultural forces in the city.

H. P. Gottlieb of 1,842 Seventh Avenue thus gives his reasons for having been a reader of THE TIMES for fifteen years:

I was led to become a constant reader of your paper from the fact of its reliability. You always call a spade a spade. Nothing is added and nothing taken away, but written as near facts as it was possible for you to obtain and always impartial even to your enemies. I have converted many of my friends to your reliable journal, not perhaps to help you but to help them, and have received their appreciation for my persuasion. H. P. GOTTLIEB,

John W. Vrooman of Herkimer, N. Y., calls THE TIMES a newspaper for the home. He writes:

My congratulations on the anniversary of your three score years. Credit is due you for clean columns, conservative purpose, and capable management. THE TIMES is indeed a paper for the home. May three-score and ten find it even bigger, broader, and better than it is to-day. This I predict.

Learned English from The Times.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to congratulate you on the sixtieth birthday of your most excellent newspaper.

I was born in Italy and since I have been in this country I have been an ardent reader of THE NEW YORK TIMES. In it I have observed the most correct and classical language that helped me to talk English. In other words, your paper has been my teacher.

I always suggest to my fellow-countrymen that they read this great American paper.

A Newspaper Man's Paper.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Congratulations! THE TIMES has come to be pre-eminent as a newspaper man's newspaper. That is to say, it approaches a professional ideal. Most newspaper men would like to make such a paper for such a constituency. The "know how" and the constituency are products of growth as well as toil, under the principles of a selective specialization.

PRAISE FROM THE PRESS.

Success of The Times Called Vindication of New York Public's Taste.

From The St. Louis Times.

THE NEW YORK TIMES has never made a great deal of meaningless noise. It has concerned itself chiefly with the task of assembling "All the News That's Fit to Print." It has made its appeal consistently to the better class of readers. To-day it occupies a structure which makes the Flatiron Building look old-fashioned, and it is digging the foundations of an additional building on Forty-third Street, just off Broadway. It will be, before long, the best equipped newspaper office in New York.

And all, we believe, because it has cared more for the good-will of thoughtful people than for applause of the thoughtless crowd.

From The Pittsfield (Mass.) Eagle.

From The Troy Times.

THE NEW YORK TIMES is one of the great newspapers of the world. Enterprising without extravagance, accurate without harshness, and popular without foolishness, may it continue to have the reward which belongs to virtue in all times.

From the Staats-Zeitung.

Sixty years ago THE NEW YORK TIMES was founded, and to-day that newspaper tells the story of its foundation and development * * * The pre-eminence of THE NEW YORK TIMES is due to its impartial treatment of political and local conditions.

From The New Haven Register.

THE NEW YORK TIMES for some years past has been giving the public one of the ablest, fairest, cleanest newspapers of the country.

From The Dry Goods Economist.

THE TIMES has a record of which any publication might well be proud. Though conducted on lines that fully bear out its honorable traditions, it is in many respects the most progressive newspaper in this city, if not in the entire country.

A SEVENTH AVENUE SUBWAY.

Enumerates Its Many Advantages to Passengers and the City.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The extension of Seventh Avenue southerly to Varick Street, and that street widened to Franklin Street and West Broadway, having passed the Board of Estimate and the Board of Aldermen, has now become a fixed fact. The next thing in order is a four-track Subway from Times Square southerly to South Ferry, two tracks diverging at Liberty Street and through Maiden Lane under the river to Pineapple Street, Brooklyn, and there to connect with the present Subway for the Long Island station. This is the route which I helped get the Interborough to adopt, for the reason that it would give greater accommodations than that of any other, and make the best line in the city.

Its possibilities are simply enormous. First, it will control the west side traffic, it being shorter and quicker than by way of the Grand Central, and take off that line about 40 per cent. of the traffic, so the strap-hangers will be few and far between. Second, it will distribute the Pennsylvania passengers, which the city was in honor bound to do a long time ago. Third, it will pick up the insurance mob which now fills up the Brooklyn Bridge, and land it at Borough Hall twenty minutes quicker than by that route. Fourth, it will land the employes of Manhattan department stores from both boroughs within a block of their respective places of business. Fifth, it will control the shoppers of both boroughs. Sixth, it will ease up the congestion on the subaqueous route at South Ferry. Moreover, it will give a direct route from the Battery and Brooklyn to the uttermost northern boundary of the city for one fare, thus making it plainly unnecessary to make a crazy-quilt of Manhattan's leading thoroughfare to appease the avariciousness of Brooklyn in order to cover up the weakness of its own degenerated elevated lines.

Foresees Era of Prosperity.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Economic conditions out here are materially different from those which appear to obtain in New York at present. The large financial institutions seem to be loaned up and are receiving 5 per cent. interest. The large manufacturing industries, such as dry goods, boots and shoes, and glass factories are apparently working up to their capacities. The oat crop is a failure, which is not of any consequence, as it is never a material factor. Corn and wheat crops are satisfactory. The bankers say that Pacific Coast conditions are good. Everybody here is hoping for a cessation of the attacks of the Administration, and politicians generally, on business. If such should occur in the near future, an impregnable era of prosperity and general economic advancement is felt to be inevitable. W. C. G.

DR. MACARTHUR QUITS. 40-YEAR PASTORATE

MADE PASTOR EMERITUS

Affectionate Treatment by His First and Only Congregation—Has Baptised 5,000 Into Church.

Dr. Robert Stuart MacArthur, for forty-one years pastor of Calvary Baptist Church in West Fifty-seventh Street, near Sixth Avenue, resigned his pastorate last night at the monthly business meeting of the church.

Dr. MacArthur's purpose to resign was known to the members, and the lecture room of the church was filled to the doors. Dr. MacArthur himself was not present, and it was explained that he could not bring himself to take any part in the ceremonies which marked the severance of his relations to the church, which had been sustained unbrokenly for nearly half a century. The Rev. Dr. Donald MacIntyre, assistant pastor, stated that Dr. MacArthur would not trust himself to read his letter of resignation. Dr. MacIntyre read it for him.

The congregation, many present remarked, was notable for the number of elderly men and women in it. While there was a sprinkling of young men and young women, with here and there a child, most of the heads were frosted. Quite a large number of such persons had been members of the church ever since Dr. MacArthur came to it in 1870, a young man just out of the theological seminary. He had been their only pastor, as they had been his only congregation.

Immediately following the reading of the resignation, resolutions framed in anticipation of it by the deacons of the church were adopted, expressing deep regret at Dr. MacArthur's determination, but releasing him from the active pastorate and electing him pastor-emeritus, an office created, it was explained, in order that the long and affectionate relations between Dr. MacArthur and his congregation should not be wholly broken. While nothing was said about the salary Dr. MacArthur is to receive in his honorary office, it is understood that it will be a substantial fraction of his present remuneration from the church. The Rev. Dr. MacIntyre read two letters from Dr. MacArthur. One was dated Sept. 6, 1910, the other and briefer one was dated a week ago.

The first letter was Dr. MacArthur's special message to his church. In it he said that he had for years intended to resign when he had been a pastor for forty years. He had come as a youth, just graduated from the Rochester Theological Seminary, to his first pastorate. The congregation was then worshipping in an old church in Twenty-third Street. He recalled that he had seen the membership grow from a few hundreds to its present number of 2,300. He had seen practically every stone, every brick, and every timber, he said, laid in its place in the present church, one of the largest religious auditoriums in the city. He had helped to design it, and had actually designed the pulpit and given it to the church. Since he came there he had baptized into the church more than 5,000 persons, and in his ministry $2,000,000 had been given to the cause of Christianity. With these evidences of his labors, he said, he wished to retire while he was still mentally and physically strong.

Dr. MacArthur stated that he wanted it thoroughly understood that he was not resigning because of any dissention or division in the church. He did not think the church was ever more closely united than at present, and declared that the report recently made by it to the Baptist General Association showed the last year to have been the most prosperous and effective in its history. He was resigning, he said, simply because he thought forty years long enough for any pastorate. He had fully intended leaving the church in May of last year, when the forty years had ended, but was persuaded by his deacons not to do so, as the church was then celebrating the anniversary, and they thought his leaving would throw a damper over it. He, therefore, waited until last Fall to write his letter of resignation, but was again persuaded to withhold it a little longer.

In his second letter Dr. MacArthur stated that he really regarded his pastorate as terminated since last Fall, and had refused in the Winter months to receive more than half of his regular salary and had returned to the church all his salary for the last three months.

Dr. MacArthur said that he had no idea of quitting the church as a member nor the Baptist ministry. He hoped to hear his successor preach many times, and had taken a pew in the church and endowed it, so that the income from it would be greater than the rent formerly paid for it. He hoped that his successor would soon be chosen, as church activities were endangered by long gaps between pastorates, and that no man would ever be allowed in his pulpit who did not believe profoundly and practice sincerely the doctrines held by the Baptist denomination. He expressed the desire that the present ritual and forms of worship, which he regarded as beautiful, should be continued.

As for himself, Dr. MacArthur said, he expected to preach and to lecture. He expected to do much preaching, he declared, for pastorless churches, and to aid in the advancement of Baptist and Christian activities as long as he lived. A year ago in Philadelphia, he said, at the greatest meeting ever held by Baptists in their history, he had been elected President of the Baptist World Alliance, regarded by common consent, he added, as the greatest honor in the gift of the denomination. He had accepted, not for the selfish consideration of the honor, but for the splendid opportunities for work the office offered, and to this work he expected soon to turn his hand. He would be in St. Petersburg in a few months, he hoped, exerting himself toward obtaining a larger measure of religious liberty in the empire of the Czar.

It was said by members of the congregation that Dr. MacArthur expects to establish a Baptist college in Russia.

After the resignation had been accepted, the Rev. Mr. MacIntyre announced that Dr. MacArthur would preach morning and evening to-morrow, and asked that large congregations be present to hear him, thereby testifying to their affection for him.

The Rev. Dr. Len G. Broughton of Atlanta is spoken of as Dr. MacArthur's successor. Dr. Broughton is a prominent evangelist, who has filled several temporary pastorates here, and declined as many calls to permanent work. He is expected to preach at the church within a few weeks. Calvary Church is regarded as the largest and best organized church in the Baptist denomination in the United States, if not the world.

SUBTERFUGE VERSUS SYMPATHY.

When Ma an' Pa go out to walk on Sunday after tea,
They rig us up in fancy clothes an' take Maria an' me,
But 'tain't no fun to trudge along, a holdin' hands like that,
When I'm a boy that's growin' tall an' sister's short an' fat.

I ain't allowed to laugh, or talk, exceptin' with Maria—
An' what do girls know, any way, about a Prairie Fire,
Or Bowie Knives or Jesse James, or even Captain Kidd?
They've never read of Pirates Bold or what the Injuns did!

Maria an' me just tag along, a lissenin' to Ma
A-talkin' all about the text an' arguin' with Pa,
An' just because the walk's so long an' turrible an' all,
I give Maria a little pinch that makes her up an bawl.

Of course, then, Ma just hurries home an' puts me right to bed,
But that is heaps an' heaps more fun, 'cause then, right in my head,
I picture how I'd like to be a Pirate on the Sea,
An' I can lie an' talk an' talk 'thout no one hearin' me.

BEECHAM TO GIVE OPERA IN NEW YORK

English Impresario Here to Plan Festivals of Richard Strauss's and Mozart's Works.

INCLUDES "ROSENKAVALIER"

Smaller Auditoriums Are Needed, He Says, as the New Operas Are Intime —Hammerstein's London Chances.

Thomas Beecham, the English impresario who first produced in London "Salome" and "Elektra," to say nothing of twenty other operas, is in New York to look over the ground, and he states that it is his definite purpose to produce opera here, one way or another, either this season or next.

Mr. Beecham, who is here for the first time in eighteen years, arrived last Saturday in the Lusitania, with his father, Joseph Beecham, the millionaire pill manufacturer. His arrival was unheralded and unmentioned. It was his desire, in fact, to come and go unnoticed, if possible, as he had no desire to talk of his plans until they were fully matured. When he was found yesterday by a TIMES reporter he consented, however, to talk.

"I really cannot say anything definite yet, with the exception of the fact that I have absolutely made up by mind to do something over here," he said. "You see I do not know New York. When I came here eighteen years ago to go to the Chicago World's Fair I was a little boy, and I had no idea, of course, that I might return as an impresario. At present I am looking over the ground, talking with people—so far as I am able at this season of the year—and deliberating about what can be done.

"I am very anxious to give two operatic festivals here, one of the Richard Strauss operas, 'Der Rosenkavaller,' 'Elektra,' 'Feuersnoth,' and 'Salome,' and the other of the Mozart operas, such as 'Don Giovanni,' 'The Marriage of Figaro,' and 'Cosi Fan Tutti.' I realize that an operatic season in New York must conflict with that of the Metropolitan Opera House.

"It is the only time of year when people may be found in town. Therefore it is necessary to proceed with caution. If possible I should like to give my season in connection with the Metropolitan's season. In the middle of it, so to speak. I have letters to several prominent men connected with that institution, and I shall make an attempt to carry through a plan of that sort.

Opera Houses Too Large.

"If that cannot be done I shall try to arrange another plan. As a matter of fact one of my theories is that all opera houses are too large. The day of the large opera house is past. Operas are not being written for them now with the exception of the Strauss works, which are usually short. A smaller auditorium is needed. The new operas are intime, and not grandiose like the Wagner or Meyerbeer works of the last century.

"I disagree with most people about Mozart productions also. I gave, as you know, a Mozart festival in London last Summer with a great deal of success. Now while a work of art of a previous century may be better than any work of this, still it remains antique, it is a different thing. I do not wholy sympathize, therefore, with the attempts made at Munich and elsewhere to reproduce, as much as possible, the manner in which Mozart was performed in Mozart's time.

"I do not believe in giving Shakespeare as he was performed in Shakespeare's time either, and I by no means believe in giving him as he is performed to-day, with so many accessories that half the lines have to be cut. But if one insists on Mozart being revived exactly as he was produced originally, why not let the clarinets play out of tune as they almost invariably did in Mozart's time?

"No, it cannot be done. Revolving stages to assist one in rapidly changing the scenes are effective, perhaps, but not necessary. I think it is much more essential to bring out the spirit of comedy in the works. That is what I strive to do first.

Interested Only in New Works.

"I am not an ordinary opera impresario. I am not producing operas to make money. In fact, I always lose it. The ordinary common or garden répertoire has no interest whatever for me. I am much less concerned with that than with other aspects of life. What I am concerned with is new works, works with great merit which the public will not like, for it is a fact that when a new work of any great merit is produced the public never likes it. This has always been so and always will be so.

"The success of 'Elektra' in London may be mentioned as an exception, but you must remember that London is the only city in the world where 'Elektra' has yet been a success. I gave it sixteen times in one short season. There were reasons for that also. You must remember that the English have a better training in the classics than any other nation as a whole. They were scandalized to hear that a man named von Hofmannstahl had desecrated a Greek play, and they wanted to see how he had done it.

"The English are also more fond of sporting life than any other nation, and when they heard that to play the horns in 'Elektra' took men of steely endurance, to sing the title rôle took gigantic strength, those things interested them, and they came to find out what 'Elektra' really was like. You see, you never can depend upon musical people alone to fill an opera house. Your audience must be made up of many classes.

"Now, I admire Strauss. I think his 'Rosenkavalier' is one of the greatest of modern works. I am making plans now to produce it in London, and I shall plan to give a Strauss season at the Théâtre du Châtelet in Paris in the Spring, not 'Salome, however; that has been done at the Opéra. But 'Der Rosenkavaller,' 'Elektra,' and 'Feuersnoth' will be new to Paris.

"I should like to do the same for New York, and I shall try to, but it is a different matter. In Paris I can secure the necessary artists from Germany in a few hours. Here it is a matter of weeks. When, for instance, I learn that a certain tenor is sick on Monday and cannot sing Tristan on Wednesday in London it is a very simple matter to get an artist to England from Germany in time for the Wednesday performance. But where will you find tenors to sing Tristan in New York unless you bring them?

The Operatic Problem.

"The operatic problem is becoming a great one. We perhaps produce works with more trappings and tinsel and archeological authority than formerly; perhaps the chorus sings better. It is possible that the orchestra is better, but where are the singers? How can you expect great singers to learn how to sing delicately while audiences demand the entire last act of 'Tristan' and 'Elektra'? After singing through a great orchestra like that it is wonderful if their voices remain. Edyth Walker can do it. She can sing 'Elektra' one night and Elizabeth in 'Tannhäuser'—quite a different matter—the next. But as a rule the singers are not preparing themselves for delicate and coloratura singing. What is the use? The modern composers do not demand it.

"And I think as we move into the smaller and more intimate opera house, when the question of salaries of singers can be suitably adjusted to balance with the amount paid by the audience to get in, that we shall take up the problem of more simple and more artistic staging.

"Last night I saw a house that is admirably adapted for opera, the Century Theatre. I am told that the acoustics are not good for opera, that it has been tried, but they could be remedied. The Manhattan Opera House, which I have not seen, is not available for opera.

"If nothing is decided while I am here this time I shall come again during the opera season. I return to London next week. Before then I intend to talk over the situation with several men whom I know.

May Give Orchestral Concerts.

"It is possible also that I shall come to this country this year to give a series of orchestral concerts. These, too, would contain novelties. I am not interested in playing the old works. We have a composer in England who is very little known here, Frederick Delius. I am told that works of his that have been played here have been badly played. I should like to introduce him to New Yorkers, and there are others."

Hammersteins Venture.

"What do you think of Mr. Hammerstein's chances in London?" was asked.

"I do not think he has any," was the reply. "Mr. Hammerstein's venture is likely to prove a fiasco. Mr. Hammerstein has built four opera houses, but what is the use of building opera houses to be turned into music halls? I do not think he has the répertoire or the singers to interest the public.

"Covent Garden, of which I am one of the Directors, now controls the rights to most of the interesting works, including even such works as 'Carmen,' and many of the Wagner works, to say nothing of the Puccini operas, and they are not likely to let them go. For the present I am working with Covent Garden.

"Still, competition is what always gives the breath of life to the opera situation. It is a curious fact that when a manager begins to arrange his season he first engages the singers the public wants to hear and then makes out his répertoire according to the singers. I would like to see a répertoire made out according to operas."

Mr. Beecham is a medium-sized man with dark hair, a mustache, and a Van Dyke beard. Yesterday he wore white trousers, with white low shoes and white stockings, and a blue coat. He speaks in an earnest, deliberate fashion, with carefully chosen words.

MISS HAZEL CRAWLEY, BRIDE.

The wedding of Miss Hazel Ross Crawley, daughter of Mrs. Anna Crawley of 546 West 124th Street, to Herman Goepper, only son of Mrs. Herman Goepper of Cincinnati, Ohio, took place last evening at the home of the bride's mother. The ceremony was performed at 8:30 o'clock by the Rev. Hiram L. Hulse, rector of St. Mary's Church.

The house was decorated with golden rod and greens, the couple standing under a bower of golden rod. The bride wore a trailing gown of white satin embroidered in silver and a tulle veil. She carried bridal roses and lilies of the valley. She had no attendants. Her brother, George E. Crawley, Columbia, class of '08, gave her in marriage. Lambert Murphy was best man.

A reception and collation followed the wedding ceremony, after which the couple left on their bridal trip. Upon their return they will live at Park Avenue and Ninety-fourth Street. Mr. Goepper is Assistant Treasurer of the Rockefeller Institute. He was graduated from Harvard last June.

Among the guests at the wedding were the bridegroom's mother and his sister, Miss Mary Goepper, who have spent the Summer at York Harbor, Me., and who will return to Cincinnati in a day or so. The Goeppers are an old Cincinnati family.

THEODOR W. KNAUTH TO WED.

Eldest Son of Mrs. Percival Knauth to Marry Miss Roediger of Germany.

The engagement is announced of Miss Gabriele Roediger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Roediger of Halle, Germany, to Theodor W. Knauth, eldest son of Mrs. Percival Knauth and the late Mr. Knauth of 302 West Seventy-sixth Street.

Mr. Knauth is a graduate of Harvard, class of '07. His mother was Miss Mary I. Whitman. His brother, Oswald, was graduated from Harvard in 1808, and another brother, Arnold W., is still a student there. The Knauth country place is Waldeck, Bolton Landing, N. Y.

For the last two years Mr. Knauth has been in Germany. Miss Roediger is now with her parents at Halle.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Haynes-Covington Wedding on Oct. 7.

Invitations are out for the marriage of Hasbrouck Haynes, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Oliphant Haynes of 11 West Ninety-fourth Street, to Miss Louise Covington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton C. Covington of Richmond, Ky., for the afternoon of Oct. 7. The wedding ceremony will take place in the First Christian Church, Richmond, Ky.

Miss Mary Covington, sister of the bride, is to be maid of honor, and Franklin Crosby of this city best man. The ushers chosen are Thomas E. Baldwin, Jr., Joseph Prewitt Chenault, McCreary Simmons, all of Richmond, Ky., and Walter Quinn of Shirley, Ill.

Mr. Haynes is a graduate of Stevens, a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. Miss Covington is of an old Southern family.

To-day's Weddings.

Miss Dorothy Vernon Buxton, daughter of Mrs. George Livingston Nichols, will be married at noon to-day to Adolph Boissevain of Amsterdam, Holland, in St. Matthew's Church at Bedford, N. Y. The reception and wedding breakfast will be at Alderbrook, the country estate of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas at Katonah, N. Y. A special train for the guests will leave the Grand Central Station at 11:15.

Miss Louise Burton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Burton, and Wendell P. Blagden, son of Mrs. Samuel P. Blagden of East Tenth Street, will be married at noon to-day in Trinity Church, Hewlett, L. I. A reception will follow at Albro Farms, the country home of the bride's parents.

Ralph Walter Page, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hines Page of this city, and Miss Leila Haywood Tuckerman, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Williard Tuckerman of Brookline, Mass., will be married in All Saints' Church in that place on Oct. 2. Mr. Page is a graduate of Harvard, class of '03. The couple's engagement was announced last June.

Miss Mignon Morrogh-Shannon to Wed.

The engagement is announced of Miss Mignon Morrogh-Shannon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Morrogh-Shannon of New Brunswick, N. J., to Alton P. Swan of Berlin, N. H. No date has been fixed for the wedding.

Miss Sahler to Wed A. B. Merriam.

The engagement is announced of Miss Florence L. Sahler, daughter of Mrs. D. Du Bois Sahler of 312 Fifth Avenue, to Alfred Brooks Merriam of this city. No date has been set for the wedding.

BLAUSTEIN—UMSTADTER.

The marriage of Miss Miriam Umstadter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Umstadter, to Dr. David Blaustein took place at the home of the bride, 122 West Fairfax Avenue, Norfolk, Va., on Monday last. Dr. Blaustein was formerly the Superintendent of the Educational Alliance of this city.

LUNCHEON TO ADMIRAL CHING.

Gen. Frederick Dent Grant and his staff received Admiral Ching and the officers of the Chinese cruiser at Governors Island yesterday. Gen. Grant gave a luncheon in honor of the visitors, after which the officers stationed at Governors Island were invited to meet the Admiral and his aids.

Among those who attended the luncheon were Cornelius Vanderbilt, George W. Perkins, Frederick Whitridge, and Lewis Nixon.

Gaby Deslys Sells Box at Auction.

Mlle. Gaby Deslys made her first appearance on an American stage yesterday afternoon, when she was present at the Casino at an auction sale of tickets for the opening performance of "The Revue of Revues" at the Winter Garden next week. Mlle. Deslys, introduced by William Pruette, acted as auctioneer for the first box sold. After some spirited bidding the box was sold to William Morris for $250. Al Jolson then took the stage and continued as master of ceremonies during the rest of the sale. Other auctioneers were Kate Elinore, Lydia Barry, Maud Raymond, Dorothy Jardon, James B. Carson, Adele Rowland, Elsa Ryan, and Charles Bigelow. Single seats in the orchestra sold as high as $70, or $280 for blocks of four, as they were offered. Almost the entire orchestra floor and the boxes were disposed of in this way.

COLUMBUS EXTOLLED IN A BERLIN OPERA

MAY BE FIRST SEEN HERE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 22.—"Christopher Columbus" is to be the title and theme of a new grand opera now being composed by Oskar H. Fried, the celebrated Berlin orchestral conductor and intimate friend of Richard Strauss. Fried was Strauss's candidate for the directorship of the New York Philharmonic Society following the death of Gustav Mahler.

The opera will not be produced before 1913, but it is complete in outline. It will be staged under the direction of the master hand of Max Reinhardt, king of the German producers, and New York may be the scene of the first performance. Fried described the scenario of the opera to THE TIMES correspondent to-day.

"The entire action," he said, "takes place in midocean aboard Columbus's flagship Santa Maria. It opens with the mutiny of the crew, which is angrily demanding the return of the expedition to Europe. Columbus is heard remonstrating with his sailors, begging them to stand by him. The second act is allegorical in character, being intended to reveal the dream which Columbus has had of the Utopian America he hopes to find. This act, which is in pantomime, also introduces a vision of the discoverer's benefactress, Queen Isabella, who urges him to remain steadfast in his resolve to reach the unknown Western World.

"The final act shows the last phase of the mutiny among the drunken crew, which is threatening to murder Columbus unless he immediately turns about. Columbus offers heroic resistance, but the crew succeeds in bringing the Santa Maria about with her prow turned east just as the lookout cries 'Land!' and the mutineers become the discoverer's devoted and enthusiastic supporters once again."

The opera consists of only one act, divided into three scenes. The composer thinks that the story of Columbus's trials and tribulations in midocean lends itself to an ideally, highly dramatic operatic treatment. The entire stage is to consist of the "ocean," and will require an extraordinarily large space.

MISS LANDIS ENGAGED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

NORDICA SINGS AT BRIARCLIFF.

Prima Donna's Musicale a Big Society Event at the Manor.

Mme. Nordica's musicale at Briarcliff Lodge last night was a big society event in Briarcliff Manor. The ballroom and the inclosed wide porches were thronged with guests and their friends. The society colonies of Westchester and Connecticut were represented by motoring parties. Mme. Nordica was assisted by Myron Whitney, basso, and Romayne Simmons, accompanist.

The programme was carefully selected by Mme. Nordica, and there were English, French, Italian, and German songs, some dramatic and some more light. The prima donna was in splendid voice and apparently enjoyed singing quite as much as the audience did in hearing her. At the conclusion a buffet supper was served. Among those present were Mrs. J. Stuart White and Miss Marie Young, Mrs. J. Edward Simmons, Mrs. J. W. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Vanderlip, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Beals, Mr. and Mrs. Norris Sellar, General and Mrs. W. W. Gordon, Mrs. George Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Low, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Smithers. Mrs. John D. Duncan and Miss Duncan, Capt. G. P. Cotton, Mr. and Mrs. S. Charles Welch, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Olive and Miss Olive, Mrs. E. H. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew, Mrs. W. C. Bibb, William G. Gibb.

Son Was Christened Peter Goelet.

A dispatch from Newport, R. I., yesterday to THE TIMES erroneously stated that the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goelet, on Thursday at Newport, had been christened Peter Gerry Goelet. The boy was christened Peter Goelet, without a middle name.

Mrs. Leslie Carter's Tour Delayed.

Mrs. Leslie Carter's convalescence has not been as rapid as was hoped for immediately after her recent operation, and so the beginning of her tour in "Two Women" has been postponed for several weeks. John Cort, her manager, does not wish her to undertake the task of directing rehearsals of the piece until she is entirely well. The first six weeks of her bookings have been canceled, but it is expected that she will be able to begin her season in Louisville on Nov. 6.

Mme. Schumann-Heink Decorated.

A cablegram received yesterday from Mme. Schumann-Heink, who is now in Darmstad, Germany, announces that she has been decorated by the Grand Duke Hessen with the gold order of Arts and Sciences. This is the ninth decoration which Mme. Schumann-Heink has had bestowed upon her during her career.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"When Sweet Sixteen," that will end its engagement at Daly's Theatre to-night, will be prepared for a road tour that will cover the entire company, to the Pacific Coast and back.

The Astor Theatre celebrated its fifth birthday yesterday. Five years ago last night the house opened with Annie Russell in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and since then twenty plays have been presented there, including the current comedy, "What the Doctor Ordered."

"Partners," an American comedy drama by Edith Ellis, author of "Seven Sisters" and "Mary Jane's Pa," will be produced by Frazee & Lederer at Powers Theatre, Grand Rapids, on Oct. 5. The company will include Frederick Burton, May Buckley, William Harrigan, Mildred Morris, Charles H. Bradshaw, Robert Craig, Gladys Murray, Henry Weaver, Isabel Goodwin, M. J. McQuarrie, and Virginia Russell. The play is founded on E. P. Roe's novel, "He Fell in Love with His Wife."

SOCIAL NOTES.

Col. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor came to town yesterday from Fernciff, Rhinebeck. They dined last night at the St. Regis.

Miss Agnes Lyman Sheehy, who is to be a débutante of this season, is with her mother, Mrs. William H. Sheehy of 100 East Seventeenth Street, in the White Mountains.

Mrs. Clermont L. Best plans to close her cottage at Newport the first week in October and return to New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Howland Haggerty Pell of 115 West Fifty-sixth Street are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter on Thursday morning at the Great Northern Hotel, where they have been staying for several weeks. The child has been named Mary Willets Pell, after her mother, who was Miss Mary Willets.

Mrs. Frederic Neilson is expected to arrive shortly from Europe, and will take up her residence in Newport, having negotiated for an estate there.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Bourke Cockran will be at the Ritz-Carlton for the Winter.

Mrs. Albert Gallatin and Miss Cornelia Gallatin arrived yesterday from Europe. Mr. and Mrs. Moses Taylor Pyne and their son, M. Taylor Pyne, Jr., also returned yesterday from abroad.

Miss May Van Alen came to town yesterday from Newport to remain until she sails for Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Henri A. L. Hoguet, who are at their country place at Hoguet Point, on Lake Mahopac, will give a reception there on Oct. 14 to celebrate their sixth wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harriman will keep their Newport residence open all year. They plan to remain there until after the holidays before coming to New York for the season.

FAIL TO CHOOSE A CONDUCTOR

Seattle Symphony Orchestra Suspends Its Concerts Until 1912-13.

The trustees of the Seattle Symphony Orchestra have decided to suspend the concerts of that organization until the season 1912-13, owing to the fact that the former conductor, Henry Hadley, has been engaged to conduct the new San Francisco Orchestra, and also that it was difficult to find a satisfactory successor. Among the conductors who had been considered were Arnold Volpe of New York, who named a prohibitive salary; Ossip Gabriliowitsch, whose price was likewise too high, Modest Altschuler, Sam Franko, and Elliott Schenck. Differences of opinion have arisen in regard to the comparative merits of these conductors, and a selection was found impossible.

However, John M. Spargur, the concertmeister of the old orchestra, and formerly of New York, is to conduct a series of subscription concerts. This organization will be known as the Spargur Orchestra. The trustees will commence work immediately on a plan to revive the Seattle Symphony Orchestra during the season 1912-13.

BOY ACTOR STUDIES RAPIDLY

An experiment was made at the Century Theatre yesterday to find out how quickly the children in "The Blue Bird" could memorize "lines" in a play, and Burford Hampden, who plays Tyltyl in the Maeterlinck piece, succeeded in committing to memory in one hour 256 lines of Rostand's "A Lady of Dreams." This play was selected because none of the children had read it or even knew its story. Prof. Elmer S. Jones, formerly Instructor of Psychology in Columbia University, assisted Hugh Ford, the stage director, in the contest.

Master Hampden, who is 16 years old, is said to have learned the entire part of Tyltyl in three days.

HERMAN KREISMANN DEAD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 22.—The death is announced in Switzerland of Herman Kreismann, the doyen of Berlin's American colony, aged 81. He had been an invalid for the past five years, and had gone to Switzerland in search of health.

The funeral takes place on Sunday in Berlin under the auspices of the American Association of Commerce and Trade, of which Mr. Kreismann was the first President.

Mr. Kreismann had lived in Germany since 1862, when he was sent here as Secretary to the American Legation by President Lincoln, of whom he was a political crony in Illinois. Mr. Kreismann campaigned for Lincoln among the German voters of the West and Northwest. Later President Lincoln appointed him Consul General at Berlin.

He resigned from the Government service in the early seventies, to become head of the Berlin street railway system, which he later reorganized on American lines, with the substitution of electricity for horse traction.

700 Children at Madison Funeral.

DODGE CITY, Kan., Sept. 22.—With a score of Senators and Representatives appointed by the National Government present, and a wide representation of prominent Kansans attending, the funeral of Representative Edmond H. Madison was held here to-day. All business houses in the city were closed. Seven hundred school children in white stood at the entrance bareheaded as the procession entered the church. The sermon was preached by the Rev. J. W. Thompson of Topeka, formerly pastor of the Presbyterian Church here, and a lifelong friend of Mr. Madison.

Obituary Notes.

NEW SKIT SHOWN AT FOLIES BERGERE

It Is Called "A la Broadway," and It Aims to be a Satire on Musical Comedy.

BUT IT IS VERY POOR STUFF

An Occasional Pleasing Feature, but Not Enough Humor or Novelty to Make It First-Class Entertainment.

A new feature was added to the entertainment at the Folies Bergere last night by the production of a second part known as "A la Broadway," and described as a satirical burlesque on all musical comedies.

As far as it went the satirical idea was a good one, but it didn't go very far.

It was amusing at the beginning to see the familiar household love story begun quite seriously, and then turned to musical comedy uses by the irate father's secretary, who insisted that such was the only way to make it come out happily. And there was momentary fun in the introduction of the chorus describing in a song their own occupation, which has nothing to do with the case. But the authors appeared to have had little ingenuity to develop their idea, and there was too little novelty to the songs and dances and specialties to make "A la Broadway" first-class entertainment.

In "The Philadelphia Drag" Mr. Wayburn hit upon a funny satirical dance idea, the number reversing the ginger and go of the familiar Rag, with its zip and rush, and ending with the chorus, prettily garbed in Quaker costumes, drowsily sinking down on the stage, to be awakened presently by the crowing of a rooster. Again there was some color and pretty movement in a Continental march by the chorus, and a girl named Mae West, hitherto unknown, pleased by her grotesquerie and a snappy way of singing and dancing. Will Phillips, a dry speaking monologist, provided as much amusement as his part permitted, and delivered the best lines of the skit in a conversation about George Washington.

"Washington was the first man to make the flag famous, wasn't he?" asked the English "comic" who had modeled himself upon Ernest Lambert's familiar type.

"Yes," was the answer, "but George M. Cohan was the first to make it pay."

A pair of rough-and-tumble acrobatic persons named Cook and Lorenz, who have been equally funereal on other occasions, were scheduled in a number programmed as "Antics of the Comics," which was a fortunate description, as it served to indicate to an extent what they were trying to do. And, appearing as plumbers, they did a skit in a bathroom which must have cost a lot of gray matter and the services of a hard-working crew of stage mechanics. But the result was doleful.

The new burlesque is preceded by "Hello, Broadway," in which Minerva Coverdale and Harry Pilcer still continue their dancing numbers. But the entire entertainment as it stands lacks variety and features to make it a great success.

Lyric Theatre Party for Clubwomen.

Miss B. L. Clark, Chairman of the Reception Committee of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs, will give a box party to prominent clubwomen at the Lyric Theatre to-night, where "Everywoman" will be seen by her guests. These will be Miss Mary Garret Hay, President of the State Federation of Woman's Clubs; Mrs. William Grant Brown, President City Federation of Women's Clubs; Miss Ann Rhodes and Mrs. A. M. Palmer. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President International Woman Suffrage Alliance, now making a trip around the world, was one of the invited guests.

MURPHY.—At a meeting of the Board of Governors of the Anawanda Club held on Sept. 22, 1911, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, The Board of Governors of the Anawanda Club of the City of New York has learned, with ineffable sorrow, of the untimely demise of our fellow-Governor and member, Hon. John J. Murphy; and

Whereas, Hon. John J. Murphy has been from his earliest manhood an enthusiastic worker for the success and well-being of this association, and by his genial temperament, his inflexible devotion to his friends, his sturdy and manly qualities created a pre-eminence for himself which can rarely be equaled by any other individual; and

Whereas, In all his relations of husband, father, son, and brother he typified the highest ideals of humanity; in his intercourse with his neighbors, friends, and fellow-members he was kindly, generous, and loyal, and his sudden taking away in the fullness of his manhood is an irreparable loss, not only to the vicinity where he was born and raised, but to the entire community of the City of New York; therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the Board of Governors of the Anawanda Club, deeply deplore the death of our friend and brother, and we tender to the surviving relatives our profound sympathy in their bereavement; that the Anawanda Club attend the funeral in a body; and be it

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions, suitably engrossed and duly authenticated by the officers of this association, be transmitted to the family of the deceased.

PATRICK J. WHITNEY, Chairman.
EMANUEL HAUSER, Secretary.

Members of the Anawanda Club are requested to attend the funeral of our late beloved associate, John J. Murphy, from his late residence, 309 East 17th St., on Monday, Sept. 25, at 10 A. M.; thence to the Church of the Epiphany, 2d Av., near 21st St., where a solemn requiem mass will be offered up for the repose of his soul.

Joseph F. Moss, President; George A. Barry, George C. Kissel, Edward J. Hinch, Secretaries.

MURPHY.—At a meeting of the officers of the Tammany Hall General Committee of the Twelfth Assembly District, held on September 22, 1911, the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, God in His infinite wisdom has taken to Himself Hon. John J. Murphy, for many years the acting leader of the Twelfth Assembly District, Borough of Manhattan; and,

WHEREAS, Hon. John J. Murphy during his lifetime was conspicuously honored by the people of his home and adjoining districts in being elected to the offices of Alderman and Councilman; and,

WHEREAS, Hon. John J. Murphy throughout his entire career displayed a sterling integrity, a high sense of honor, and an unswerving

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 22.—Honestly, these Cardinals are as stubborn as mules, sometimes. They had apparently become reconciled to another defeat at Robison Park this afternoon when they balked and kicked over the traces. In a turbulent ninth-inning rally they drove Ames from the box with the bases jammed and only one out. Marquard was called on to save the team's name and honor, and after fanning Pinch Hitter McIver, up comes the monstrous Greek gladiator, Konetchy. He falls hard against an out hoop and larrups the ball to left field for two bases, sending in two runs, which tied the score.

Gallantly the Giants fought back, and an error and a long two-base rap by Devore put the New Yorkers in the lead in the tenth inning. But the stubborn Cardinals weren't beaten yet. Oh, no. They loaded up the bases on Marquard and threatened to spill the beans at any moment. The lanky southpaw had the time of his life twirling out of the difficulty, but with a cool head, a steady hand, and a spinner which broke a foot wide, Richard De Marquis humbled the St. Looey upstarts and made them banquet gently from his palm. The score was 4 to 3.

The New Yorks committed no petty larceny to-day. Not a base did they steal. Devore tried to steal third, but was nipped, and no more attempts were made. This tearing outburst of speed on the bases has tired the Giants. It has also made the base paths at Robison Park look like a plowed field. Also, shins have been barked, uniforms and stockings ripper beyond repair, and shoes spiked and tattered. When the Giants get back to Coogan's Hollow they will be battle scarred, sure enough.

When Ames was good in the box he was very good, but when he was bad he was horrid. Several times he had Cardinals within reach of runs, but managed to pitch himself out of all excavations until the eighth inning, when he tried to throw the ball away and let in a run with a couple of wild pitches. St. Louis set off a ton of dynamite under him in the ninth, and Marquard assumed the rôle of rescuer. For a time it looked as if the Rube was also included among the explosion victims, but he dodged disaster by a hair.

Bresnahan sent one of his recruits, Red Radabaugh from Kentucky, Sah, against Manhattan. The rookey had the Giants yelling for assistance except in the fifth inning, when a bunch of four hits gave them three runs. Red was taken out in the ninth inning to allow Wingo to bat. His retirement was a lucky move in New York's favor, for if he had stayed in the game it is doubtful if they would have been able to hit him again, as he was pitching in great form. New York took four out of five games here, and the pennant looks so close that they can almost touch it.

Radabaugh had the Giants groping about in the dark until the fifth inning. Merkle fanned and Herzog sent a hot grounder through short. After Fletcher walked, Meyers ripped a two-bagger to left, scoring Herzog and pushing Fletcher to third. Ames lifted a foul fly to Smith, and then Devore tore a sizzling single through the box, sending Fletcher and Meyers home. Devore took second on Doyle's short hit to right, but New York's base-stealing machinery wasn't working smoothly, for Josh was nailed sliding into third base.

Ames pitched himself out of a deep hole in the fifth inning. With two out, Huggins and Oakes singled, "Rabbit" stealing third boldly while Meyers was returning the ball to Ames. Konetchy had a glorious chance to clean up, but Ames struck him out, the third whiff of the inning.

Ames gave his teammates palpitation of the heart in the eighth inning, when he suddenly became wild. Huggins bounded a hit off Herzog's cinderellas. Oakes went out to Snodgrass and Konetchy fanned. Doyle booted Ellis's grasser, and a wild pitch by Ames sent the runners along a corner. Evans walked, and Cardinals were hanging from the straps on all the bases. Whoa, Ames, whoa! Red unraveled another wild pitch. The ball rolled to the stand and Huggins scored. Ames got two strikes on Hauser, and then he bumped a fly to Snodgrass.

Ames, who had threatened to crack half a dozen times, exploded in the ninth inning, just as the Giants were ready to carry the victory out of the park. Conwell fanned, but that was the last good thing Ames did. Bliss beat out a single and Wingo walked. Huggins tapped a single through Doyle and crowded the bases. Right here Ames was benched and Rube Marquard trotted forth to save the game. Rube struck out McIver. That's two out. Just a moment, good people. This is Konetchy, the terrible Greek, at the bat. Koney jarred a liner to left field for two bases, driving Bliss and Wingo home, tying the score. Such a headache! Ellis ended the conflagration by rolling out, Marquard to Merkle.

This state of affairs made the Giants fighting mad, so they piled into the Cardinals in the tenth inning. St. Louis sent another new pitcher, Zackert, against the Giants. He fanned Fletcher, and Meyers was safe when Conwell bungled his grounder at third. Marquard also struck out, but Devore came to the rescue with a steaming drive to deep left field for two bases, sending Meyers home with the victory.

But wait; it isn't all over yet. Marquard got himself into an alarming difficulty, and it took the best pitching that was in him to get out of the hole. He walked Evans for a starter, and Hauser got a hit when Fletcher and Devore collided in left field. Mowrey, batting for Conwell, sacrificed them along a base. Bliss outguessed Marquard and got a pass, filling the bases. Rube was up to the test, and Clark, pinch hitting for Zackert, filed to Devore, and the ball was returned in time to hold Evans at third. Huggins, after poking out half a dozen fouls, grounded to Herzog and was thrown out at first base.

Other boys want long trousers when they're 13 year size, and look better so.

So we've plenty of long trouser suits cut specially for boys — not little old men's suits.

Also plenty of the big sizes in knicker suits, and you know how hard it is to find variety in big boys' sizes.

Blues and blacks for dress; mixture suits for school, including some very handsome Scotch effects.

Everything else big boys or little boys wear—shoes with smart but sensible lasts; hats with the "college air"; shirts, scarfs, underwear, collars, stockings—everything.

GOING AFTER REDS' SCALPS NOW.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 22.—Many more frights like that end the team will go dippy. Before Konetchy got his two-bagger off Marquard, Ames had fanned him twice.

Somebody asked Manager McGraw if he had a scout looking over the Athletics. "No," he said, "I don't want to know anything about the way they play, till we meet them on the field. That is, if we do."

The crowd to-day consisted of about 879 persons, 800 of whom were grand stand umpires and they roasted Umpire Rigler for every decision he made.

McGraw is saving Mathewson for the Cubs. "Big Six" has a great record for the rest ten years. He has won 274 games and has lost 109, which gives him a percentage of 715.

Matty went down to the Stock Exchange here yesterday to see the quotations and in a jiffy was surrounded by two dozen messenger boys, who made him roll up a ball of paper and show them how to throw the "fadeaway." He showed 'em.

There is a Post Masters' convention at the hotel where the Giants were guests and a lot of P. M.'s played "hookey" to go out to the ball game.

After an all-night ride from here the Giants tackle the Reds to-morrow.

New York can lose twice as many games as the Cubs and still win.

Old Cy Young Shuts Out Pirates.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Sept. 22.—Boston to-day appeared in Pittsburgh for the last time this season, winning the game, 1 to 0. Cy Young pitched and showed his old-time form. It was the first time he was seen here since 1903, when he pitched for Boston in the world's series. The pitching on both sides was steady, not a base on balls being given by either pitcher. Boston won in the seventh inning, when Kirke hit for a double and was sent across the plate by Miller's out to Carey and a single by Bridwell. The score:

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Hard hitting against Bill Burns won an easy game for Chicago to-day over Philadelphia, by the score of 8 to 3. Brown was invincible in all but the fourth inning when the visitors bunched five of their six hits for three runs. Burns was hit safely thirteen times. Umpire Sheridan Retires Again.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Jack Sheridan, dean of the American League umpiring staff, arrived in Chicago yesterday with a plea to President Johnson to be relieved permanently from further duties as an arbiter. The league President acceded to Sheridan's wishes and presented him with the "medal of honor," the first ever awarded to an umpire. It is a handsome souvenir given in consideration of Sheridan's long service. The retiring umpire expects to leave for California on Sunday to spend the Winter. Mr. Johnson said that while Sheridan did not wish to umpire any more he would return from the coast next season and remain in the American League in an executive or managerial capacity. President Johnson declined to discuss any probable opening which Sheridan might fill.

The Yankees volplaned back to earth yesterday after spending several days in the air, and they stuck close enough to the lawn to take their last game of the season with the Cleveland Naps at the Hilltop. Ten innings were necessary before the victory was finally packed away by Chase's men, and the deciding blow was struck after the Yankees had pulled themselves out of a most threatening position. Roy Hartzell forced the battle into the extra inning with an error after two Naps had been laid away in the ninth inning, a fast double play killed a dangerous Cleveland rally in the tenth, and then the Yankees won the game on a triple by Bert Daniels and a single by Harry Wolter, Dolan having skied out in the interval between these two hits. The score was 4 to 3.

Manager Chase did more shifting yesterday, and the change worked well enough to be permanent. Otis Johnson was recalled to the shade of the bench and Hartzell was sent out to plug up the weakness that seems to stick to the short-field berth. Hartzell accomplished one of the best plays of the game in the tenth inning and helped to put a check to a Cleveland rally, but this performance would not have been possible except for a slip-up by Hartzell with two out in the Naps' half of the ninth inning. This error, the only misplay made by the Yankees, allowed Ball to chase across the plate with the tying run. Barring this poor throw, Hartzell played a good game. Hemphill was benched and Wolter was in his place in the outfield.

The Naps added eleven more hits to the large collection which they grabbed in the preceding games, but they could not hit Ford with any consistency. In every inning except the first the visitors got at least one hit, but only twice could they get a pair in the same chapter, and in neither of the innings when two hits were bunched was a run scored. Two steals made their first count possible; a triple and a sacrifice were the scoring implements for the second run, and Hartzell's error helped to the third. Besides scattering the hits Ford showed perfect control and did not issue a pass.

After the Naps had gone out in order in the first inning the Yankees scored their first run. Daniels greeted Kaler with a single through short and stole second. Dolan walked and moved along to second, while Daniels was going out at third on an attempted double steal. Wolter's single to left field chased Dolan home. With one out in the Yankees' half of the second inning Hartzell singled past short, stole second, and finished the trip when Williams's grounder bounded away from Olson. In the fourth inning two Yankees were thrown out at the plate, Chase in an attempt to score from third on Williams's grounder to Olson and Hartzell when he tried to pull off a double steal with Williams a moment later.

The Naps did not get a glimpse of third base until the seventh, and only three reached second up to that time. Turner opened the seventh with a single, beating out Dolan's throw after a great stop. Turner stole second and third and scored, while Hartzell was throwing Kaler out at first. In the eighth the Naps tied the score on Jackson's triple and Lajoie's sacrifice fly.

The Yankees forged ahead in their half of the ninth on a pass to Daniels, a wild pitch, and Cree's single. In this inning Wolter and Hartzell also drew passes, and Wolter was touched out at the plate by Kaler when he tried to score on a short passed ball. O'Neill lost the ball completely and Kaler raced in and recovered it in time to tag Wolter.

The Naps again evened matters in the ninth. With Ball on third base as the result of his single, Turner's sacrifice, and Easterly's out, Hartzell made a poor throw to Chase after fielding Butcher's grounder and Ball scored.

The Yankees went down in order in the ninth. A great stop by Hartzell and a double play tamed the Naps in the tenth, and then Daniels and Wolter unloaded the necessary hits for a victory.

FOOTBALL RULES ARE INTERPRETED

Forward Pass and Onside Kick Made Clear to Coaches and Officials.

The annual conference of the Football Rules Committee with officials, coaches and others interested in the sport, for the purpose of explaining any confusing wording of the rules, was held last night at the Manhattan Hotel, and was attended by upward of 125 persons, most of them prominently identified with the game. The attendance was the largest in the history of these annual conferences, and the meeting was one of the shortest. Parts of the rules, on which questions had been raised were read to those attending the meeting, other questions were asked for, and then the committee went into conference, returning in less than half an hour with explanations covering all points in question. In a number of instances words were added to or omitted from the rules formerly in vogue, but practically all of the changes were of a minor nature.

The forward pass and the onside kick came in for the greater part of the discussion, due to the fact that in many instances the rules regarding these plays may be construed as conflicting with other rules in the book. The question of an incompleted forward pass from behind the goal-line brought out much discussion, and the interpretation given by the committee was that such a pass would hereafter constitute a safety, whether on first, second, or third down.

The committee made no new rules, but it explained many points which had caused uncertainty. Some of the explanations were as follows: A forward pass which goes over the goal line or strikes the goal posts is a touchback. A ball is not dead when it strikes an official, and play must be continued as if the incident had not occurred. A forward pass illegally touched or recovered shall go to the opponents on the spot of the preceding down, instead of where the foul occurred. If a player loses the ball as he is making a forward pass the official must decide whether or not the ball in leaving his hand goes backward or forward. If forward it constitutes an incompleted forward pass, if backward a fumble. If a foul is declared, for which the penalty would carry the ball over the goal line, it shall be placed on the one-yard line.

The meeting was presided over by Dr. James A. Babbitt of Haverford, of the Rules Committee. He spoke briefly against changing officials after they had been named, and advised the officials against any padding of their expense accounts. He also stated that he expected that the officials for all the games, including the big contests of the year, could be announced in a few days.

Dr. Babbitt turned the meeting over to the charge of Walter Camp, and the latter named as his assistants for the discussion of the rules and their proper interpretation Carl F. Williams of the University of Pennsylvania and Percy D. Haughton of Harvard, both members of the Rules Committee; also Al Sharpe, Yale; W. N. Morice, University of Pennsylvania, and W. S. Langford, Trinity.

The attention of the officials was called to the rule relating to the protection of the man carrying the ball. It was the consensus of opinion that last year this rule was much abused both by players and officials. Walter Camp interpreted the rule, saying:

"The man carrying the ball connot be helped by any other player, and any man who, whether accidentally or not, places a hand on the player to assist him, should be imposed with the penalty in every case. This rule should be strictly adhered to in both large and small games, or else roughness will crop out in the game. It is up to the coaches, Captains, and officials to insist upon strict interpretation of the rules at all times."

Among the prominent men of football in attendance at the meeting were Walter Camp, Yale; James A. Babbitt, Haverford; Carl F. Williams, University of Pennsylvania; Percy D. Haughton, Harvard; V. M. Cooper, West Point; Joseph Beachem, Cornell, all members of the Rules Committee. Among the prominent officials, coaches, and ex-players in attendance were Michael J. Thompson, Georgetown; David Fultz, Brown; Robert Maxwell, Swarthmore; W. R. Okeson, Lehigh; Joseph Pendleton, Bowdoin; W. S. Langford, Trinity; Charles McCarthy, Germantown; Tom Thorpe, Columbia; Dr. Robert Torrey, University of Pennsylvania; "Mike" Whiting, Cornell; "Bo" Oloett, Yale; Fred J. Murphy, Yale; Fred W. Girl to Swim to Coney Island.

Miss Aisle Aykroyd, the Boston High School girl and champion female swimmer of New England from one to fifteen miles, after failing in an attempt to swim from East Twenty-sixth Street to Coney Island two weeks ago, will try again to-morrow. In the initial swim the Boston girl was taken ill after she had reached the end of Governors Island, a distance of five and one-half miles, and had to give up the task. It is her object to try and lower the present record for this contest, which was established this season by Rose Pitnof, also of Boston. The start will be governed by the tides, but it is expected that it will be made at 9 A. M.

NOTES OF THE BOXERS.

The Sharkey A. C. has a strong card for its entertainment to-night. Two ten-round bouts, a six-round match, and three four-round scraps make up the card, with a wrestling contest for the curtain-raiser. The main bout will be between Johnny Moran and Richy Ryan of the west side. The other ten-round affair will bring together "Kid" Alberts of Jersey City and K. O. Eger, a local boy of some reputation. Young Daly of New York and Young Murphy of Philadelphia will box six rounds. The wrestlers are Young Munday, the Italian champion, and Paddy Roach of Ireland.

Thirty-six rounds of boxing is scheduled at the Fairmont A. C. to-night, with Battling Larry Ryan and Jack Lundy as the topliners. This bout, between welterweights, is booked for ten rounds, but will very likely end before then. In the semi-final of ten rounds Harvey Kelley clashes with Young Ketchel, and Willie Chandler and Danny Wilson will box ten rounds. Young Lavigne and Jimmy Paul are matched for six rounds.

One of the best shows ever given by the Long Acre Athletic Club on West Twenty-ninth Street is carded for to-night. Two ten-round bouts, a semi-final of six rounds, and several bouts of lesser duration will fill the bill. In the first of the double events Jimmy Carter will face Billy Sherman, the former naval champion. In the other star event Eddie Smith will have to be at his best when he starts on his ten-round journey with Frank Hunter.

The new Polo A. A. will inaugurate its series of boxing bouts next Friday night, when the club will stage two of the best lightweights obtainable for the main attraction at ten rounds.

Tommy Ginty of Scranton, who gave "Knockout" Brown of this city a hard fight for six rounds, has at last secured the return match. Marty Pike asserts that Ginty forced the pace from start to finish with Brown, and that the local papers gave credit to the Scranton boy of having the better of the argument. Pike also states that if Ginty is unsuccessful in putting "K. O." away, he will donate his end of the purse to a charitable institution. The contest will be staged by the Twentieth Century A. C. in the St. Nicholas Rink on Oct. 3. Frankie Burns of Jersey City, the bantam champion, and Young Wagner of this city will meet before the same club on Friday, Sept. 29.

A special stag will be held at the Long Acre Club next Monday, in which the stars of the occasion will be Kid Goodman and Eddie Powers of Brooklyn, who recently fought Ty Cobb one of the hardest ten-round bouts seen before the local clubs. The boys are to box at the featherweight limit, and each has posted his money to guarantee appearance at the clubhouse at the required weight.

Billy Neumann has been made matchmaker of the Spring Valley A. A. at Spring Valley, N. Y., and has secured for the opening attraction Kid Black, the clever bantam, who fought all the best boys in his class with success, and Danny Dunn, for ten rounds. The first show will be held Saturday, Sept. 30.

WRIGHT AIRMEN AT NASSAU.

Several Aviators in Their Employ Will Compete in Series.

In addition to the list of famous aviators who will compete to-day and during the meeting at Nassau Boulevard it was announced last night that several of the Wright brothers' fliers would be on hand to battle for a division of the money to be awarded the successful airmen. With sanction—for such it was viewed by the management—of the Wrights, the series now becomes one which will have as participants nearly all of the pick of the world's experts. Those already named to take part are:

Harry N. Atwood, Lieut. Henry H. Arnold, Thomas S. Baldwin, George W. Beatty, Capt. Paul W. Beck, Harold H. Brown, W. Starling Burgess, Ferdinand de Marias, Mlle. Helene Dutrieu, D. W. Dyott, Theodore E. Elliott, Eugene Ely, Howard Gill, Claude Grahame-White, Charles K. Hamilton, Lee Hammond, Charles F. Willard, Andre Houbert, Lieut. Roy L. Kirtland, Ladis Lekowicz, J. A. D. McCurdy, James G. Mars, James B. Martin, Lieut. T. De Witt Milling, Miss Matilde Moisant, Earle L. Ovington, Miss Harriet Quimby, Abraham Raygorodsky, Lieut. John L. Rodgers, Ignace Seminouk, Fred T. Schneider, Rene Simon, Ensign John R. Towers, Miss Blanche Scott, and T. O. M. Sopwith.

KID McCOY "COMES BACK."

Defeats a Newark Heavyweight in About One Minute.

Kid McCoy's "come-back" in New York was signalized last night at Brown's Gymnasium by the easiest kind of a victory over Kid Elle, a Newark heavyweight, who was chased out of the ring after a session which lasted just one minute. McCoy received much applause as he walked into the ring and after the men had taken their corners was seen to be in very good fettle.

The pair had barely shaped up when the "Kid" let go one of his famous "corkscrews" to the body—the undoing of many an opponent in times gone by—and Elle apparently fared badly, as he immediately doubled up and began to retreat, covered up in a way that prevented McCoy from getting at him. The latter finally dropped a "pile-driver" to the back of Elle's neck, with the result that the referee immediately stopped the unequal contest, ordering McCoy to his corner and Elle out of the ring.

Bob Fitzsimmons, who was seated at the ringside, threw off his coat, jumped into the ring, and donned the gloves of the defeated man. He invited McCoy to the centre and they participated in a burlesque for about a minute to the delight of the crowd. Nothing but tapping was indulged in, and, as in the previous case, the referee put an end to the affair.

YOUNG CASHMAN'S BOUT.

Young Cashman of this city and Young Ketchel of Bridgeport were the victors of the two ten-round bouts which furnished the crowd at the Twentieth Century A. C. last night with enough action to satisfy the most exacting fan.

In the first ten-round contest the local boy won from Bull Anderson of Brooklyn, who took an awful beating, which was almost beyond human endurance after the first session, but was still ready and boring in for more at the final bell.

The final bout, although carded as the feature, had little on the previous one, but Young Ketchel, the Yankee Boy of Bridgeport, made Al Shumacker of this city go to cover in several of the rounds, and won handily.

Boxing at I.-A. A. C.

The final bouts of the Amateur Boxing Tournament under the auspices of the Irish-American Athletic Club at 110-112 East Fifty-ninth Street will be held to-night. High-class performances were seen at the preliminaries on Thursday night. About fifty boys will box to-night in the semi-finals and finals, and some good sports seems sure to result. The boys who stand out most prominently in the number who survived the preliminaries and whose chances of being returned winners in the final bouts, are: 105-Pound Class, George Hart, Irish-American A. C., and G. Leis, Mott Haven, A. C.; 115-Pound Class, T. Madoo, Pennant A. C., and M. Wagenbrennan, National A. C.; 135-Pound Class, C. Bager, Irish-American A. C., and A. Meehan, New West Side A. C. The 158-Pound Class was not put on Thursday night, so that weight will open the show to-night.

Romanoff to Throw Three Men.

Ivan Romanoff, the wrestling champion of Russia, has agreed to throw three men in an hour at Harlem River Park Monday night or forfeit a $1,000 side bet. Litovsky, Schnabel, and Mohl will be his opponents. Two other matches are scheduled for the evening. Jess Pedersen, the European champion, who arrives in this country to-morrow, will attend the bouts.

Colonial Y. C.'s Gala Day.

Members of the Colonial Yacht Club have scheduled a gala occasion for to-day, the first event of which will be a twenty-mile triangular race over the course in front of the clubhouse, Hudson River and 138th Street, which is scheduled for 2 o'clock. Later in the afternoon there will be a shore dinner, illumination, reception to club delegations, and the presentation of prizes won during the season, concluded with dancing.

Lauderbach Wins with Cue.

David Lauderbach, the amateur champion three-cushion carrom billiard player of Brooklyn, who was playing for Brooklyn in the fifth game of the Greater New York three-cushion carrom billiard tournament, decided at the Knickerbocker Billiard Academy of Brooklyn last night, easily defeated John W. Stone, a Manhattan representative, by the score of 40 to 28. Lauderbach was handicapped at 40 and he made the necessary tally in 59 innings. The New York player's handicap was 35.

SEMI-PRO BASEBALL.

Two games, in which the Long Branch Club, the Howards, the Lawrence Club of the New England League, and the Ridgewoods will clash will take place at Meyerrose Park, Covert Avenue Elevated Station, Ridgewood, to-morrow. Games will start at 1:30 and 3:30 P. M. The Long Branch Club will be the opponents of the Howards in the first game, while the Lawrence Club will play Hussey's Ridgewoods in the second contest. Luyster, star pitcher of the New England League the past season, will twirl for Lawrence, while Lindemann will oppose him for the Ridgewoods. A league battery will be presented by the Long Branch Club.

Connor's Royal Giants and the Haverstraws will be the attraction to-day at Bronx Oval, 163d Street and Southern Boulevard, play to be called at 3:15 P. M. The Haverstraws will be strengthened by several minor league players, and will have a minor league pitcher in the box. For the Royals Crawford and Smith will be the battery.

Billy Gilbert, the once famous Giant, is coming back to New York to-morrow, and will lead an all-star team against the Metropolitans at Lenox Oval, 145th Street and Lenox Avenue. Gilbert plays at second base. He has just returned from a successful season with the Erie Club. Damrau and Darbour will be on the team, and Al Schacht, the Mets' pitcher, will play against his own team this week. There will be a preliminary game at 2 P. M.

Ty Cobb will lead his crack all-stars to-morrow to Bronx Oval, 163d Street and Southern Boulevard, and there tackle the Bronx Athletics. Ty is slated to play first base for his team, and it is possible that he will try his hand at pitching. The Athletics will have Wilson and Mack in the points, George Browne in the outfield, and Paul Dietz and Henry Christ in the infield. The first game at Bronx Oval on Sunday will be between the Haverstraws and Bronx Independents. Play will be called at 1:45 and 3:30 P. M.

Tom Durkin of McNulty Field, 149th Street and Eighth Avenue, has provided a star attraction for Sunday. For some time the Young Sportsmans and the Falcon A. C. have been disputing the light semi-professional championship of Harlem, and on Sunday they will meet at McNulty Field to settle the argument. This game will be called at 3:30 o'clock. There will be an early contest at 1:30 o'clock between two fast amateur teams.

To-morrow at Recreation Park, Jackson and Steinway Avenues, near Queensboro Bridge plaza, Long Island City, the Long Island Athletics will meet the Pittsburgh Giants. The colored stars have met defeat twice this season at the hands of the Long Islanders. Both battles were hard fought, and, therefore, the visitors are out for revenge this time. The battery for the visitors will be Green and Washington, while Manager Morton will present Smith and Gaurvin. The game will be called at 3:30 P. M. sharp. The preliminary contest will start at 1 o'clock.

The biggest event of the local semi-professional baseball season will take place Sunday at Olympic Field, 136th Street and Fifth Avenue, when the Royal Giants and the Lincoln Giants clash in a double-header. Of the two games played the Royals have won one and tied one. Manager McMahon expects to win the two games on Sunday, as Redding, the crack pitcher of the Lincoln Giants, who has won twenty-four out of twenty-five games this season, will pitch the two games. Crawford will pitch the first game for the Royals, while Andrews will be in the box for the second game. The first game will be called at 11:30 o'clock.

On the Maroons' grounds, near the end of the Broadway Subway, to-morrow afternoon at 3:30 the Degnon Baseball Club and the Maroons will meet in the final game for the semi-professional championship. In the previous game in this series the Degnons defeated the Maroons by a score of 9 to 8.

EXCITING EVENTS AT WHITE PLAINS FAIR

There were some exciting moments around the White Plains Fair Grounds yesterday during the third day of the Westchester Horse Show, especially during the judging of the class for hunters which were performing over fences, when Edward Carl was thrown and narrowly escaped injury. He was riding Sister Sue, owned by David Dows, and the horse balked just as he was taking a timber top. The animal's knees struck the lower rail and fell and the rider was tossed over its head and landed on the other side of the barrier. Carl clung to the bridle, however, and this saved him from striking the ground. He remounted and cleared the other jumps with ease.

Following this excitement the "strong man with the iron jaw" on the Midway was angered by a boy and poked his finger in the lad's eye just as a number of society women were passing by. The boy's screams attracted a crowd that were about to mob the strong man, when Sheriff Scherp arrived and placed him under arrest.

Then the tire on one of the big automobiles near the horse show ring exploded with a loud report and frightened a number of horses near the parking spaces, causing them to rear and plunge, but did no damage.

During the judging of the different classes of horses other judges determined the winners of prizes of the different exhibits. Oliver Harriman, President of the Fair and Horse Show Association, called the "millionaire farmer" of the show, was beaten for first prize for the best collection of farm produce by Benjamin Brundage of Danbury, Conn. Mr. Harriman received second prize.

Claude D. Edgarton of Hartsdale beat out Howard Gould for the finest white Plymouth Rocks. The white Wyandottes shown by Miss Helen M. Gould were the best ever seen on exhibition and were awarded first colors.

Mrs. J. S. Walsh continues to lead in the horse show with the most prizes to her credit. She has won six blue ribbons and two reds and cash prizes aggregating $75. Her nearest competitor is J. Campbell Thompson, who has won four first prizes, five second honors, and one third. He has also won $315 in cash $200 of which was given him for having the best four-in-hand on exhibition on two different days.

The surprise of the day came in judging the classe for saddle horses over 15.2 hands. Fairy Queen, owned by Myron H. Oppenheim and ridden by Miss Van Wyck, which won the championship at the Syracuse Fair, only received a third prize, being beaten out by Hugh C. Willoughby's Sunchita, with Godfrey Preece's Old Splendid second.

An interesting feature of the show today was the tandem race twice around the half-mile track for a $250 cup. Emil Selig's team, Lady Grace and Big Tim, driven by Jack Donnelly, were first, while Mr. J. Campbell Thompson, driving Volunteer and Tom Mountain, was second.

In the class for pairs of harness horses Mrs. J. S. Walsh again won easily with her Honor Bright and Honor Boy. She is always successful whenever she enters this pair of thoroughbreds. The summaries:

Class 17.—Harness horses, over 14.2 and not exceeding 15.2 hands—Won by George Clausen's Prince George; J. W. Harriman's Lady Dilham, second; Mrs. J. S. Walsh's Honor Bright, third.

Class 57.—Hunters, lightweight hunters, up to 165 pounds—Won by Frederick Bulls' Rock Crest; B. Lambert Sackett's Moonblossom, second; William Muldoon's St. Leon, third.

Class 9.—Harness horses, over 15.1 and not exceeding 15.3 hands—Won by De Witt C. Flanagan's Rataplan; Mrs. J. S. Walsh's Maid of Honor, second; De Witt C. Flanagan's Prince Charming, third.

Class 37.—Ponies in harness, 13 hands or under—Won by Mrs. E. C. Bowen's Natty; Mrs. H. J. Graham's Pride of Onway, second; Master William Strange's Daisy, third.

Class 33.—Tandem race. Teams to be driven in regulation tandem harness to appropriate two-wheeled cart weighing with occupants not less than 750 pounds, to make circuit of the half-mile track twice a trot under the rules of the National Trotting Association. Two different owners to start. The cup to be won twice by the same owner before becoming his property—Won by Emil Seelig's Lady Grace and Big Tim; J. Campbell Thompson's Volunteer and Tom Mountain, second.

Class 14.—Pairs harness horses, to be shown before a lady's phaeton, ladies to drive—Won by Mrs. J. S. Walsh's Honor Bright and Honor Boy; Emil Seelig's Max and Climax, second.

Class 58.—Hunters; Corinthian class, open to all hunters. Horses shall be ridden by members of some recognized hunt club in the respective hunt's colors—Won by Frederic Bull's Rock Cress; Frederic Bull's Sunday Morning, second; S. Bryce Wing's Embarta, third.

Class 34.—Four-in-hands. Park team to be shown before a park drag or break. Horses only to count—Won by J. Campbell Thompson; Emil Seelig, second.

Class 50.—Saddle horses, 15 hands or over. Owners to ride—Won by W. A. McGibbon's Rosabel; Hugh C. Willoughby's Sunchita, second; Miss H. D. Atterbury's Kildare, third.

Class 21.—Local. Harness horses, not exceeding 15.1 hands—Won by J. Campbell Thompson's The Girl; R. F. De Mauriac's Fashion, second; George Greer's Lady Brookside, third.

Bicycle Century Run.

The Century Road Club of America, New York State Division, will hold its fifteenth annual Fall century run on Long Island on Sunday, Oct. 1. The route will be from the Prospect Park Plaza to Coney Island and then to Hicksville and return. There will be a slow and a fast division, the first leaving the plaza at 7 A. M. in charge of E. E. Frayssе, chief pacemaker, and the latter, consisting of the speedier pedal pushers, will leave an hour later in charge of Fred De Bonmer, chief pacemaker, and are scheduled to finish at the plaza at 6 P. M. All survivors will be awarded a sterling silver medal.

Drivers Want Wagner to Start Race.

The Motor Racing Drivers' Association are drawing up resolutions in the form of a petition to the American Automobile Association asking that Fred J. Wagner be appointed official starter for the Fairmount Park road race at Philadelphia, Oct. 7, in the place of D. H. Gantert of the Quaker City Motor Club, who started the race last year and the one previous to that. The drivers ask for the change on the ground that it will be for the best interests of the drivers, entrants, and the public. They say there was some dissatisfaction over the way the last two races were run off.

NOTES FOR THE GOLFERS.

H. H. Hilton, the British and American golf champion, will make his next appearance in this vicinity in a four-ball match over the Baltusrol links to-day, the plan being to have Hilton team up with George Duncan, the visiting professional, against Frederick Herreshoff and George Low, the Baltusrol "pro." Hilton has been axious to play at Baltusrol, and he had intended to play the links before the National championship week.

Another exhibition match to be arranged for professionals will be a four-ball affair at the Essex County Country Club on Saturday, Sept. 30. Duncan and Alec Smith will be opposed to Jack Hobens and Dave Hunter, the Essex "pro." This match will consist of thirty-six holes, and it is likely that upward of $300 will be hung up as an incentive.

Programmes are out for the annual open tournament of the Nassau Country Club, Oct. 5, 6, and 7. Provision has been made for four cups—Nassau Country, Glen Cove, North Country, and Red Spring—but an additional trophy will be put up provided the entries warrant it. There will be a thirty-six-hole stroke round on the first day, when players will classify themselves into sixteens according to the merit of their scores. There will be a medal play handicap at eighteen holes on the last day. Entries for the tournament proper will close at 7 P. M. on Tuesday, Oct. 3, with H. L. Hedger at the Nassau Country Club.

Although the seventh annual seniors' tournament at the Apawamis Club Sept. 27 and 28 is almost a week away, nearly 200 entries have already been received. The committee in charge, consisting of Horace L. Hotchkiss, Edmund C. Converse, Simeon Ford, James D. Foot, and Samuel W. Brown, announces that the links will be open for practice to those who have entered for the tournament to-day, also next Monday and Tuesday.

George Duncan at Canoe Brook.

There is to be a match played to-morrow at the Canoe Brook links, in which George Duncan, the British professional golfer, and Orrin Terry, the home professional; Jack Jolly, and George Low will take part.

AFTER CANADIAN HONORS.

Metropolitan Athletes Go to Montreal for Championships.

Local athletes, representing the Irish-American A. C. and the New York A. C., started for Montreal yesterday to take part in the Canadian championship track and field games, to be held this afternoon. Great interest is manifest in metropolitan circles over the outcome of some of the events, chiefly that of the half-mile, in which Melvin Sheppard of the Winged Foot Club, who will make an attempt to wipe off the record of Emilio Lunghi, an Italian runner, who set up a mark of 1:52 4-5 at Montreal, Sept. 15, 1906.

Sheppard has been in Canada for the past week preparing himself for the event, which is thought to be well within his powers, because of recent work on tracks which are said not to be anything like as fast as the third-of-a-mile oval at Montreal. It is the intention of the Irish-American organization to have Harry Gissing, a clubmate, pace Sheppard for the first 750 yards of the attempt, with which help the Olympic champion is expected to profit.

The Irish-American members who took the trip included Abel Kiviat, the mile National champion; J. M. Rosenberger, P. Ryan, A. T. Meyer, P. J. McDonald, J. J. Eller, Frank N. Riley, and J. W. Monument, each of whom has been entered in his favorite events. I. K. Lovell, a hurdler, also accompanied the team. The New York A. C. contingent was composed of R. L. Beatty, F. Kaiser, H. J. Grumpelt, and Tim Ahearne. The Pastime A. C. will be represented by Jim Duncan, formerly of the Mohawk A. C.

"VOCATIONAL TRAINING," A MENACE TO UNIVERSITIES

Written Expressly for The New York Times

Dean of the Graduate School, Princeton University.

TO ask whether educated men should be intelligent may seem at first sight merely a flippant way of putting a senseless question. Most persons, including even those who do not think much about such matters, believe that in some way or other an increase of intelligence is the sure outcome of "getting an education." The wise saying of Descartes that "the end of education is the development of intelligence" is often quoted to the same effect, and it is a common opinion that a man known as "educated" is thereby certified to the world as being really intelligent.

We homehow feel that this ought to be so—to be something to be depended on in each instance—and, in fact, it is so in a restricted sense. As we examine the foundations of educational theory and the results of history, we are glad to find ourselves justified in believing that every diligent human being of even moderate capacity becomes much more intelligent by means of school or college training than he would have been or perhaps could have been without it. This we feel is as surely true as that the soil will yield richer fruit by proper cultivation. From the truth at the root of this belief spring all schools, colleges, and institutions of knowledge the world over.

But when we examine the actual results of our education, noting the irreconcilable differences among educated men regarding essential questions and observing the occasional chaotic condition of educated opinion, we can find no adequate explanation if we ignore the patent fact that a good many of our so-called "educated men" are not really intelligent—that they are in fact men of unintelligent intellectual behavior, some of them superficially versed in a number of things somewhat badly understood, some of them sharply clear in a narrow way—precise to the dot in little things and helpless in all else, some only vaguely aware or wholly unaware of the relative importance of different topics, and usually lacking in steady, sensible judgment. And these are but a few instances—for the varieties of aberration from the clear white light of real intelligence are as many as the hues of the spectrum.

I am not referring here to the natural temperamental differences of men, which education may tone but cannot destroy, nor to the errors of crass untrained ignorance, which, like dulness itself, seem to be ineradicable. But I am thinking here of the pall of ignorance that seems so much darker when it rests on a man who is supposedly educated—for here his ignorance is unconscious and his situation is thereby made the more pathetic. The "light" that is in him is "darkness," and is all the more hopeless because it is supposed by its possessor to be "light." In such cases a man often utters what he thinks, supposing it to be what he knows. There are the "educated men" who do not discern between opinion and truth, nor see the relative importance of thigns, nor waken to appreciate what things mean when they happen outside the familiar routine of the ordinary. I fully believe that among honest men of school and college training this is the chief intellectual cause of discord. It is the hardest obstacle, excepting stupid dulness and moral baseness, to the progress of true education.

Do we realize that in our preoccupation with the machinery of education, our ready applause of this and that novelty and our eagerness to turn all to utilitarian ends, irrespective of the abiding invisible values, we are forgetting the all-important and controlling truth of the matter? This truth is that education is a warfare against ignorance—the old, ancient, inveterate ignorance to which the human race is newly born with every generation that enters the world. This is the one ever-old and ever-new material to be mastered and transformed—the vast opaque resisting mass which must first be illumined from without and then made luminous within by the processes of education. It is on the existence of this ever-recurring need the existence of institutions of knowledge depends—for to make the darkness light is the one ceaseless work of education and of educated men.

"Truth is one; error is manifold" is the saying credited to Pythagoras. The unity of truth, its close congruences, its luminous clearness "having no part dark," its blending harmonies, each answering to the other without discord—this has been the enchanting vision which has dominated the search for knowledge since man began to think. And we cannot but believe, we must believe, we do believe, that truth everywhere is in agreement with itself. It is one. But manifold indeed are the varities of unsound theory and manifold the delusions of the supposedly but not really educated from the ancient fallacy "perpetual motion" to the vagaries of "child psychology" and the fads which now beguile childhood with the notion that organized play is study. To include these vagaries under one class seems impossible, except by negation. We can say of them that they are not coherent, not consistent, not productive of intelligence in any strong sense. Their one common negative trait is detachment from appreciation of the important relations of knowledge. Perhaps we can turn this around a little and get some sort of a partial positive characterization by describing their nature as fractional, dissevering, centrifugal. Put them all together and they will never make a co-operating system. So far as they work at all, they work best singly and scatteringly.

And yet they do not work well. Take a few instances. The superficially educated man gets "out of his depth" as soon as he tries to think deeply, the narrowly trained man cannot see broadly because he uses his mind like an eye at a keyhole, the mechanically educated man cannot detect the life behind the mechanism, the man of commonplace cannot soar beyond the uninterestingly obvious, the miscellaneously minded man cannot "collect his thoughts" and so thinks "anything that comes in to his head,"—and none of these is really awake to the essential humor and sadness of his plight. They flock together after their several kinds, forming the divided and sometimes hostile clans of unintelligent knowledge. They have missed the unity of truth which would have made them one. Such "educated men" stand and must stand below the plane of general balanced knowledge—for which another name is intelligence. They are the cause not only of sharp positive disagreements in education but at times of chaotic confusion, which is even worse.

We have opened too large a vista for this brief paper. A glance here and there by way of suggestion is all that can be attempted. In doing so we shall have to omit the myriad instances where lack of intelligence is displayed in the common affairs of life, and to confine our attention to the supposedly educated men who are interested in matters of education. And even here a very few illustrations must suffice.

Our system of American education, if such it may be called, is in certain important respects our just pride. The "sense of achievement," which seemed to Matthew Arnold the distinctive note of our civilization, is evident in our schools of all grades from the lowest to the highest. We have taken old traditions and shaped them anew to suit our everchanging life. If they did not suit, we discarded them. Then, too, we have been making new traditions—some of them overnight. That we have been free to do so is a matter of congratulation. At least we are not "hide-bound," so we say. No "Procrustean bed" (that overworked metaphor!) for us. An immense amount of work has been done with conscience, persistence, and enthusiasm. Almost every new idea introduced has been given a trial and "worked for all it was worth." We have had educational discussion in torrents and a deluge of publication. There has been freedom to say anything and try anything that seemed worth saying or trying.

On certain sides of this somewhat tumultuous and multiform development we have been marvelously successful, particularly in regard to the laborious devotion of our teachers and the perfecting of the externals of education. The liberal pecuniary provision made by our several States and cities, the construction of our newer schoolhouses, their equipment, the well-planned playgrounds, the arrangements for securing good air and light, the general sanitation, the length of school time, the promptness and order with which masses of pupils are moved and taught, the school clock that will strike to meet any programme, the devices for making study easy and pleasant, the fire drill, the refreshment counters, manual training appliances, the clear-print books—these and a thousand other big and little things subservient to education in an external way have been perfected better in our land than elsewhere. Even a "Faculty Business Accelerator" of electrical contrivance is announced, providing a sort of self-registering electric chair (ominous thought!) for each professor to sit in. Nevertheless, making every allowance for amusingly extreme instances, we are first in the world in this matter of usable educational machinery.

All this has been done with knowledge—quick-witted, watchful, ready knowledge. And we are heartily thankful therefor. But, in the best sense of the word, it has not been done with intelligence, which is something more than knowledge and something which in its highest form becomes wisdom. A disproportionate amount of energy has been given to the machinery. Due regard has not been paid to the relative value of the outer mechanism of education when compared with the invisible processes to be used and the invisible end to be attained in dealing with the pupil's high possibilities as a developing human being. It is these alone which make any machinery useful. It is these which should dominate all scholars, teachers, managers, and officers in every stage of education from the timid beginnings in the primary school to the end of university studies.

No doubt this conviction is generally acknowledged to be true and is often in operative action. Yet what do we actually find in very many instances?—so many as to indicate that the evil is prevalent and threatening. We find the outer devices and routine mistaken for the inner life of education. What is more tedious and dispiriting in such schools than the mechanized teaching which ensues, class after class, section after section, "going through" the routine with the same "lock-step," and the teacher expected and required to deliver the "tale of the bricks" in the shape of so many pupils molded alike. It is no wonder such uniform "results" are mediocre. Not only the individuality of the student, but of the teacher becomes subjected to the "pedagogic cramp." It is no wonder that a majority of our public school teachers, no matter how promising at the start, succumb to this routine in a very few years, and pass the rest of their career feeding material to the machinery. Three or four years, in the opinion of one who was in position to know the truth of the matter, (Dr. William T. Harris, our late Commissioner of Education,) is the time to be allowed for the occurrence of this slump.

There is and must be some recoil from this extreme, so long as teachers and scholars are human beings. It seems to be found, however, only in resorting under the guise of study to pleasant diversions which are not studies at all—diverting the pupil, indeed, from lifeless routine and also diverting him from intellectual effort. Thus one extreme leads to another. This, inevitable as it is under such conditions, is not intelligent. Are our American boys and girls so feeble-minded that they cannot stand thorough training in things of the mind? Must a study be "made easy to escape being dull?" Are we unable to match ourselves with the schools of Germany, France, England, and Scotland? It may be humbling to our pride to admit it, and yet if we are aware of the facts, we must know that we do not yet equal the Old World schools in this all-important matter of intelligent thoroughness.

From the overbelief in machinery routine and rules (on which visible helps all weak teachers lean, instead of making the machinery their servant) it is easy to slide into acquiescence with the notion that the visible side is the chief thing, and that the real end of education is "practical," "vocational," "something you can see the use of," (a most uncouth phrase,) something that will "help a man to make a living." Here the utilitarian impulse, good always and good only when followed as subordinate to something higher—the making of a good life—comes in with almost irresistible sweep. Of course, nine-tenths of those who go to school must "make a living." Of course, their education should help to this end. Of course, it is folly to give them or any one else a "useless" training. Of course, very many will be lucky to get so much as even a "practical" training. And, of course, the early "practical" training is the best many can take and appreciate. It is some help—perhaps all they can get. And they must have it. It is their hard lot not to be able to get or appreciate more.

Full provision should be made and is rapidly being made to supply what they need and can take. Yet so long as it remains true that "man shall not live by bread alone," all men, so far as they can possibly get the chance, should be trained to be breadwinners—and something more. It is this "something more" which has always measured and we may well believe will always measure the difference between subjection and freedom, between the man who cannot rise in the intellectual and moral scale and the man who can. As a mere matter of national economy, and quite apart from its overwhelming moral importance, it "pays" a nation to have as many as possible of its citizens educated in "something more" than breadwinning. It "pays" to have well-educated men in great abundance for the sake of order and tranquillity, for the increase of national wealth, for the diminution of crime, for the measureless material benefits which flow from the spread of intelligence and enlightenment. It is this "something more" which, in the last analysis, makes the difference between the higher and lower forms of civilization.

All this is especially true of our universities, the very citadels of intelligence, the guardians in trust of the higher intellectual life of our nation. They are menaced now as never before by the assaults of "practical," "vocational" training—not with the laudable view of adding this to a liberal education but of placing it side by side in hostile rivalry. So far as this has been done it has operated to kill liberal studies. The obvious, the particular, the practical, the immediately useful, have to a large extent driven out the great studies of universal value, the studies slowly acquired, tonic to thought, widely applicable, lifelong in their value and indispensable to the highest civilization. The cheaper metal is driving out the gold. There is something intolerant in the movement. If it prevails our universities will be degraded. They will become something else than universities, and something inferior.

It is a new ignorance which is rising. That there should be ample place outside and a place inside universities for technical and vocational training is to be admitted. But the important point in this connection is that the vocational training should not be placed in a relation which destroys or even menaces the liberal arts and sciences—the very soul of university life. The movement is ignorant in that it fails to perceive that the relation of technical to liberal studies in a university is not co-ordinate but subordinate. In a university that team must be driven tandem and not abreast. Technical training is particular, liberal education is universal in its nature. And the things of universal range are the supreme concern of a university. In a university, always and everywhere, the particular must be less than the general, the obviously useful less than the permanently valuable, and the "living" less than the whole life. The university defenders of the value of disinterested truth and knowledge, of "wisdom and understanding" whose "price is above rubies"—and far above all the "vocational values"—have now no more urgent duty than to expose and resist this fundamentally unintelligent movement. At such a time it is most encouraging to notice the resolute stand taken on this very question by so highly informed a statesman as Arthur Balfour, in his address this July, and the following editorial comment thereon from The London Times:

> We often hear it said that learning should have a practical purpose; and that sounds reasonable enough until we inquire what is meant by practical. Then we usually find that practical means money-getting. We are told that learning is only valuable if it helps a man in the struggle for life. But if that is ever generally believed, the universities will change their nature and our civilization will become only an elaborately organized barbarism. Universities rose into being and flourished in power and splendor because their business was to help not the individual in his struggle for life but the world in its effort to rise above the struggle for life.

It is well to stop here, or other questions will crowd in thick and fast upon us. We return to our query: Should educated men be intelligent? It is not a flippant but a serious inquiry. It means that particular knowledge is not enough. It means that general knowledge is needed also. It means that the highest intelligence is none too great to cope with the problems of American education. It means that every man who has "had an education" should realize that he ought to know intelligently, and, with growing experience, wisely. It means that he ought to discard narrowness, personal prejudice, amateur knowledge, "half-baked" impressions, facile judgments, and to realize surely the difference between what he thinks he thinks, what he thinks he knows, and what he knows he knows. These are the stages of enlightenment from midnight to dawn to noon. And, above all, if he is to understand wisely any problem of education, let him not only give time and thought to it but subject his forming opinions, without diffidence or arrogance, to the criticism of others. It will save him much trouble later. It will reveal to him the difference between the small and the great, the valuable and the worthless, the illusory and the real, the fleeting and the enduring, in his thought. It will cleanse his mind and so make it clearer. And as he advances, ever thrusting out the structure of his knowledge on larger lines, he begins to see the size and sweep of the vast work of education, in which his own part seems and is so tiny. It is only then he becomes able to take the impersonal attitude—so much overwhelmed by the spectacle of what education means as the progressive organization of wise, universal knowledge, with all its parts down to the least in due order and "having no part dark," that he loses sight of self and its restraining narrowness, and thereby qualifies himself to observe and know things as an intelligent educated man.

TODDIE

By Gilbert Watson

The story of Toddie, caddie at St. Andrew's, Scotland, and his bachelor Major, and of how the two of them came to be lovers instead of women-haters. A rare blend of laughter and tears, rich in the same mellow wit and sentiment that charmed in "Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush," "Sentimental Tommy," and "Wee MacGregor." Bob is in it, too; and Bob is a dog worth knowing.

"A different kind of school." The reputation of this school has been built, not only upon its unusual ability to put boys in college, but also upon their general success while in college. All the benefits of individual instruction and personal influence of the private tutor, and also the advantages of school life, athletics, laboratories and gymnasium of the organized schools. Not being confined to a single tutor, but having individual instruction in each branch from a specialist and master of that branch, the student learns both rapidly and thoroughly. Limited to twenty students. Write for catalogue.

Autumn Book Number The New York Times

Sunday, October 22

Bookbuyers and booksellers regard the Autumn Book Number of The New York Times as the literary event of the season. It contains a carefully compiled list of over 100 books suitable for Autumn reading and other noteworthy additions to current literature, authoritative articles on subjects of universal literary interest, reviews and news of latest publications in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, London, Paris and Berlin.

The New York Times printed in the eight months of 1911 196,786 lines of book advertisements, a gain of 78,000 lines over the corresponding period of last year, a greater volume than in any similar period in previous years, and greater than that of any other morning newspaper in the United States.

Next Saturday

Uncertainties in Academic Education
By Dr. Henry A. Beers,
Professor of English Literature, Yale University
Saturday, October 7th

The Service of the Consulting Engineer in Education
By Dr. Elmer Ellsworth Brown,
Chancellor of New York University
Saturday, October 14th

Progressiveness in Higher Education
By Dr. Harry Burns Hutchins,
President of the University of Michigan

The New York Times is read by more persons interested in private school and college education than any other newspaper or magazine in America.

The supremacy of The New York Times in the educational advertising field is unquestioned. It has for many years printed more school advertising than any other New York newspaper.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

George Bronson-Howard, author and playwright, whose latest book, "An Enemy to Society," is to be published this Fall, returned to New York the first part of September after having been on tour with his play "Snobs." Mr. Howard will personally supervise the rehearsals of the production of "An Enemy to Society," which also will be put on as a play about the same time as the book is published.

Grace MacGowan Cooke, author of "The Power and the Glory," having written the first part of her new book at Carmel, Cal., where she has been spending the Summer, has gone with her sister and two daughters on a camping trip in the California mountains. Mrs. Cooke's little daughters took prominent parts in the "sane Fourth" celebration at the Carmel colony, the elder having taken part in an amateur production of "Twelfth Night" and the younger in the historical pageant.

The peculiar intimacy which readers sometimes claim with a favorite author, and which frequently leads to amusing results, is again exemplified in a letter received by Holman Day, author of "The Skipper and the Skipped." A woman writes to him: "After reading your works I feel acquainted with you, feel that you are good and kind." With this introduction she asks that he recommend a convent boarding school for her little daughter, and then suggests that she and the author of "The Skipper and the Skipped" collaborate in a literary enterprise, sharing the royalties—she to supply the story, and he to contribute his name.

This is an extract from a letter which James Oppenheim received from a friend recently: "Yesterday I went to ——'s bookshop and asked for your 'Pay Envelopes.' The clerk directed me to the last counter on the lefthand side, and when I arrived there I found myself in the stationery department! Such is Fame."

The following letter was received by the Harpers not long ago: "Inclosed please find application blank of Mark Twain's complete works on approval. I am very fond of reading and my life has been so full of trouble since my marriage four years ago I feel the need of Mark Twain's kindly humor to offset my troubles at this time."

John Ames Mitchell, in spite of his many activities as editor of Life, has written another novel, "Pandora's Box," and illustrated it himself. Mr. Mitchell has been a painter, an architect, and a student at the Harvard Scientific School.

Louis N. Parker, who arrived this month with his daughter from England, to rehearse his play "Disraeli," has been spending the week in Pittsburgh. He has novelized "Pomander Walk," to be published on the first of October. He will also publish "Disraeli," in its present dramatic form, under the indorsement of the Drama League of America.

Out To-day — THE OCTOBER HARPER'S — Out To-day

An American Woman in the Paris Commune

Madame de Hegermann-Lindencrone, whose delightful letters descriptive of her visits to the Court of Napoleon III. have attracted such wide attention in the pages of HARPER'S, now writes of an even more dramatic period of her life—her experiences in Paris during the Commune.

An Explorer in South America

CASPER WHITNEY is an explorer who has the faculty of making the reader see things exactly as he saw them. This account of his recent expedition up the great South American river—the Rio Negro—unaccompanied except by natives, is fascinating as a story.

A Boy Scout in the Civil War

Among the remarkable narratives of spies in our Civil War which WILLIAM GILMORE BEYMER has contributed to HARPER'S, none is so unique as this. For here the spy was a boy, who, with debonair gayety and coolness, went among the enemy's troops and is alive to-day.

7 Unusual Short Stories Among them are: James B. Connolly's "Cogan; Capeador"; Mrs. Henry Dudeney's "The Shadow"; and others by Melville D. Post, Lucy Pratt, Clare Benedict, Ralph Cabino and Florida Pier.

And the conclusion of MARGARET DELAND'S great serial THE IRON WOMAN

THE OCTOBER HARPER'S

THE FORBIDDEN WAY

THE NEW NOVEL BY GEORGE GIBBS

D. APPLETON & COMPANY, Publishers, New York

A graphic tale of the French Revolution, in which the vicissitudes of a Nobleman's family are followed through the days of the Terror to the death of Marshal Ney and the suppression of the revolutions. The main plot of the story turns on the utilization of the fillet of black velvet worn by Marie Antoinette at her execution as a ransom for the life of the hero's child in later years. Canon Sheehan is best known as the author of novels of Irish life, notably "My New Curate," "Luke Delmege," and "The Blindness of Dr. Gray."

HARPERS BOOKS

The Iron Woman
By Margaret Deland

It is more than a novel, as we have come to know the word. Mrs. Deland pictures youth—dewy, virginal youth—in all its tenderness and passion, its foolish obstinacy, and generous impulsiveness with truthful idealism. Her young people are wonderfully attractive in their perfect naturalness. She portrays the elders—people whom life has hardened—with just as deep understanding and sympathy. She has a way of penetrating the outward husk of habit and finding the living heart underneath. As for the story itself—it is difficult to speak of its beauty in terms of self-restraint.

The Ne'er-Do-Well
By Rex Beach

For rush of action, intensity of surprise and humor, Rex Beach has here outstripped himself. The Ne'er-Do-Well is a young American with a fight on his hands, and it isn't an easy fight to win. He goes to Panama. This new scene is even richer than Alaska. Through it all sweeps the joy, the zest, the enthusiasm of youth in action. The conquest of the Isthmus by the canal engineers forms a moving background full of color.

Victor Ollnee's Discipline
By Hamlin Garland

The romantic adventures of a robust young chap who is suddenly plunged into a new world—his conflict between love and disbelief in spiritualism. Victor discovers that his mother is a famous medium. The working out of the dissimilar elements makes the story a romance rather than a spiritualistic novel.

The Nine-Tenths
By James Oppenheim

The story of a good-natured, easy-going young business man suddenly awakened to his responsibilities to his fellow men and women. A fire in his factory causes the death of numerous working girls, and the hero, in reparation, vows to devote the rest of his life and fortune to the cause of the nine-tenths. Even his own love affair is ennobled. Told with heart-warming sincerity by one who knows and loves his characters.

The Confessions of Artemas Quibble
Of the New York Bar

His Autobiography Revised and Edited
By Arthur Train

Illustrated. $1.30 net; postpaid $1.40.

"The ingenuous and unvarnished history of Artemas Quibble, Esquire, one-time practitioner in the New York Criminal Courts." Mr. Artemas Quibble is unquestionably a rogue. It is also unquestionable that he is very human. He is a real character just as "David Harum" was; just as was the "Self-Made Merchant" who wrote letters to "His Son."

The Courage of the Commonplace
By Mary R. S. Andrews,
Author of "The Perfect Tribute."

50 cents net; postpaid 55 cents.

A story of true inspiration about a young college man who is made, not broken, by his typical but real tragedy of junior year. No Yale man should overlook it.

MARGERY

¶ Margery, a joyous creature of impulse, falls whole-heartedly in love with Arnold Leveson, a scholar, full of refined subtilities, absorbed in special investigations of Egyptian and Greek antiquity—and marries this self-centred precisian instead of her former out-door playfellow, Walter Morrison. With this combination of personalities, Mr. Benson has drawn one of the best and most convincing pictures of modern life that has yet come from his pen. There is probably not another writer living who could put before one with such quiet lifelikeness a figure like Mrs. Morrison, a creature whose whole gospel was the conventions, utterly without imagination or impulse or affection—except for her son.

Stories of Genuine Charm

THE SECRET GARDEN By Frances Hodgson Burnett

"Mrs. Burnett has again scored a success as a writer of optimistic fiction. If it is ever safe to predict a large reading for a piece of fiction, it is safe to do so in the case of 'The Secret Garden,' and this is because it is full of the magic which goes to the making of sunshine in life . . . far better piece of literary work than 'The Shuttle.'" —Minneapolis Journal

WHO IS STELLA?

Arnold Bennett's New Novel

Hilda Lessways

the girl seen so tantalizingly through the eyes of the hero of Clayhanger. The explanation of her enigmatic conduct toward him is more interesting, more vital, more convincing than even readers of the previous book will expect.

Hilda Lessways is the second novel in Arnold Bennett's great trilogy of the Five Towns, a study of English life in a manufacturing center. The first novel, Clayhanger, published a year ago, is called by the North American Review "the greatest novel of the past decade." It deals with the development of the hero, as the present story with that of the heroine.

TALK of the TOWN

By MRS. JOHN LANE. This new volume by the Author of "According to Maria" and "The Champagne Standard," fairly sparkles. It is the story of the great city, the salesrooms of art dealers, and the "old" furniture shops. As well, it follows Americans about Europe and includes a camel journey into the desert of Sahara. Mrs. Lane's wit and humor have mellowed without in the least losing their raciness. CLOTH. $1.25 FIXED PRICE. POSTAGE, 12 CENTS.

AWAKENING

By MAUD DIVER. The story of the marriage of a high-caste, cultivated Hindu girl to a young artist traveler, scion of an old English house, is as vivid a tale of true love, and its uneven course, as one may find. A romance of rare interest; it strikes a universal note, bearing out the promise of this well-known author. CLOTH. $1.30 NET. POSTAGE 12c

Mother Carey's Chickens

By Kate Douglas Wiggin

In "Mother Carey's Chickens," Mrs. Wiggin has created the ideal American mother, just as in "Rebecca" she created, according to Thomas Bailey Aldrich, "the nicest child in American literature."

"It is a book all the world is needing, for somehow mothers seem to be out of fashion just now—and nothing is so needed as real mothers! It is a beautiful story, heartening, cleansing and cheering."

My Own Story

By PRINCESS LOUISA of Tuscany
EX-CROWN PRINCESS OF SAXONY

With 19 Illustrations from Original Photographs. 8vo. 3.50 net; by mail 3.75

In this volume Louisa of Tuscany, ex-Crown Princess of Saxony, has for the first time given the authentic, inside history of the events that led to her sensational escape from the Court of Saxony and her meeting with Monsieur Giron, with whom the tongue of scandal had associated her name. It is a story of court intrigue that reads like romance.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Widespread Liquidation Causes Big Break in Steel Issues at the Opening.

PARTIAL RECOVERY FOLLOWS

Other Stocks Offer Good Resistance and Declining Tendency Is Checked.

It is necessary to go back to the panic days of 1907 to find conditions at the opening of a stock market session as tumultuous as those which reigned at the striking of the gong yesterday morning. A crowd of between four and five hundred brokers packed around the Steel post, nearly all of them with orders to sell at the opening, resulted in such confusion that it was five minutes after 10 o'clock before the first Steel quotation appeared on the tape. The first transaction recorded was for 45,000 shares at prices ranging from 54 to 55½, a drop of from 2¾ to 4¼ points over night. London had sent over selling orders aggregating many thousands of shares, and the commission houses had been in receipt of hundreds of telegrams from all parts of the country ordering sales of Steel at the opening. Before the end of the first half hour the price of the stock had broken to 53¾, a drop of 5 points from Thursday night's close, and of nearly 15 for the week.

The decisive defeat of reciprocity across the border influenced heavy selling of the Hill issues and other granger stocks, which had been counted upon to advance in the event of favorable action on this measure. Canadian Pacific opened 1¼ points below the last price on Thursday, while Great Northern opened with a loss of 3¼ points, Northern Pacific a loss of 2 points, and Union Pacific of ¾. Steel preferred opened 1⅝ points below the previous day's close. For a few moments the market appeared to be totally demoralized, and panic threatened when banking interests came to the support with buying orders. Before the end of the first hour the market reflected a rallying tendency, and the volume of sales rapidly subsided.

There was evidence on every hand that thousands of small holders of Steel issues had lost heart in the face of the widespread reports of an impending dissolution of the corporation, and had thrown their shares on the market. Previous to this most of the selling of Steel appeared to have come from the larger holders. Bankers said yesterday, however, that there was evidence through the multitude of small orders which reached this centre of a loss of confidence among many thousand holders of ten, twenty, and fifty share lots.

While sources close to the Steel management persisted yesterday in saying that a voluntary reorganization of the corporation for the purpose of avoiding a suit was out of the question, there was an increasing tendency on the part of leading banking interests to credit the early story to that effect. These men would not say that the Steel Corporation did not have a strong case and good prospects of defeating a Federal suit, but at the same time they pointed out that with President Taft and Attorney General Wickersham both committed to a strict interpretation of the Sherman law, it might prove the wisest policy on the part of the Steel Corporation to reorganize now with the friendly assistance of the Department of Justice.

Yesterday's sales reached the enormous aggregate of 1,388,166, the largest for any day since June 30, 1910. Of these more than half, or 716,950, consisted of Steel common and 33,400 of the preferred. At 53¼ the common sold at its lowest point since April, 1909. To find a lower price for the preferred it is necessary to go back as far as July, 1908.

If it were possible to eliminate the transactions in Steel from a consideration of yesterday's market there appear little out of the ordinary. While at the low prices of the day forty-eight stocks made new low records for this year, the later strength carried most of them back to their earlier levels, and many issues closed the day with gains. Financial institutions found not a little satisfaction in the underlying strength in this city shown by the fact that with all the severe strain to which the market has been subjected the last few days there have been no rumors of trouble, and not a single firm or institution has found it necessary to ask for help. There was a disposition to believe that even if the Steel Corporation is preparing to dissolve, the prospect is not one to excite more than a small part of the alarm which has resulted from the unconfirmed reports. The foreign markets are showing an improved tone, and New York has loaned Germany upward of $50,000,000 in the past ten days, in addition to taking over the immense volume of American stocks sold abroad.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call loaned on Stock Exchange collateral at 2@2¾ per cent., with the last loan at 2¾ per cent. Most of the day's loans were made at 2¼ per cent.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Government's Attitude.

It was not long ago that Wall Street blamed President Roosevelt for all of its misfortunes, present and prospective. Yesterday one of the leading bankers in the United States expressed the opinion that business was finding President Taft's judicial training more of a handicap than Mr. Roosevelt's impetuosity. "Ordinarily," said he, "I would much rather see Mr. Taft in the White House. Under the peculiar conditions which now prevail, however, I think that the country would fare better with a man of Mr. Roosevelt's type as President. Not being a lawyer, he was able to see beyond the legal aspect of many big questions. He drew a dead line and shot any one who crossed it, but he never felt himself limited to the close confines of legal procedure, and could recognize the claims of established ways of doing business." The attitude of the present Administration was indicated in a semi-official pronouncement from the Department of Justice. "The Law Department of the Government cannot undertake to act as universal counsel for the trusts. It is preparing to bring before the court all the combinations which appear to be in clear violation of the law." Chairman Stanley of the Steel Investigation Committee had this cheerful statement to give out: "It is my opinion that eventually the Steel Trust will consent to a voluntary dismemberment."

Bank Clearings Better.

Bank clearings throughout the country, as reported by Dun's Review, are 5.5 per cent. better than in the same week last year, the total being $2,615,849,435. The figures indicate a volume of payments through the banks close to normal, notwithstanding the hand-to-mouth character of mercantile trade reported.

Forty-eight Low Records.

In forty-eight low records produced in yesterday's market, the iron and steel companies, coppers, and equipment stocks were again the marked sufferers. Practically all of the coppers which had made new low records on Thursday went lower still, and one stock which had then escaped touching its previous low price appeared in the list. The steel stocks suffered less heavily, but there were more of the equipment stocks put to their low points of the year. Some of the low records made were: Amalgamated, 50⅞; American Car and Foundry, 43¾; American Locomotive, 38¾; American Smelting, 61⅛; American Smelting preferred, 101⅛; Anaconda, 32⅝; Bethlehem Steel preferred, 54½; Colorado Fuel and Iron, 25½; Great Northern ore, 43½; Miami Copper, 17⅜; National Lead preferred, 104; Nevada Consolidated, 16⅜; Pressed Steel Car, 25½; Pullman, 154½; Republic Iron and Steel preferred, 81⅛? Utah Copper, 40⅝; General Electric, 142, and Westinghouse Manufacturing, 59. Cuban-American Sugar sold at 58, a gain of 13 points over the previous sale, and made the only high record made on the Exchange for several days.

Record Days in Stock Market.

The spectacle around the steel post yesterday to many seemed unprecedented in the history of the Exchange, but there were a few old timers who recollected that nearly twenty years ago, to be exact, on Feb. 20, 1893, a record was made in transactions on an individual stock which has never since been equaled, although there have been several days in recent years in which more than half a million shares of a single issue have been traded in during a day's session. On Feb. 21, 1893, there were 957,955 shares of Reading traded in. The total transactions for that day in the whole market were 1,473,953 shares, then an unprecedented volume of trading. In fact, it remained a record day in the stock market for many years, and the trading in Reading has never been equaled since in issue. Since Reading is a "half stock," that is, its par is $50, it was argued yesterday that the big market of eighteen years ago was not a fair comparison. Southern Railway, however, is not a "half stock." That issue furnished transactions of 889,400 shares on April 15, 1902. On the Exchange's record day, April 30, 1901, when the market transactions aggregated 3,270,851, there were sold 489,444 shares of United Steel common and 438,700 preferred. The largest day in steel common before yesterday was Oct. 6, 1909, when there was 633,800 shares sold out of the market's total of 1,503,914. On that day the extreme range was only three points, and the close was with a net loss of one point.

Steel Employes Need Not Lose.

Since the price of Steel common started downward through the sixties, there has been some interest in the case of the corporation's employes who, under the profit-sharing plan, were allowed to subscribe to common as well as preferred stock in January last, under the deferred payment plan, by which the company holds the shares for the men to take up by gradual payment of the subscription price. There were 29,119 shares of the common stock at $70 and 19,229 shares of preferred at $114 per share taken by the employes. In January, 1909, 15,318 shares of common were taken at $50 and 18,000 shares of preferred at $110. The prices at which preferred, the only class of stock offered in other years, has been allotted, has ranged from $87.50 in 1906 to $124 in 1908. The plan encourages employes to hold their stock by making substantial payments each year in addition to the dividends. This year, for instance, subscribers who hold the Steel common bought at $70, for three years receive a bonus of $3.50 a share a year. There are also other special inducements to those who hold the securities bought under the plan, which make the average return from the completed transaction sufficiently attractive to offset the temptation to look for profits in the market—or worry about losses.

HOPES FOR LADING BILL PLAN

Lawyer for Liverpool Committee Not Discouraged by New Orleans Action.

Charles S. Haight, attorney for the Liverpool committee which has been trying to have its plan for safeguarding cotton bills of lading adopted by the shippers, railroads, and bankers of this country, got back yesterday from New Orleans, where the plan was emphatically rejected by a conference of shipping interests called by the local Cotton Exchange. Mr. Haight was confident of the adoption of the plain in spite of this.

"The conference," he said, "was packed to take just the action it did take. The New Orleans people are against the plan because it involves the issue of through bills of lading, covering both rail and ocean transportation. Heretofore New Orleans has been a big gainer by the transshipment of cotton at that point. A great deal of money has been left in that city as a result of this way of handling shipments, and the New Orleans interests are up in arms against the loss of this revenue.

"Individual shippers all over the South with whom we are in correspondence are almost unanimous in expressing their willingness to operate under the new system, and there is no doubt of its final establishment."

Get $6,000,000 Jersey Water Bonds.

A. B. Leach & Co. of this city were awarded in Jersey City yesterday a $6,776,000 bond issue on account of new city water works at Boonton, N. J. They bid $6,033,745 for the whole issue of 6,776 bonds, giving $1,023.28 for each bond, or a premium of $157,745.28 for the entire issue. The bonds are to be 4½ per cent., and will run for fifty years. There were eleven other bidders.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

STEADIER IN LATE SESSION

Recoveries After Early Weakness in Most Markets—Decline in Chicago Local Stocks.

Fully as much interest was manifested in the violent fluctuations in United States Steel in Philadelphia as in New York. Once again the tremendous transactions in that stock completely overshadowed all other dealings in the local market. The market had its weakest spell in the first half hour of the trading, after which there was a noticeable withdrawal of selling pressure.

In Boston, too, the interest centred in Steel common, which broke 5 points in sympathy with the New York market. Sales during the morning amounted to more than 11,000 shares of this stock. Other sections of the market were neglected, though a number of the copper specialties moved over a wide range. These included Amalgamated, Calumet and Hecla, Osceola, Quincy, and Calumet and Arizona. Some of these reached new low records for the year. During the subsequent recovery, following the rendering of support to the Wall Street list, a majority of the active issues got back to about yesterday's final quotations. Later the list became dull and the tone seemed steadier, though prices sagged under light pressure.

Heavy selling of Sears, Roebuck shares was once more a feature in Chicago. Under the first offerings the price fell 2 points to 123¾, but at this point supporting orders resulted in a rally to 126. Shares of other industrial corporations were not so well supported. Diamond Match, which closed yesterday at 99, fell to 97½, and Booth Fisheries preferred sold off to 60, a decline of 3 points, then regained a point. Pneumatic Tool and Chicago Railways 2s were well below the previous close at the end of the session. Can preferred made a slight gain.

Trading in Baltimore was confined to moderate business in investment bonds, there being a general inclination among both buyers and sellers to hold aloof from stocks.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Dun's Review says:

Dry goods continue in better demand, this applying alike to cottons, woolens, and silks, and improvement is noted in the reports from leading cities in different sections of the country. There is a fair business doing in shoes. Hides are in active demand. Larger inquiries for belting leather are noted. Iron and steel are unsettled by questions of prices and wages, but production appears to be about three-fourths of producing capacity. The country's export trade continues one of the notable features of the situation, the Government's last statement showing the largest August exports on record. During the latest week at New York the exports were $16,823,768, exceeding imports by $604,169, and being $2,041,648 greater than the exports a year ago, the gain over 1909 being still greater. Bank clearings this week outside New York are 0.9 per cent. less than a year ago and 1.4 per cent. better than in 1909, while in New York there is a gain of 9.4 per cent. over 1910, but a decrease of 22.5 per cent. from 1909. Railroad earnings in the first half of September increased 2 per cent. over last year. There has been heavy liquidation in cotton, which, with speculative selling, has depressed prices to the lowest point in two years. Looking at the situation as a whole, it is apparent that the volume of general business is still much below producing capacity, and there is little speculative anticipation of possible future wants. That capital is halted in entering upon large enterprises by the signs of the world unrest, which appear now in one country and then in another, and which cause disturbance to the international markets, is plain enough, but business men are apparently learning to adjust their affairs gradually to these unsettled conditions and to do business while big problems are being solved.

Bradstreet's says:

This week's reports regarding distributive trade are more favorable than they have been for some little time past. Not only is there a better feeling as to the future, but trade in a number of lines has actually improved. Perhaps the tendency is but temporary, but the plain fact is that buying has expanded, and, moreover, it tends to widen. This situation is no doubt due to the necessities of dealers, whose stocks are light as the result of prolonged hand-to-mouth buying. Conservatism has not been abandoned, nor is it likely to be, but the main point is that existing wants are there; hence a better volume of distributive trade is reported from a number of the larger markets, though, of course, several of the less important centres continue to report backward trade. Dry goods seem to be in the forefront as regards new demands, thus indicating that recent price reductions, especially in cottons, had a beneficial effect. Other staple lines, such as groceries, wool, clothing, and wearing apparel in general also share in the enlarged buying movement. Hardware, too, is in good demand. Buying of furniture, heretofore very backward, has picked up at several centres, though trade in this line is still below normal. Late crop reports have also improved, corn being out of danger for the most part, while pasturage and the potato crop, thanks to copious rains, are in better shape. At the same time reports as regards retail trade are irregular, this branch of distribution having been helped where Autumn-like temperatures prevail, while being deterred where the weather has been warm.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.—With the rejection of the proposed reciprocity agreement in Canada the aspect of the wheat market changed decisively. Sensational advances were recorded, and from the opening until the close of the day gains were held intact. The Northwestern markets were relatively strong, Minneapolis opening from 3 to 5c higher and closing at about 6c advance, while in Duluth gains of from 6 to 9c were scored. Other markets were approximately 3c higher, with a good demand from shorts. Profit taking at various times tended to check the upward movement, but offerings seemed well absorbed, with an increase in bullish sentiment. The outcome of the Canadian election was rather unexpected, but the effect of the result was decidedly greater than anticipated. Exports bids were naturally far below a workable basis owing to the sharp advances in domestic markets, but the claims by the bulls were that with the rather small Winter and Spring wheat crops this season and the liberal exports to date the amount of wheat remaining will not prove burdensome when home requirements have been satisfied. Foreign news was bearish, with a continuation of favorable crop conditions in the principal producing countries abroad and offerings liberal, which factors were reflected in disappointing Liverpool cables, but the influence of these conditions was imperceptible yesterday, being overshadowed by reciprocity developments. The Winnipeg market was weak, closing at 1c a bushel decline after earlier declines of about 2c a bushel, and it was obvious that spreads made by speculators several weeks ago on the belief that the United States and Canada would ratify the reciprocity measure were being undone at a loss. Irrespective of the future course of prices, it was generally conceded that the elimination of this factor will be beneficial for the markets in general. There were some predictions of an improved cash and flour demand from domestic sources, but it is apparent that sentiment is still confused. Flour prices were advanced about 25c a barrel, with reports as to the amount of business transpiring at the higher levels very contradictory.

Bradstreet's exports for the week were 3,809,000 bushels; since July 1, 83,000,000 bushels, against 17,534,000 last year and 25,000,000 two years ago. World's wheat exports promised a total of 10,200,000 bushels, despite liberal North American shipments, or 1,000,000 under last week and last year. There were no export sales reported. The Modern Miller report was slightly bearish on new Winter wheat condition.

Cash wheat was quoted at: No. 2 red, $1.00¾, elevator, export basis, and $1.02¼, free on board, afloat, for export; No. 2 hard, $1.06¾; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.19¾; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.09.

CORN.—The strong tone of other markets had a sympathetic effect. Demand from shorts was good, although it was obvious that profit taking by leading bulls, despite predictions of materially higher prices later in the season, restricted the upward tendency. Weather conditions are favorable, but movement from first hands is light. On the other hand, the cash and export demand is less urgent, and there appears to be some disposition to anticipate freer movement in the event of climatic conditions continuing favorable. There were no sales claimed for export. Reciprocity was not looked upon as a factor of importance in this market. Cash No. 2 Western quoted at 75¾c, elevator, domestic basis, and 75c, free on board, afloat, for export.

OATS.—The defeat of the reciprocity measure was the signal for considerable buying. There was hurried short covering and aggressiveness among bulls was more pronounced than for several weeks. It was intimated that offerings from the country would be lighter as a result of the reciprocity vote, and due to insistent claims of the feed crop situation being very firm. Cash standards quoted at 51¼c; No. 2 white, 52c; No. 3 white, 51c.

PROVISIONS.—Prices showed a good undertone during the session. Further liquidation in lard for the account of leading holders was reported, but offerings were gradually cared for by packing interests.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Investors Buy Plot in Greenwich Village for Improvement with Twelve Story Loft—Valencia Court Sold—Contracting Firm Leases Square Block in The Bronx.

A large Greenwich Village deal yesterday attracted attention anew to the fact that the commercial development of that large west side part of the city is still in a very active state. The deal is the largest that has been recorded in the locality for some time.

It involves the southwest corner of Clarkson and Washington Streets, including the three vacant plots at 578, 580 and 582 Washington Street, having a frontage there of 75 feet and 100 feet deep on Clarkson Street, in addition to the adjoining two 25-foot plots at 62 and 64 Clarkson Street, the latter being covered with an old stable, while the former is vacant. These two street plots have a depth of 100 feet, the total frontage on Clarkson Street being 150 feet.

The corner contains about 12,500 square feet. It was sold by William H. Whiting & Co. for Kantrowitz & Esberg to an investor, who is having plans prepared for improving the entire corner at once with a fireproof twelve-story loft, which will be the highest commercial structure in the immediate vicinity.

Two blocks to the north, at Morton Street, extending through the block to Barrow Street, and between Washington and Greenwich Streets, James H. Cruikshank has built three eight-story lofts. The Washington Street building, covering the entire block front, and one on half of the block front in Greenwich Street, was recently sold to the Hoffman estate.

Valencia Court Sold.

Valencia Court, a seven-story apartment house at 817 and 819 West Ninety-fifth Street, was sold yesterday by the A. & S. Construction Company, of which Samuel Gorden is president, to an investor.

The building, which occupies a plot 62.6 by 100.8, is located midway between West End Avenue and Riverside Drive, and was acquired by the A. & S. Construction Company last April in an exchange with Henry P. Gardner, who gave the house in part payment for the twelve-story loft building at 28 and 30 West Twenty-fifth Street, on plot 50 by 98.9.

There was a rumor of another apartment house deal on the same block, which could not be verified yesterday.

Investors Buy Tenements.

Jacob Weiss, in conjunction with Koppel Brothers, has sold for Well & Mayer 206 East Fifty-ninth Street, a five-story building to John Condax.

Hhe property is located near the entrance to Queensboro Bridge, and the buyer will alter the building for business.

Edgar M. Weis has sold for Mrs. Mary Mead 519 West Twenty-seventh Street, a five-story tenement. The Seiderman Realty Company, which is the buyer, gave in part payment fifteen lots in Jamaica, L. I.

Sale in East Harlem.

A resale in the old east side residential section of Harlem was announced yesterday by W. S. Earle, who sold for occupancy 518 East 121st Street, a three-story dwelling on a lot 17 by 80. The property, which is located 208 feet east of Pleasant Avenue, once the Fifth Avenue of Harlem, was acquired several months ago by the seller in a foreclosure proceeding.

Contractors Lease Square Block.

The Pittsburg Contracting Company has leased from A. G. Huntington & Co. for a term of years the entire block bounded by Tremont Avenue, Grove Lane, East 176th Street, and Aqueduct Avenue. Worthington Whitehouse negotiated the deal.

Brooklyn.

The J. D. Ranck Realty Company has sold a one-family detached frame dwelling on East Second Street, near Avenue N to Arthur Rolof; a two-family semi-detached frame dwelling, 1,142 East Second Street, to John Gorman; a one-family detached frame dwelling, 201 Avenue I, to H. A. Gartner; a one-family detached frame dwelling, 1,070 East Second Street, to George G. Carnegie, and have also sold through the Realty Sales Company a two-family detached frame dwelling, 125 Avenue J, corner East Second Street, to Ruth A. Standard; store and apartment property on Gravesend Avenue, 40 feet south of Avenue I to James F. Fletcher, and store and apartment property on Gravesend Avenue, 60 feet south of Avenue I to F. W. Von Hoorn.

Frank H. Taylor sold 1,720 Dorchester Road, corner East Eighteenth Street, a detached frame dwelling, built by Lewis H. Pounds, to Samuel B. Balcom; also 149 Herkimer Street, a three-story dwelling, to S. S. Green.

A plot of fourteen lots on the south side of Seventy-first Street, 167 feet west of Fort Hamilton Avenue, has been sold for the Bay Ridge Park Improvement Company to Samuel Ogden. Frank A. Seaver was the broker who negotiated the deal.

Staten Island.

Harold E. Wittemann has sold for Henry Hesse his residence on Broad Street, Stapleton. The buyer will improve the property for his occupancy.

Long Island.

The Eaton Land Company has sold to Daniel B. Crimmins of Manhattan two lots on Fernclliffe Street, at Queensboro Hill.

Isabelle Realty Company has sold to Emile Lubel of Long Island City a parcel of four lots at Colonial Heights, East Elmhurst.

James H. Johnston has sold to David Johnston of Los Angeles, Cal., a parcel of four lots at the southeast corner of Prospect and Toledo Avenues, Newtown.

The Tilford Park Company has sold to Harry A. Currie of Brooklyn five lots at Tilford Park, Flushing, subject to a mortgage of $3,000.

Babette Bloch has sold to Frederick S. Lauber of College Point a parcel having a frontage of 25 feet on the west side of Longley Street, 75 feet south of Fulton Avenue, College Point.

Recent Buyers.

Edward Hanlon of baseball fame is the buyer of the Mauretania and Lusitania, six-story structures, each occupying a plot 100 by 100, at 402 to 420 West 148th Street, recently sold by Emanuel and Samuel Krulewitch.

The purchase of the property was made for Hanlon by his sister, Mrs. S. Hendricks of Norwich, Conn., and in part payment he gave a block of twenty-two lots in Borough Park, Brooklyn, bounded by Fort Hamilton Avenue, Tenth Avenue, Fifty-first and Fifty-second Streets. The price agreed upon for both properties aggregates $550,000.

Leases.

M. Salmanowitsh has leased for Samuel Rouse the building 38 Division Street to Wolk & Goldberg, manufacturers of cloaks and suits, for a term of ten years.

Cross & Brown Company has leased for F. J. Agate to the Oakland Motor Car Company the three-story building at 121 West Fifty-first Street.

Cross & Brown Company has leased for A. B. Fox and Julia T. L. Cannon, represented by Horace S. Ely & Co., the entire five-story building 102-4 East Sixty-third Street, on lot 50 by 105. The lessee is the Cab and Taxi Company.

Charles F. Noyes Company has negotiated a renewal of the lease covering the store, basement, and first loft at 42 John Street from May 1 next, at a rent increase of approximately 50 per cent. over the present figure. The premises are occupied by a chop house, which is a landmark, as it is one of the oldest houses downtown.

Four New Fire Houses.

Plans have been filed for a three-story double truck house on the southeast corner of Lexington Avenue and Fiftieth Street, at a cost of $53,300; a three-story double engine and truck house on the north side of 181st Street, 100 feet east of Audubon Avenue, at a cost of $83,500; a new three-story truck house on the north side of Fulton Street, 33.5 feet west of Church Street, at a cost of $34,500, and a new three-story engine and truck house on the south side of 111th Street, 80 feet west of Second Avenue, at a cost of $76,700, for the Fire Department of the City of New York, showing a total cost of $248,500 for new fire houses. Hoppin & Koen are the architects.

ORR CAN'T EXPLAIN $810,000 ACCOUNTS

DENIES HAVING AN INTEREST

Robert P. Orr, an attorney of 656 President Street, Brooklyn, was examined yesterday by James C. Cropsey at the Brooklyn Union Bank inquiry. He was President of the Orr Contracting Company, one of the subsidiary organizations of David A. Sullivan's Mechanics and Traders' Bank. Orr explained how the company was organized on a capital of $500. Within two years the company had a credit of $1,451,250.63 on the books of the bank.

Orr, his brother, John, and Major James T. Ashley, cashier of the Mechanics and Traders' Bank were the incorporators of the contracting company. The witness said he consented to become President of the company at the request of Ashley. The cashier told him that the bank wanted a small corporation to handle some of its securities, and the Orr Company was organized for that purpose. Orr said he never made a cent from the company after it was incorporated. He signed many notes as President, but Ashley, who was Secretary and Treasurer, ran the company.

"Was any cash paid in by any of the incorporators for their stock?" asked Mr. Cropsey.

"I know I did not pay for any," replied the witness.

There was only one meeting of the company, so far as Orr knew, and that was when he was elected President.

Half a dozen loans made by the company were in Orr's name as President. Orr remembered that one was for the purchase of the People's Bank. Another for the purchase of the Pacific Bank, and a bond and mortgage company. The People's Bank, he said, was bought in his name after he had a talk with David A. Sullivan. The purchase, he said, was made with the bank's money. After it was completed he gave a personal note to the bank for the amount. He did not know whether the stock was put up as collateral, but he did know that the "bank got the stock all right."

"Did Mr. Sullivan tell you why he wanted the bank stock bought in your name, and not in the name of the bank?" asked Mr. Cropsey.

Orr said he did not remember. When he was asked if he did not know it was against the laws for a bank to acquire stock in another institution, he said he supposed it was. He identified several notes. One was for $112,350.34. This was the largest.

"Did you ever hear of any $410,000 in which the Orr Contracting Company was involved?" he was asked.

Orr said he didn't know anything about this transaction nor of another credit for $400,000 to his company on the books of the bank.

Mr. Ashley was then asked about the $400,000 and the $410,000 accounts. He said he supposed the money was used for the purchase of the People's Bank.

"Was it necessary to buy the bank through a dummy?" asked Cropsey.

"I think it was."

Mr. Ashley did not think the transaction illegal.

Assemblyman Goldstein was busy yesterday afternoon with District Attorney Clarke in presenting to the Grand Jury matters pertaining to the Union Bank. They are taking extra precautions to prevent any information about the jury's investigations of this case from getting out. While the jury was at work yesterday the witnesses were kept in an inner anteroom and the outside door was kept closed.

CARNEGIE TRUST COMPROMISE

Supreme Court Justice Gavegan granted yesterday the application of State Banking Supt. Van Tuyl to be allowed to compromise three claims held by the Carnegie Trust Company against concerns in which large interest had been held by William J. Cummins, former Director of the Carnegie Trust Company, and a powerful influence in its management. The claims aggregate $276,640.

The compromise was proposed by John D. and F. T. Cummins, brothers of William J. Cummins, who undertook to give their personal notes in exchange for the notes issued by the three concerns in which their brother was interested, now held by the Carnegie Trust Company.

One claim for $109,200 is against the Cummins-Bennett Company, which does a commission business in manufactured goods in the South. Its only assets are its office furniture, and it was stated that a judgment against it would therefore be worthless. By the compromise, it is proposed, however, that John D. and F. T. Cummins shall give their notes for $109,200, one-eighth of which is to be secured by a mortgage on property belonging to Patrick Ryan of Youngstown, Ohio. The remainder is to be paid in five yearly installments.

The second claim is to be guaranteed in full by Mr. Ryan. This is for $60,000 of notes of the Wholesale Merchants' Warehouse Company, of which William J. Cummins was President. Other officers of the concern, it is alleged, have denied that any of the money went to the firm, but went to the account of Cummins or to accounts designated by him. For these notes, the brothers offer guaranteed notes payable before September, 1912. The company is said to have no assets.

Cummins was the largest stockholder in the Continental Baking Powder Company, against which the Carnegie Trust holds $47,440 of notes. This concern's assets are said to consist simply of the reputation obtained by extensive advertising. As in the first case Mr. Ryan is to guarantee one-eight of the total sum.

Mr. Van Tuyl said that he didn't guarantee the Cummins brothers' financial reliability, but he pointed out that under any circumstances the Carnegie Trust Company, by this plan, would be secured to the extent of approximately $100,000 by the mortgages of Mr. Ryan, and he favored accepting the proposal.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Mixtures of Frozen Eggs Are Dutiable as "Eggs"—Other Tariff Decisions.

In denying a contention raised by H. Horsfield of New York, the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday decided that a frozen mixture imported in tins of about forty-three pounds each and consisting of 75 per cent. of the yolk of the egg, and 25 per cent. of the white, while though not in the proportions found in the natural egg is dutiable by similitude under the act of 1909 as "eggs not specially provided for" under Section 256, at the rate of 5 cents per dozen, on the basis of eleven eggs to the pound.

The importer asked for duty at either 3 cents a pound, or at 25 per cent. ad valorem. It was alleged that the product should be separated for duty purposes, the proportion of yolk mixture being dutiable under the provision for yolks of eggs, and the amount of whites under the same provision as albumen. Judge Waite in his decision for the board considers the contention that the marchandise should be classified as albumen, and not as yolks of eggs. The board, however, reaches the conclusion that the mixture as a whole should be regarded as dutiable by similitude to eggs. The Collector's assessment is affirmed and the protests overruled.

Gallagher & Ascher were successful in securing a reduction in the duty assessed by the Collector on photographers' exposure motors. They were returned for duty at the rate of 55 per cent., whereas the importers alleged them to be dutiable properly at the rate of 45 per cent. on the value. The latter assessment is under the metal schedule, and is sustained.

The Board of United States General Appraisers has overruled a protest filed by Butler Brothers, regarding the classification of so-called toy sewing machines. It appears that the machines are constructed in a flimsical fashion, are not practical sewing machines, and are intended for the use of children. They were returned for duty at the rate of 35 per cent. under the provision in the present tariff for "toys." The importers maintained that the articles are in fact the regular "sewing machines" specified in the present law. Judge Sharretts says in his decision that if the articles are playthings for children, it is obvious that they are not the sewing machines referred to in the act. The protests are denied, and the Collector affirmed.

The board has taken adverse action on protests filed by the Dubied Machinery Company and the Michelin Tire Company in cases affecting the classification of so-called security bolts. They are employed for holding automobile tires firmly in place on the rims of the wheels. Duty was exacted at 45 per cent. either as manufactures of metal or as parts of automobiles. The contention was that the articles are "bolts" within the meaning of Paragraph 144 of the existing law. Under this claim the duty is 1½ cents a pound. Judge Fischer denies the claim.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to:

7,861. STEEL OFFICE FURNITURE.—An American Consul in South Africa reports that a request has been received at his office from a local firm of manufacturers' agents established in that country for a number of years which desires to correspond with American manufacturers of steel office furniture.

7,862. TENDERS FOR PUMPS AND ELECTRIC MOTORS.—Vice Consul General Carl C. Hansen of Bangkok, Siam, has forwarded specifications, blueprints, and copies of forms of tenders for the supply and erection of centrifugal pumps and electric motors for the Bangkok waterworks. Tenders will be received until Dec. 30.

7,863. ELECTRIC AUTOMOBILES.—A report from an American Consul in a Latin-American country states that an inquiry has been received from one of the largest importing firms in the city in which he is located requesting names of the principal manufacturers of electric automobiles in the United States.

7,864. DEER, STAG, AND SHEEP SKINS.—A business firm in Germany writes to the Bureau of Manufactures that it would like to get in touch with firms in the United States handling deer, stag, and sheep skins.

7,865. BRICKMAKING, PIPE, AND EARTHENWARE MACHINERY.—A business firm in Russia informs an American consulate that it would like to receive catalogues of American brickmaking, earthen pipe, and other earthenware machinery, with and without power.

7,866. SMALL INCUBATORS.—(1) An American Consul in an Asiatic country reports that a business man in his district desires catalogues and price lists, with quotations, cost, insurance, and freight, together with gross and net shipping weights, for incubators of 100 eggs' capacity. The inquirer states that incubators of this size would find a ready sale in the country in question, and he is anxious to secure an agency. Correspondence may be in English. (2) The Bureau of Manufactures has also received a direct inquiry for incubators from Western Asia.

7,867. DREDGING AND EXCAVATING MACHINERY.—A report from an American consular officer in the Far East states that formal permission to dredge a canal between two points in that region has been granted by a Government department to a local business man. The Concessionaire is President of a company that has been organized with a capital of $2,500,000 subscribed ($1,000,000 paid up) for the purpose of operating and dredging this canal. Dredging machinery and other equipment to be used by this company is now being purchased, and interested firms should correspond with the persons above referred to.

7,868. COTTON WASTE.—Consul General Samuel Knabenshue of Tientsin, China, has forwarded a copy of an advertisement issued by the Managing Director of the Imperial Railways of North China for the supply of 100 tons of cotton waste for the year 1912. The waste must be delivered in lots of twenty tons each every three months, beginning Jan. 1, 1912. Hsinho, the point of delivery, is a few miles from the mouth of the Pelho River, and the railway touches the river there. Quotations should be given in local currency dollars, with samples, which are to be addressed to the Managing Director, Imperial Railways of North China. Tenders will be received until Oct. 11, 1911.

7,869. METAL FITTINGS FOR STOCKING AND SOCK SUSPENDERS.—An inquiry has been received at an American consulate in the United Kingdom for the names of manufacturers of metal fittings for stocking and sock suspenders.

7,870. PAINT FOR THE FAR EAST.—An American Consular officer in the Far East reports that an agricultural association in his district has made inquiries regarding paint factories in the United States. The Consular officer states that this company is largely concerned in the breeding of farm stock, but he is not aware that the managers have heretofore made any extensive purchases of paint.

7,871. HANDKERCHIEFS, WHITE METAL SPOONS, AND SHOE LEATHER.—The Bureau of Manufactures is in receipt of a communication from a Russian business man, stating that he would like to get in touch with American manufacturers of handkerchiefs, white metal spoons, and leather for boots. He desires to import these articles, and is anxious to form connections with houses in the United States.

7,872. VEHICLES.—A report from an American Consulate states that a European business man desires catalogues and price lists of four-wheeled "spiders" for country use, (not racing.) Prices should be quoted c. i. f., certain city, and shipments made by a certain line.

HOTEL MAN BANKRUPT.

Elmer F. Woodbury, hotel manager at 2,173 Broadway, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $125,297, and no available assets. He has ninety shares of stock of the Hotel St. Mark of Oakland Cal., of no value. Of the liabilities $60,061 grew out of the purchase of the Hotel Belleclaire, at Broadway and Seventy-seventh Street, from Albert W. Keen in November, 1910, of which $23,000 were notes given to Mr. Keen and $37,061 were, it is stated, debts of Mr. Keen which Mr. Woodbury assumed as part of the purchase price of the hotel. Mr. Woodbury contracted liabilities of $5,850 for supplies while he kept the hotel, and included in the liabilities is a penalty of $200 for violation of the game law of this State.

Other liabilities are $49,186 contingent liability as a majority stockholder in the Hotel St. Mark of Oakland under the laws of California, and $10,000 loan by Fred B. Johnston of Salinas, Cal., secured. Mr. Woodbury has been a hotel manager in this and other cities for the past ten years and he appears in the corporation directory as Secretary of the Belleclaire Hotel Company.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

MEYER RABINOWITZ.—Meyer Rabinowitz, a clerk at White Plains, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $3,988 and no assets. The debts were contracted in 1905, when he was a dealer in clothing at 113 Mulberry Street, this city.

BRICKER & ACKERMAN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Benjamin Bricker and Max Ackerman, who compose the firm of Bricker & Ackerman, manufacturers of furs, at 40 East Eighth Street, by these creditors: Fuchs & Co., $426; Hyman Etelson, $204, and Louis Kasurer, $855.

J. SLOTOPOLSKY & SON.—Schedules in bankruptcy of J. Slotopolsky & Son, wholesale fruit and produce, at 39 Ludlow Street, show liabilities of $15,580 and assets of $14,896, consisting of accounts, $8,621; horses and trucks, $1,200; stock, $75, and 200 acres of land in Kentucky, $5,000.

SAMUEL LEDERMAN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Samuel Lederman, dealer in plumbers' supplies, at 88 Manhattan Street, by these creditors: Coyne & Delaney Co. of Brooklyn, $4,891; Franklin Brass Company of Queens, $877, and the Armstrong Manufacturing Company, $40. Liabilities are $15,000 and assets $2,000. He has been in business fourteen years and his trouble is attributed to loss of $22,000 by bad debts.

ARTIST BEATS WOMAN POSING AS HIS WIFE

Freed in Court by Her Refusal to Prosecute, He Beats Photographer and Is Rearrested.

IDENTIFIED AS G. H. BARRETT

Real Wife Gets Telephone Message from Him, Denying He Is the Man—Other Woman from New Orleans.

George H. Barrett, a portrait painter, who came to New York from Norfolk, Va., several years ago, and married Miss Jennie Gibson, member of a prominent Boston (Mass.) family, was arraigned in the West Side Court yesterday morning, charged with disorderly conduct. The charge was based on the allegation that on Broadway early yesterday moring he had beaten a young woman with his walking cane. The woman refused to make a complaint against Barrett, saying that she was his wife. This proved later to be false, as the real Mrs. Barrett was at her home in the Hereford apartments, in West Seventy-ninth Street, near Riverside Drive, when the arrests were made, and knew nothing of the matter until she read it in the newspapers yesterday afternoon.

In court Barrett said he was "Edgar R. Smith of Des Moines, Iowa," and said that he was staying at the Hotel Navarre. The woman, who was arraigned on a disorderly charge at the same time, told Magistrate McQuade that she was Mrs. Smith. As she refused to prosecute, she and Barrett were discharged.

Barrett was free less than half an hour when he was arrested for assaulting Charles Curtis, a newspaper photographer, who attempted to take his picture. This time Barrett was not so lucky, for Curtis pressed the charge and Magistrate McQuade held the man in $500 bail for Special Sessions.

About 4 o'clock yesterday morning Policeman Butler of the West Forty-seventh Street Station was on Broadway near Fifty-fourth Street. He heard a woman scream, and looking up the street saw a big man beating a small woman with a walking cane. Butler says he got to the man just as the woman fell on the sidewalk. A crowd collected quickly. Butler shoved the man aside and then lifted the woman to her feet.

"What are you butting in for? This affair is none of your business. This woman is my wife," Butler says the man cried to him, angrily.

"He is my husband, and he did not strike me," the woman cried as she and the man were led away to the police station. There the man gave his name as Smith, and said his companion was his wife. The woman refused to enter a complaint of assault, and both were finally locked up on charges of disorderly conduct.

When the two were arraigned before Magistrate McQuade yesterday morning the woman was on the verge of hysterics. Barrett was nervous and irritable. Both were disheveled as a result of a night in police cells. The man was arraigned first.

"My wife and I," he told the Magistrate, "were on our way home and we had a dispute about the way we should go. I wanted to take a taxicab and she wanted to go in a street car. While we were arguing the matter the policeman came up and all this fuss resulted. I never raised my cane against her as it has been said."

The woman also denied that she had been assaulted, and Magistrate McQuade had to discharge them with a reprimand.

There was a tussle and a policeman came running up. The woman got away, and Barrett tried to escape, but he was too late. He was again taken to the West Forty-seventh Street Station and later arraigned in the West Side Court. Curtis made a charge of assault, and Magistrate McQuade held Barrett in $500 for Special Sessions. It was on the second arraignment that the initials "G. H. B." were discovered in the hatband, and the report became current that Smith was George H. Barrett, the artist, and that his companion was the wife of a New Orleans business man.

At the Hereford it was said that Mr. Barrett had not been seen there for about two months. His wife lived there alone. She had gone out shopping early yesterday morning, and was then entirely ignorant of the affair that had been aired in the West Side court.

About 2 o'clock Mrs. Barrett returned to her apartments and was quoted in one of the afternoon newspapers as identifying the woman in the case as the New Orleans woman, whose home is said to be near the Waldorf. According to that interview, as published, Mrs. Barrett said that her husband had been trying to get free of that woman for a year, but that the woman refused to let him alone. A letter was published said to have been written by the woman, in which she referred to a man said to be Mr. Barrett in the most endearing terms.

In the interview Mrs. Barrett was quoted as saying that her husband had lost a large amount of money in speculation in the past year.

At the Hereford last night Mrs. Barrett had a talk with her husband over the telephone. That talk occurred while the reporters were there waiting to interview her brother, John Gibson, who had stated that he was ready to answer all questions on behalf of his sister. Mr. Gibson had seen a copy of an afternoon newspaper in which appeared the interview said to have been given out by Mrs. Barrett. Mr. Gibson carried the paper to Mrs. Barrett. While she was looking it over the telephone rang.

Mr. Gibson was gone about fifteen minutes, and when he returned to the room where the reporters were he said he had only a brief statement to make. He was much agitated.

"I am requested by my sister, Mrs. Barrett," said Mr. Gibson, "to deny that she has given out an interview, and also to say that her husband has telephoned that he was not the man arrested this morning."

In the talk over the telephone Mrs. Barrett is said to have called her husband's attention to the photographs that were printed in several of the papers, one of them showing him in the act of assaulting Curtis with his cane.

"They are perfect likenesses of you," Mrs. Barrett is said to have told him.

Later Mrs. Barrett sent out one of her visiting cards on the back of which she had written:

"My husband needs compassion and sympathy, and I shall stand by him until he is healed and saved.

"JENNIE L. BARRETT."

Efforts to find Barrett last night were unavailing. Neither could the woman he was accused of beating be found. At the address on Thirty-fourth Street, where it was said she had rooms, it was stated that no person of the name given as her's had ever lived there.

Virgil O. Strickler, the First Reader of the First Church, Scientist, said he knew Mr. Barrett, who up to a year or so ago was an usher in that church. He said he was greatly surprised to hear that Mr. Barrett was in trouble, and said he had impressed him as a very fine young man. Mr. Barrett is not now an usher in the First Church.

Barrett left the west side jail late yesterday afternoon when a man appeared and gave cash bail for his release.

Mrs. Dumont of New Orleans.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 22.—Mrs. Ivon Dumont created a sensation here about eighteen months ago by calling on a policeman to arrest the wife of a prominent citizen who carried a gold bag which Mrs. Dumont claimed had been stolen from her. The accused woman proved she had bought the bag from a jeweler, to whom it had been sold by Horace Newman, a member of one of the most prominent families here, an acquaintance of Mrs. Dumont, and a visitor to her flat in fashionable Jackson Avenue apartments.

Newman said he had given Mrs. Dumont the bag and then had taken it away from her. In her testimony at the trial she declared Newman had called at her flat on business and that he had no other acquaintance with her.

For years Mrs. Dumont's beauty has made her a conspicuous figure here. Her husband is Edgar R. Dumont, member of an aristocratic Southern family of Mobile, Ala. He has been engaged in the lumber export business in New Orleans and Pascagoula, Miss.

LIBRARIANS TO MEET HERE.

Will Be Welcomed by Mayor Gaynor on Tuesday—Their Programme.

In the library of the Engineering Societies Building in West Thirty-ninth Street, Mayor Gaynor will welcome to this city next Tuesday morning about two hundred librarians from different parts of the country, who will be members or guests of the New York Library Association, which will hold its twenty-first convention here.

On Monday evening, the librarians will be the guests of the New York Library Club. Edward Harmon Virgin, President of the club, will welcome the librarians, and Dr. Frank P. Hill, President of the association, will respond.

Mayor Gaynor's formal welcome to the librarians will take place at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, and President Hill, who is also head of the Brooklyn Public Library, will respond. The association's committee report on rural libraries by Caroline F. Webster, and a paper on "Reaching Rural Communities," by Director J. L. Wyer of the New York State Library, will be read. State Commissioner of Agriculture Raymond A. Pearson will make an address also.

On Wednesday morning, Dr. J. S. Billings, Director of the New York Public Library, will describe the public library systems of the city. The new library building will be described to the visitors by Assistant Director Anderson, and the visitors will inspect it. The Wednesday afternoon session will be held in City College, where the librarians will be welcomed by President Finley, and where college and university libraries will be discussed.

On Thursday morning in New York University the librarians will be welcomed by President Brown. The buildings will be inspected, and there will be a discussion of subjects of interest to librarians. The Thursday afternoon session will be in Columbia University. After an address of welcome by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, there will be speeches by Mrs. H. L. Elmendorf, President of the American Library Association; W. D. Johnston, librarian of Columbia, E. C. Richardson, librarian of Princeton, and R. R. Bowker, editor of The Library Journal. There will also be a Thursday evening meeting at Columbia.

On Friday morning the librarians will visit the Brooklyn Institute Museum, where there will be speeches by A. Augustus Healy, President of the institute, and others.

Among the social features of the convention, will be a reception in the Aldine Club on Tuesday afternoon, and a theatre party at the Hippodrome in the evening. The Long Island Library Club will entertain the visitors at luncheon on Friday in the Montauk Club, and will take them later for an automobile ride, with dinner at Coney Island.

DRIVERS AND TEAMS BEATEN.

Strike Sympathizers Assail Cavalcade Sent Over from Jersey City.

Fifty-five men who were leading fifty-five horses belonging to the Burns Brothers' Coal Company of Jersey City and New York, whose drivers are on strike, were attacked twice last night between the Christopher Street Ferry and the yards of the company in West Thirty-eighth Street. Two of the men in charge of the horses were injured by men who followed them up Tenth Avenue in a taxicab.

The first attack was at Fifteenth Street and Tenth Avenue. The men in the taxicab, which was painted black and white, made the chauffeur drive along the line of men and horses and threw at them bottles, stones, and other missiles. Two men leaped from the cab and struck Peter Glatski over the right eye with a bottle, cutting his forehead. The attacking party then got back into the cab and went east in Fifteenth Street. Glatski was taken to the New York Hospital and his injury was treated by Dr. Howard.

The horses had become badly frightened. The men were somewhat demoralized by the attack, and it was some time before they started again up Tenth Avenue. At Thirty-first Street and Tenth Avenue the taxicab again came into view. Encouraged by their first success, the men in the cab became bolder. Two of them jumped from the cab and attacked Mark Kenny, one of the drivers, and after pulling him from his horse beat him and threw him down, kicking him as he lay on the ground. Three other men from the taxicab joined their companions and ran along the line of men and horses, striking the latter and beating a man when it suited them.

PLAN DINNER TO DR. BUTLER.

Several thousand alumni of Columbia University have been invited to a dinner on Oct. 7 in the Waldorf in honor of the tenth anniversary of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler as President of the university. The arrangements are in the hands of a committee selected from the Alumni Associations of Columbia College, the Schools of Science, Law, Medicine, and Doctors of Philosophy, which has announced that the grand ballroom of the hotel will probably be taxed to its capacity with attending alumni from many States.

Dr. Butler has been associated, as instructor or administrator in the educational work of Columbia for more than twenty-five years, during which, according to the committee's announcement, "the number of students has increased from 3,500 to nearly 8,000; the gifts to the university amounted to more than $16,500,000, and the spirit of the university has been developed and broadened."

GARDEN FIGHT CLUB TO LOSE ITS LICENSE

The New York State Boxing Commission announced yesterday that the license of the Madison Square Athletic Club will be revoked on Monday. Gov. Dix suggested this action on the ground that the lease of the Madison Square Garden by the club does not conform to the law regulating boxing contests, which requires that a club must have a lease for one year at the time of making application for a license.

Commissioner O'Neil, who held a conference with Gov. Dix on Thursday, conveyed the wishes of the Governor to Major John J. Dixon, the other member of the commission, and the Governor's secretary, John A. Mason, also telephoned to Mr. Dixon that Gov. Dix desired him to vote with O'Neil to revoke the club's license. The two Commissioners will meet on Monday. It was explained last night that the delay was due to an argument made by the commission at the hearing against the club to give Patrick T. Powers twenty-four hours notice of any action affecting the license.

The license of the National Sporting Club, managed by Tom O'Rourke, was revoked because the club did not have a genuine year's lease of its quarters in the Amsterdam Opera House. There was no delay in O'Rourke's case.

Commissioner O'Neil issued this statement last night:

"I had a conference with Gov. Dix in the Executive Chamber yesterday. The Governor had gone over the testimony of Powers, President of the Madison Square Athletic Club, and the testimony of Leslie R. Palmer, Secretary and attorney for the new corporation which is to take over the Garden property, and the Governor advised me to tell Major Dixon to vote for the revocation of the license of the Madison Square Athletic Club."

Major Dixon said he had also received a telephone message from the Governor's Secretary to the same effect, but added that the club had a promise of twenty-four hours' notice of any action to be taken against it. Major Dixon said he had not agreed with Mr. O'Neil concerning the license of the club because he had been informed by one of the deputies in the Attorney General's office that the club held a valid license.

"Will you obey the Governor's wishes regarding the license?"

"I certainly shall," replied Major Dixon, "but there is no telling what may come up between now and Monday," he added.

In answer to other questions Commissioner Dixon declared that he did not intend to resign and would remain in the commission unless Gov. Dix should see fit to remove him, believing that he had performed his duty in the Madison Square Club case according to his best judgment.

Commissioner O'Neil, backed by the Governor, wins out in his contention that the club's lease did not conform to the law, and it is believed that he will be made Chairman of the commission when it is reorganized, and that a new Commissioner to succeed James E. Sullivan will be appointed in a few days. Commissioner O'Neil said he had no knowledge of the Governor's intentions regarding the appointment to fill the vacancy.

There were rumors yesterday that the Frawley boxing law would be repealed to save Gov. Dix from the criticisms that have followed the objectionable scenes at contests held here under the new law.

Another matter considered by the commission yesterday was the license of Referee Charlie White, who was asked to explain why he did not stop the Morris-Flynn fight, held in Madison Square Garden. White explained that Morris, somewhat soft and fat, bruised and cut easily and did bleed freely, but was at no time either weak or in any danger of being seriously injured. Dr. Creamer testified that he attended Morris after the fight and that his hurts were merely superficial.

The commission exonerated White, but advised him that in future no bout must be allowed to continue under similar circumstances. All referees will be notified that they must stop any bout that becomes one-sided or in which there is any show of brutality.

Some One Advertised That He Was, Thereby Committing a Crime.

The advertisement of the death of Max Adler of 584 East 135th Street, which appeared in yesterday's TIMES, was an error. The notice was received at THE TIMES office Thursday evening and accepted and printed in good faith. Mr. Adler cannot furnish any clue as to the person who committed a crime under the laws of this State by knowingly furnishing the false report of his death.
